BIG DRIVE FOR THRIFT AND WAR SAVINGS STAMPS OPENED TODAY

Beginning today and continuing until June 28, Lowell and the rest of the state will be in the throes of an energetically conducted thrift and war savings stamp campaign, and it is hoped by the officials in charge that one out of every four persons in the city and state will have invested in the miniature government securities by the end of the drive.

James F. Owens is looking after the campaign in the city proper, while Robert F. Marden, is head of the Northern Middlesex county campaign. Mrs. James H. Carmichael is chairman of a women's committee which will canvass the feminine portion of the city's residents.

Today, the first official day of the drive, was given over largely to preparations. Tomorrow, a conference of the three local conductors of the drive will be held and after this conference things are expected to develop with a lot of speed and material results.

The drive received an optimistic send-off this morning, when Mr. Owens received the report of Postmaster John F. Meehan on the amount of sales of thrift and war savings stamps in Lowell for the month of May, just closed. Lowell people bought a total of $3,355.50 worth of the securities in the period. That represents roughly a $14,000 increase over the sales for the month of April, and $21,600 for the month of March. The total sales to date in Lowell, since the stamps were first placed on sale last November, is $165,822.29.

Schools Do Well

A second reason why the workers started off their campaign in a courageous spirit was the reports of the thrift stamp contest just closed in the grammar schools of the city. The campaign opened May 14, and ended at noon June 3. In that period Lowell grammar school children sold a total of $17,184.75 worth of stamps and there are still several schools to be heard from. Owing to the fact that all the schools have not yet made their reports no decision as to the prize winners can be made. Three prizes were to be awarded to the pupils making the largest total sales; three to the pupils selling to the greatest number of customers and one to the school which had the largest percentage sale based on the number of pupils attending the school. The winners will probably be announced early next week.

The Charles W. Morey school sold a total of $660.98 worth of stamps during the campaign period. Edward Holden was the leading individual with a total sale of $135.01. Mary Washburn sold stamps to the amount

These were the words of Caesar uttered as a declaration of war when he plunged into the Rubicon on his victorious march to Rome. Noble words—spoken by a noble man.

Today we are plunged into a world wide war. Numbers of our troops—only the authorities know how many—are now in France. Others are in England training like their brothers across the Channel, for their early dispatch to the trenches.

What are we doing, those who stay at home? Here are some things we all can and should do.

"SOLDIERS OF THE SEA" FIGHT LIKE TIGERS AND MAKE ADVANCE OF TWO MILES

Thousands Now In Class Four Will Be Put In Classes One and Two

General Revision of Classifications Under Selective Service Act Ordered by Gen. Crowder—Change Will Bring 500,000 in the First Class

WASHINGTON, June 7.—A general revision of classifications under the selective service act was started today by Provost Marshal General Crowder, when he telegraphed to the governors of all states ordering investigations to determine the reason for the small number of registrants in class one in some localities.

Thousands of men now in class four should be put in class one and two, the provost marshal said. The instructions also ordered investigations to determine if any men had been erroneously put in the upper classes when they should have been placed in these lower down.

The lists of some boards show an average far below the national average of 28.7 per cent registrants in class one. Some boards even have fallen as low as 10 per cent.

It is expected that the rearrangement will bring into class one, more than 500,000 men. Cases where registrants were married after passage of the draft act will be carefully considered and if evidence warrants classification in class one, boards will proceed to reclassify them. Married men whose wives have sustaining incomes, probably will be reclassified.

"This office has reached the conclusion," said the provost marshal, "that corrective procedure can be made most effective by revision by the local boards and the hearty and active assistance of government appeal agents and members of legal advisory boards."

"You will, therefore, issue instructions that they shall immediately proceed to a careful examination of all the questionnaires and records in the classes hereinafter indicated and make such recommendations to the local boards as they may deem necessary."

Local boards, government appeal agents and members of legal advisory boards should direct special attention to the following classes of cases:

"Class two A and B; class three A B C and who should be in class two or class one. Government appeal agents should be instructed to appeal every case where the reclassification is not convincingly correct."

"The activities of local boards, appeal agents and members of legal advisory boards are not limited to the classes of cases above indicated, but the same corrective measures should be applied to all other cases of deferred classification when the same appears necessary."

"Local boards should set aside a special week in June to be called Class one week to conduct examinations of doubtful cases. Classifications should be scientifically adjusted now so as to avoid the necessity of proceeding to the deferred classes. The remedy is yours to apply."

"It is important also that corrective procedure should be applied where necessary in case of boards showing

LOWELL MAN SEES AIRPLANES CIRCLING NEW YORK CITY AT NIGHT

At least a Lowell man has had the privilege of seeing New York as the big city appears when German submarines are raiding the coast and orders have been given to take all precautions against land attacks by Hun airmen. Rev. George E. Pickard, D.D., is the individual and he told an interesting story today of the activities in Manhattan to prepare for possible emergencies as a result of this week's raiding.

Rev. Dr. Pickard's father, James Pickard, left Charlestown, S. C., where he had been staying, last Sunday afternoon on the Mohawk of the Clyde line. When about 35 miles out, the vessel was ordered to turn back because of the activities of German submarines along the coast. Rev. Dr. Pickard went to New York to meet his father but the latter was held in Charleston for some time. Eventually he managed to get away and came to New York by rail. He reached the big city last evening at 10.30, where he was met by his son.

In New York the two men saw very impressive and material evidences of the city's preparations for any eventualities. Broadway was wholly darkened. Airplanes were circling the city and there was a general feeling of war spirit among the people. According to Dr. Pickard, it was easy to see that the war spirit had been aroused. One was reminded of the stories of London and Paris during raids. He said that passengers of a certain vessel which was about to go south from New York were offered their money back if they didn't wish to hazard the trip, but only eight took advantage of the offer.

Mr. Pickard, Sr., is now in Lowell and will remain with his son for some time. He is an aged man but appears none the worse off because of his exciting experiences.

15 PER CENT INCREASE

A voluntary increase in wages of 15 per cent, has been granted to the employees of the W. W. Carey Co., at the corner of Broadway and Mt. Vernon street. The increase, which will affect about 30 employees, will go into effect next Monday.

FRENCH RECAPTURE GROUND AND INFLECT HEAVY LOSSES ON HUNS

Striking the Germans northwest of Chateau-Thierry, along the line where the enemy legions were launching their heaviest blows but a few days ago, American marines, fighting with French troops on either side, have pushed back the tip of the salient driven by the Germans in their rush to the Marne. They have recaptured the village of Torcy and at last accounts were disputing with the Germans the possession of the towns of Bussaires and Bouresches.

The gallant work of the American "soldiers of the sea" in this advance of over two miles, along a front of almost three miles, stands out as a heroic chapter in the story of American participation in the struggle. Narratives of the battle which began on Thursday afternoon tell of the irresistible dash of the marines and the deadly accuracy of the fire they poured into the German forces opposed to them.

West of Soissons the French have taken the village of Le Port, which is located on the north bank of the Aisne. Farther south, crossing the Clignon river from Gandelu, the French have recaptured the

Mr. Chester G. Adcox, Who Hails From the Lone Star State of Texas Says Some Very Nice Things About Lowell

CHESTER G. ADCOX

"In Lowell you have a most beautiful city. One not to be excelled by any city for cleanliness, and above all a city that does things. Lowell was to the front in her campaign on the Liberty Loan and again in the Red Cross drive, and I also note with great pleasure that Lowell is coming to the front in appreciation of our introduction of Vitalitas, America's Supreme Remedy. At the Dows Drug Store a little over a week ago, we opened a demonstration of this wonderful remedy and hundreds of people have responded, come in and are investigating it."

Vitalitas comes direct from nature and contains the chemical and mineral elements so essential in the treatment of Rheumatism, Indigestion, Stomach and Kidney Ills. Those who suffer with the above dreaded disorders should not hesitate to take advantage of the opportunity and come to the Dows Drug Store, Merrimack Square, and talk to the special Vitalitas man and learn more of this marvelous remedy.

Vitalitas is sold at the Dows Drug Store, Merrimack Square.

The party, according to reports, were seriously injured, while the others received minor injuries.

Miss Eva M. Pelletier of Hildreth street and a student at the Lowell Commercial college, won first prize in a recent contest of typewriting conducted by the New England Business College association, representing the schools located in 20 different cities, her record being 55.4 words a minute for 10 minutes under the international contest rules. The nearest competitor to Miss Pelletier was Miss Gertrude Bateman of Woonsocket, R. I., who wrote at the rate of 73.5 words a minute. Miss Pelletier is now being considered one of the fastest novice typists in New England.

The trustees of the Lawrence Street P.M. church and their wives were royally entertained recently by the pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. John Singleton. The gathering took place in the church vestry and proved very enjoyable. A varied entertainment program was given and refreshments were served by Mrs. Singleton and Miss A. F. Newman. The meeting closed with the watchword. Present were Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Kimball, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wallace, Robert Catherwood, Mr. and Mrs. A. Rule, Mr. and Mrs. H. VICTORY FOR AMERICAN MARINES

Gain Over Two Miles and Inflict Severe Losses on Germans Near the Marne

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN PICARDY, June 7. (By the Associated Press)—American marines attacked the Germans at dawn yesterday morning and gained 3 1/2 kilometers (about 2 1/2 miles) over a four-kilometer front and captured 100 prisoners in the Chateau Thierry sector. The French, attacking at the same time on the left, took 160 prisoners. The Americans now hold all the important high ground northwest of Chateau Thierry.

The marines again attacked at five o'clock yesterday afternoon and the battle is still raging.

Our Men Fight Like Tigers

The fight started at 3:45 o'clock yesterday morning and the Americans had attained all their objectives by 7:45 o'clock.

The Americans have been pressing the Germans so hard that the enemy has been forced to throw three new divisions of his best troops in the line during the last three days.

The Americans are veritable tigers. Their commanders have all they can do to hold the men back.

Even the wounded are enthusiastic and eager to fight. They are proud of their wounds. A general who visited a field dressing station said he was moved by the sight.

By this advance, which, Gen. Pershing announces, occurred at the village of Torcy, the allies outflank the 10-mile front of the enemy which faces the plateau of Villers-Cotterets forest. Westward behind the forest lies Villers-Cotterets, the allies' railroad junction, which it is necessary to keep safe.

Furthermore, a considerable gain in the Torcy region threatens to roll up the German line along the Marne. At the point of their present nearest advance toward Paris the Germans now stand at a disadvantage in a sharp salient on both sides of which American and French troops are making an aggressive fight.

Inflict Severe Losses

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Gen. Pershing's report last night announces that American and French troops advanced their lines northwest of Chateau Thierry about a mile yesterday morning, capturing prisoners and inflicting severe losses in killed and wounded on the enemy.

The statement follows: "In an attack northwest of Chateau Thierry this morning our troops, in conjunction with the French advanced our lines near Torcy about a mile, capturing prisoners and inflicting severe losses in killed and wounded."

"There was lively artillery fighting in Lorraine last night, our batteries executing effective reprisals and neutralization fire."

"There is nothing else of importance to report."

BIG DROP IN N. E. SOFT COAL SHIPMENTS

BOSTON, June 7.—Shipments of soft coal into New England fell off last month more than 120,000 tons as compared with May of last year, according to preliminary reports of the month's receipts to James J. Storror, federal fuel administrator for New England.

Mr. Storror left Boston last night to put the situation before the United States fuel administration at Washington.

"These figures are so alarming that I believe Dr. Harry A. Garfield, the federal fuel administrator, should at once know the facts at first hand," said Mr. Storror.

This means in some instances, a curtailment of profits which I can ill afford to stand, but I am willing to make any reasonable sacrifice rather than lower my tailoring standards, or retreat from my advanced stand on pure and dependable fabrics, at popular prices.

"Unless something can be done to cure conditions responsible for this deficit in our coal receipts," said Mr. Storror, "New England is faced with nothing short of disaster next winter."

"All-rail soft coal receipts in New England in May, 1917, were about 1,542,000 net tons. Last month, preliminary returns indicate that we received only $38,535 tons of all-rail coal, or a little more than half of what the railroads brought up here in the same month a year ago."

"This is a reduction in rail receipts of more than 700,000 tons in one of our best months for rail transportation."

"There is some ground for encouragement in the fact that the dumpings at Hampton Roads, in the month of May, appear to be about 100,000 tons better than a year ago, and the ports of Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York may also show some improvement."

"It is unlikely, however, that this improvement in the water shipments will amount to much more than 250,000 tons. This leaves a net falling off in last month's receipts of soft coal for New England as compared with the same month a year ago of more than 420,000 tons."

Mr. Storror said that the situation can probably not be explained as a result of a falling off in production at Pennsylvania coal mines, where practically all of the all-rail shipments of soft coal for New England come from.

"We understand that these mines are running slightly ahead in production of what they were a year ago," said Mr. Storror.

"The only explanation appears to be that coal which should now be coming into New England is being diverted somewhere else."

P. S. A. Franklin, chairman of the ship control committee, deserves a great deal of the credit, Mr. Storror said, for the improvement shown in the movements of soft coal over the water routes.

"Mr. Franklin evidently is hard at work," said Mr. Storror, "in an effort to avert the threatened collapse of New England's industries. He is giving us all the new ships he can for the coal trade, and is also doing everything possible to help us keep the ships we have. His work in our behalf is certainly appreciated."

"It is a fact, however, that in spite of everything being done to expedite coal shipments, we are steadily falling behind."

"Two months of the coal year are gone, and they are two of the best months as regards transportation that we will have. In April, total soft coal receipts for New England were 720,000 tons under requirements, and in May 650,000 tons less than what they should have been. This means that we are already 1,270,000 tons short of what we ought to have thus far, if New England's total requirements for the year are to be met."

"It is practically a physical impossibility to make up this lost tonnage. This is the time of year when we should be doing our best. If we go on at this rate for two or three months more, winter will find us with our coal pile short from four to five million tons."

The coal situation just now, so far as New England is concerned, is worse than it has ever been," said Mr. Storror. "Something must be done, and done right away, if we are to be saved at all."

The fuel administrators of the other New England states will accompany Mr. Storror to Washington.

LOCAL CATHOLIC CHURCHES OBSERVE FEAST OF THE SACRED HEART

Local Catholic churches observed the feast of the Sacred Heart and also the first Friday of the month today when large numbers of parishioners attended mass in the morning and received holy communion. This evening holy hour services will be held in many of the churches in honor of the Sacred Heart.

There was a special mass at St. Jean Baptiste church at 5:45 this morning for the soldiers of the parish. It was said at the request of the Sacred Heart league. At this church there will be a sermon on the Sacred Heart at 7:30 this evening by Rev. Charles Denzot, O.M.I.

HOSPITAL SHIP STRUCK MINE OFF ENGLISH COAST

THE HAGUE, June 7.—The hospital ship Konigin Regentes, having on board the English delegates to the Anglo-German war prisoners conference, was struck by a mine off the English coast. Four firemen perished but all others were saved by the hospital ship Sinderen.

The delegates aboard the ship were the home secretary, Sir George Cave; Baron Newton, under secretary for the foreign office, who attended the previous conference; Lieut. Gen. Sir Herbert Belfield, director of prisoners of war since 1914; and Mrs. Darley Livingstone, the wife of an English colonel. Mrs. Livingstone, who is an American, is secretary of the government committee on prisoners of war.

ALADDIN'S MAGIC HAS NOTHING ON THIS OHIO WIZARD

Discovers drug which loosens sore, touchy corns so they lift out

You reckless men and women who are pestered with corns and who have at least once a week invited an awful death from lockjaw or blood poison are now told to use a drug called freezezone, which the moment a few drops are applied to any corn, the soreness is relieved and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts out with the fingers. This new ether drug is the recent discovery of a noted Cincinnati chemist. It is a sticky substance which dries the moment it is applied and is said to simply shrivel the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. It is claimed that a quarter of an ounce of freezezone will cost very little at any of the drug stores, but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

You are further warned that cutting at a corn is a suicidal habit.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KETHUS THEATRE
 Two picture features that cannot easily be beaten were shown for the first time at the B. F. Kethus theatre yesterday, and will be repeated twice today and tomorrow. The first is "Love Me," a Paramount picture of engrossing beauty, with sweet Dorothy Lutton in the big role. How a breezy western girl literally forces a very stiff-backed family to love her, furnishes an amusing story, and yet one which is thoroughly human. Even the mother of the girl's husband, who thinks no woman is quite good enough for her son, succumbs at last. The second feature is "Paws of the Bear," with William Desmond in a great part. Centring around the present war, there are no battle scenes. Rather, it is a story showing the chase across the Atlantic after some secret papers of a German agent. He finally gets away with them but it is shown that they have no reference whatever to the point the intelligence men wish to clear up. Mr. Desmond is a dashing American globetrotter, who is caught in Belgium when war is declared. The other members of the company are wholly adequate. The Hearst—Pathe pictures are most interesting. They show scenes on boats which were recently sunk off the Atlantic coast by submarines.

THE STRAND
 The best pictures in the best and coolest picture palace in New England is a big claim, but that's just what we mean when we assure the public that The Strand is unexcelled as a place of amusement of this kind. Ask the regular patrons. Today, Madge Keeney in "Fair Pretender," a Goldwyn picture, and Peggy Hyland in "Peg of the Pirates," both excellent photoplays offering the best of the juvenile variety that so many other contributions to the program that space does not permit their mention at this time. Suffice it to say that The Strand gives more genuine novelties than all the others put together, and then comes the popular children's morning matinee on Saturday, Mae Osborne in "The Little Duchess" will be the star attraction, and there will be others of the juvenile variety that will please the "kiddies." Remember the time is 10 o'clock a. m. and the price is five cents for the little folks. Nothing like it anywhere else.

ROYAL THEATRE
 One of these breezy, snappy picture performances will be offered at the Royal theatre for the week-end on today and tomorrow. Topping the list of extra good attractions is "Baraa, Son of Kazan," a five-act Vitaphone drama with Nell Shipman in the leading role. This play offers the star a great opportunity to display her histrionic accomplishments, no better vehicle has ever served this well-known actress. The play carries on the spectator to a pitch of excitement, and the ending is admirably led up to by the conflicting events. It's one of the 100 per cent. perfect pictures women's magazines talk so much about. The supporting players play to good advantage, and are especially noteworthy. On the added attraction list we find the tenth episode of "The Woman in the Web," the Vitaphone serial, the 10th episode of "The Eagle's Eye," with King Baggott and Marguerite Snow. Capt. Flynn's story of enemy spies in America, which runs in serial form. A new Lonesome Luke comedy, also a "Broncho Billy" western film are also in evidence.

LAKEVIEW PARK
 Every day is a big day at Lakeview, and summer campers, of which many are now on the ground, are singing the praises of this park and its fine dancing pavilion as conducted by Archie Conley, the floor director, and his efficient assistants. Miner-Doyle's orchestra is on the job afternoon and evening, too, and Barney Horan plays tireless the latest of dance music to cheer you up. Go there Sunday and relax—it's the best way to spend the day.

LOWELL BOY SCOUTS WILL HAVE INDIVIDUAL GARDENS INSTEAD OF FARM
 Instead of having one general farm as they did last year, the Boy Scouts of the Lowell council will work on their own individual farms or gardens and as a stimulus to good work, a number of prizes have been offered by an anonymous friend for excellent garden and farm produce cultivated by the scouts. At the close of the season the "best of the boys' products" will be held and competent judges will pass on the merits of them. Each boy must furnish evidence that he has raised his particular entry. Prizes of a suitable nature will be awarded for the following entries:

- 1—Dish of 12 potatoes, three prizes.
- 2—Dish of 12 tomatoes.
- 3—Dish of 12 onions white, red or yellow.
- 4—Dish of six cucumbers.
- 5—Bunch of 10 carrots.
- 6—Bunch of 10 parsnips.
- 7—Bunch of 10 beets.
- 8—Bunch of 10 turnips.
- 9—Ten ears of sweet corn.
- 10—Ten ears of fodder corn.
- 11—One plate of six peppers.
- 12—Bunch of celery.
- 13—Best cauliflower.
- 14—Largest squash.
- 15—Largest pumpkin.
- 16—Heaviest cabbage.

HIG REDUCTION IN MATERIALS USED IN GREAT BRITAIN FOR ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES
 NEW YORK, June 7.—The amount of materials annually used in the United Kingdom of Great Britain for the manufacture of alcoholic beverages has been reduced from 1,506,000 tons before the beginning of the war to 513,000 tons at present, according to a statement issued here by the British Pictorial service.

All the materials now being used for this purpose, it is stated, are utilized in brewing beer. "During the past year," the memorandum says, "no manufacture of spirits for human consumption has been permitted and no further manufacture is at present contemplated."

It is pointed out that about one-third of the materials used are not of a kind that could be used as a human food and that about one-quarter to one-third of the weight of the original materials is recovered in the form of brewer's and distiller's grains, malted combings for cattle food and in the form of yeast for preparing human food.

"No unmalted barley is now in the hands of the brewers or malsters," says the statement. "The whole of the existing stocks of unmalted grain was requisitioned for breadstuffs on Feb. 23 last."

Rations compulsorily imposed in the United Kingdom are enumerated as follows:

"Meat, including chicken, all kinds of game, etc. not exceeding 1 1/4 lbs. per week. There will be supplementary rations for those engaged in hard labor."

"Butter and margarine, 1-4 pound of either, not both, per week."

"Sugar, 1-3 pound per week."

"There are many other restrictions, such as the restrictions of wheat in bread, of feeding cereals to livestock, in the uses of milk, etc."

FRENCH RECAPTURE GROUND AND INFLECT HEAVY LOSSES

AMERICANS GAIN ALL OBJECTIVES

Just to the south, the Americans launched their blow at the Germans and have taken extensive ground. Reports from the scene state that virtually all their objectives were gained, which would appear to indicate that the attack was not a local affair, but part of a well-defined plan directed by the allied command.

Bellau wood, east of Torcy was first reported cleared of Germans by the marines, but later advices made it appear probable that the enemy was still holding a portion of it.

HUNS DRIVEN OUT OF HILL 204

West of Chateau-Thierry, the Germans, in their rush last week, occupied hill 204, a height which dominated the city. From this they have been ejected by the French.

On the front between the Marne river and Rheims the British have gained a footing in the town of Bligny, which is nine miles from Rheims and in a sector which might become vital, should the allies attack there in force.

German official statements have indicated aggressive there may be linked mentioned the arrival of allied forces up with the activity on the western in this particular region, and the al- side of the salient in consideration of what may be the initiation of a counter offensive against the Germans.

Half Withdrawal of Crack Troops

The blows being struck at the German positions will have a tendency to prevent the Germans from withdrawing their crack troops for recuperation before launching an attack on another sector of the front. Advices from the battle area say that German divisions which evidently have been held in reserve, have been brought up to the front to oppose the Americans.

North of the Soissons sector, French patrols have been active, while along the British front there has been no fighting of an unusual nature.

Attack Opened Yesterday

Thursday morning, the allied troops, Americans on the left and French on the right, had advanced to within 500 yards of Bussaires. Attacking again at 5 o'clock Thursday evening, by 10:30 p. m. they had widened the advancing line to about six miles between Gandelu, on the west, and Belleau wood on the east. At that hour the Americans were at Granges farm, south of Gandelu, while the French had driven the Germans from Belleau wood and were advancing on the village of Belleau.

Capture Many Prisoners

In their impetuous attack, which was completed victoriously in four hours, the Americans and French captured more than 270 prisoners, including 10 officers. This was on a front of about two and one-half miles. The French also advanced their lines somewhat near Longpont, east of the Reiz forest.

Germans Told Americans Were British

Berlin, in its latest statement mentions local engagements northwest of Chateau-Thierry, but still refuses to disclose the fact that American troops are now on this front. German prisoners declare they were told the new troops were British.

French Completely Check Enemy

On the eastern wing of the salient the Germans delivered strong local attacks, evidently for the purpose of outflanking Rheims on the south. At Champlatt and St. Euphrase, the French checked the enemy completely, while at Bligny British troops threw the Germans from a height they had gained.

British "Get" 518 Hun Airplanes

Except on the northern side of the Flanders salient, where the Germans have made a slight gain against the French around Loere, there has been little activity elsewhere on the western front. British and French bombing and fighting machines have been very active behind the German lines the British penetrating to Coblenz, in Germany. During May, the British destroyed or damaged 518 enemy machines, 400 of which were destroyed in aerial combats.

Germans Claim 55,000 Captured

The army of the German crown prince since May 27, Berlin announces, has captured 55,000 prisoners. The booty taken includes 650 guns and more than 2000 machine guns. The military correspondent of the Pan-German Vossische Zeitung, says the allied defense is now too strong for further German advances.

German Air Raid on Paris

German airmen again attempted to raid Paris Thursday night and got through the strong French defenses. Bombs were dropped and property damage was caused. The death of only one person was reported.

AMERICANS AND FRENCH CONTINUE TO HURL HUNS BACK

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY ON THE MARNE, Thursday, June 6, 10:30 p. m. (By the Associated Press) Up to this hour the Americans and French troops advancing between Veully-la-Poterie and Torcy, have reached the outer edges of the towns of Bussaires and Torcy.

On the west, the allied line has been carried to Granges farm, south of Gandelu, west of Veully. Belleau wood, east of Torcy, has been cleared of the enemy. Further details are not available at this hour.

The Americans comprise the detachments on the left of the advancing line. After capturing a small wood shaped like the letter S, they reached the cemetery at Veully and continued to press forward slowly, under a heavy fire from German machine guns.

During the attack this morning at dawn, the German artillery fire against the allies was feeble but the enemy front line was well studied with machine guns. In the action this morning the Americans and French advanced one kilometre into the German lines and captured 270 prisoners, including 10 officers.

Forty-five minutes after the fighting started, one French regiment had attained the border of Marché wood and the edge of a triangular wood 500 yards southeast of Bussaires, notwithstanding sharp resistance. This regiment alone took more than 100 prisoners.

BELIEVES GERMAN LULL EFFORT AT DECEPTION

LONDON, June 7.—The Germans do not intend to attempt any further or immediate progress around Chateau-Thierry, says Reuter's correspondent with the American army in France, who spent Thursday northwest of that town. The enemy, he adds, shows lassitude which might well seem an intentional effort at deception.

PARIS REPORTS SUCCESS FOR AMERICANS AND FRENCH

PARIS, June 7.—American troops, fighting on the main battle front, have gained ground on the line of Torcy-Belleau and Boursches, west of Chateau-Thierry, the war office announces in today's statement.

West of Nogon and north of Montdidier, on the Picardy area, local operations by the French were successful and prisoners were taken.

In fighting north of the Aisne, the French captured the village of Le-Port, west of Fontenoy.

On the Marne front, northwest of Chateau-Thierry, French troops captured the village of Vinly.

The French also recaptured hill 202, between the Marne and Rheims. British troops regained a footing in the village of Bligny, inflicting large losses on the enemy.

The text of the statement follows: "North of Montdidier and west of Nogon the French made several successful raids and took prisoners."

"North of the Aisne French troops in a night attack captured the village of Le-Port, west of Fontenoy. South of the Aisne, the French improved their positions southeast of Ambleny."

"Between the Oureq and the Marne the French continued their local operations in the region of Veully-la-Poterie and Bussaires. They made further progress and captured the village of Vinly, north of the Clignon river, as well as the grove east of the station of Veully-la-Poterie and the northern edge of this village.

"Further south American troops gained ground on the front of Torcy, Belleau and Boursches, west of Chateau-Thierry."

"A spirited attack made by the French resulted in the recapture of hill 204. Between the Marne and Rheims, British troops regained a footing in the village of Bligny and inflicted heavy losses on the Germans. The French took 100 prisoners in the course of these actions."

"On the remainder of the front, there was intermittent artillery fighting."

"There is nothing further to report from the British front."

UNEVENTFUL NIGHT ALONG THE BRITISH BATTLEFRONT

LONDON, June 7.—An uneventful night along the British front is reported by the war office today. The official statement reads: "A party of our troops raided a hostile post last night northeast of Bethune and after inflicting casualties on the garrison and capturing a machine gun returned without loss."

SAFE ARRIVAL OVER SEAS

The many friends of First Class Private Charles E. Kenechok, 318th Engineers who enlisted early in December and has been in training at Vancouver barracks, state of Washington, since Christmas, will be pleased to know of his safe arrival over seas word having been received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Kenechok, 215 Stockpole street.

A will that was lost when an overcoat was stolen several years ago, preserved by the thief and returned by him, was declared genuine by Judge J. J. Trimble in the Pittsburg probate court.

TERRIFIC LOSSES OF SOME HUN FAMILIES

BERNE, June 7.—As bearing upon the war losses of some German families a statement made yesterday to the Associated Press correspondent by a German woman now in Berne is interesting.

HIGH SCHOOL STEEL IS WHITE ELEPHANT

What will be done with the high school steel? That is a question that is being propounded by a number of citizens of this city, inasmuch as the high school commission, which was elected at a joint meeting of the school board and the city council, has been declared to be an illegally appointed commission by Justice Pierce of the supreme court.

It was stated this morning that the high school commission at its various meetings did not favor erecting a school which would cost the city $1,500,000 as the plans called for, and furthermore that the commission was not very favorably impressed with the site selected for the erection of the new building.

Chauffeurs Examined The biggest class of prospective chauffeurs to take the examination in this city was examined at city hall this morning by Examiners Hubbell, Leary, Bowman and Hardy, all of the state highway commission. There were 65 candidates in the class, some coming from as far as Groton one way and Haverhill, the other way.

highway. March 21, in which Asper Saha of Lowell was killed, the highway commissioners have revoked the chauffeur's license of Amos P. Best of Braintree, the members of the commission being unable to find that the accident occurred without serious fault on his part.

Best told the commissioners that a boy on a bicycle turned suddenly directly in front of his automobile, and that in order to avoid him he turned his car into the fence. It ran along close to the fence for a distance of 40 feet until the fence gave way and the machine went over a 12-foot embankment, turning over twice in its descent. He claimed that he tried in every way to turn the car away from the fence, but was unable to do so. It was his opinion that something, probably a cross bar on the fence, held the wheel. The commissioners took the ground, however, that he should have brought the machine to a stop when he found he could not get away

McSorley Not to Blame The commission has reached the opposite conclusion, however, in the case of Frederick J. McSorley of Lowell, who on April 27 was involved in an accident which resulted in the death of Juliette Mary Brown. After full investigation, the commissioners have decided that the accident occurred without serious fault on the part of McSorley.

and carried sweet peas. At the close of the ceremony, a reception was held and present were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gaspar and Clayton Gaspar of Nashua, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hazeltine of Chelmsford, Olive and Vina McPhee of Boston. The ushers were Blanche Sinnett, Gertrude Leggett, Blanche Kelly, Lillian Marshall.

Davey-Horgan Mr. William Davey and Miss Mary Horgan were married by Rev. Fr. Heffernan at the rectory of St. Peter's church Wednesday evening, at 5 o'clock. The bridesmaid was Miss Mary Roarke. The best man was Mr. Wesley Davey, a brother of the groom. The bride was prettily attired in blue tulle with an overdress of Georgette crepe and a picture hat, to match, and carried white bridal roses. The bridesmaid wore gray tulle with georgette overdress and picture hat, and carried pink bridal roses. After the ceremony, a wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's parents at 13 Burns street, and there was an entertainment consisting of songs by Commissioner James E. Donnelly, piano selections by Miss Lulu Ginty, Mrs. John McLaughlin and Master Thomas Ginty, and James Daly played the bagpipes. Mr. and Mrs. Davey will enjoy their honeymoon in Canada and will be at home to their friends at 12 Burns street, after July 15.

BRYCE IN PLEA FOR HOME RULE

Former British Ambassador to United States Endorses Unity Idea of Redmond's Daughter

LONDON, June 7.—Viscount Bryce, the former British ambassador to Washington, in a statement yesterday in reply to the appeal of Mrs. Max Green, daughter of the late John P. Redmond, on May 24, endorses her appeal for unity between England and Ireland.

He urged the British parliament to hasten the passage of an adequate home rule bill, but at the same time asks the people "to make it plain to the world that the Irish people stand in line with Britain, America, Italy and France in their determination to save the world from the German ruthlessness and tyranny."

Bryce's Statement
Viscount Bryce said in part: "Up to 1886 there was marked opposition between the majority of Irishmen and the majority of Englishmen because both great English parties had failed to understand the grounds on which the claims of home rule were based. Since 1886, sentiment and sympathy for Ireland have been strong in the liberal party, and today this feeling is no longer confined to the liberal party."

"There is now among the bulk of Englishmen of all parties a wish as far as possible to meet and satisfy the Irish desire for a large measure of self-government. It is not too much to say that the question of home rule is now a question not between England and Ireland, but one between two sections of the Irish."

"This ought to be better known in other countries as well as more fully realized in Ireland. There need be no fear of return to the unfortunate conditions of 50 years ago when mistrust and suspicion were estranging the two peoples. These conditions have passed away forever."

Causes of Distrust
"It is, nevertheless, true that what appears unwillingness in Ireland to help in the fight against Germany has caused some irritation in England, just as the attempt to force compulsory military service on Ireland has awakened suspicion there. To the Irish nationalists it has seemed to be the exercise of arbitrary authority of one nation over another."

"Many Englishmen do not understand this attitude because they do not realize that centuries of conflict have made the Irish people sensitively jealous of their own nationality, and the Irish mind has been so turned upon itself, so much occupied with Ireland's grievances and claims that it has not grasped the real meaning of this war. Englishmen are accordingly disappointed that Ireland does not show a stronger desire to join in the conflict against Germany."

No Fears for Home Rule
Viscount Bryce continued: "There need be no fear in Ireland that the English democracy, bewildered though they be by the reckless violence and wild language of the Sinn Féiners, have any intention of going back on the home rule policy which parliament has solemnly sanctioned."

"The British people desire with all their hearts to see prosperity and contentment in Ireland under a home rule parliament and they hope that when Ireland sees this she will of her own accord join in vindicating against Germany these very principles of liberty and nationality upon which she founds her own claims."

"This is not a war which England has undertaken for her own benefit. It is a war for right and humanity, and victory will be won for Ireland as well as for the rest of Europe."

"Englishmen who have been pressing the claims of Ireland for 30 years have no doubt of what is needed now. Parliament ought to bring into operation a large and effective home rule scheme, and this must be done without delay."

"Ireland, on her part, ought to make it plain to the world that the Irish people stand in line with Britain, America and France, which peoples are giving all that is dearest to them in their determination to save the world from the menace of German ruthlessness and tyranny. If Ireland loses liberty and justice, how can she fail to feel with them and to wish that her sons should fight beside them in such a cause?"

CARDINAL DEDICATES ST. THERESA HOUSE

LYNN, June 7.—More than 1500 inspected the new St. Theresa House, an $80,000 home for working girls, which was dedicated by Cardinal O'Connell yesterday, as a part of the observance of the golden jubilee of Mgr. Arthur J. Teeling, DD, P.R., who has served St. Mary's parish for more than 25 years.

The new home is a modern building, superbly furnished and will be supervised by the Sisters of Mercy. It was dedicated in the presence of a large assemblage of Catholic clergy, among whom were Bishop Nihan of Hartford and Bishop Anderson of Boston.

Following the solemn high mass, at which the cardinal presided, visiting clergy to the number of 100 were entertained at luncheon in the new home. The cardinal spoke briefly and Mgr. Teeling gave a reminiscent talk.

A feature of the services was the preaching of the sermon at the mass by Bishop Nihan, a native of Newburyport, who served Mgr. Teeling as an altar boy when he was located in that city.

LOWELL HERD, ORDER OF BUFFALO, ADDRESSED BY SUPREME ADVOCATE

There was a large attendance at the regular meeting of Lowell Herd, Order of Buffalo, in Odd Fellows temple last night. Considerable business was transacted during the evening. President George E. Moussette occupied the chair.

Supreme Advocate Judge Maurice L. Cunningham of the national organization, accompanied by Supreme President James E. Hughes, was present and delivered an interesting address to the members. They were tendered a reception after which the regular business meeting was held.

The membership committee reported that 15 applications had been received and seven had been accepted. Members of the relief and sick committee reported no members on their list. The physician's report also showed the herd to be in splendid shape.

Communication was received from Supreme Secretary Charles H. Finn notifying the herd that the annual convention will be held in Boston at the John Winthrop hall, Tremont street. The election of delegates to this convention was acted upon and the following were chosen: George E. Moussette, William H. Garvey and Robert M. Dempsey, and alternates, Daniel Murray, John Gillis and Joseph Regan, after which the following members addressed the members on the proposed laws coming before the convention: George E. Moussette, William H. Garvey, Robert E. Dempsey and James E. Hughes.

It was also announced that the proposed drawing had been postponed until June 20, and will be held in the club rooms.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE
A driver in the employ of the street department of the city and a pair of horses had a narrow escape from being badly hurt yesterday afternoon, when the dump cart and horses backed over a high embankment at the ledge in Fletcher street. The driver jumped before the wagon went over. The horses, however, went to the bottom of the pit, but escaped with a few scratches. The accident was the result of the timber used as a stop at the edge of the embankment becoming displaced.

In five hours 300 men put up a hospital building 230 by 38 feet, including heating plant, light and sewer connections, on Staten Island.

IMPORTANT SUGAR NOTICE
The following notice relative to the amount of sugar to be used by manufacturers has been sent in by Hon. Edward Fisher, assistant food administrator of Middlesex county:

The amount of sugar which may be used by manufacturers will probably be restricted during the period of the war.

All manufacturers of less essential food products using sugar must file required statement with the sugar department of the food administration at the state house by June 10th, covering sugar used, on hand, and their requirements.

Unless such reports are filed by June 10th, no sugar will be allotted for the balance of 1918 to the manufacturers failing to make such return.

CONSCRIPTION IS NOT WITHDRAWN IN IRELAND

DEUBLIN, June 7.—A warning to Ireland that Lord French's recruiting proclamation does not mean the withdrawal of conscription, was made in a statement issued last night by the anti-conscription conference after a four-hour session at Mansion House. The lord mayor of Dublin presided at the meeting and John Dillon, Joseph Devlin and other nationalist leaders, as well as representatives of labor and the Sinn Féin, were present.

The lord mayor of Dublin, it was announced, will proceed to the United States when the attempt to conscript Ireland is renewed. The imprisonment of the Sinn Féiners without trial, is condemned and the Irish military administration denounced. The statement says nothing of the attitude of the conference toward the recruiting campaign.

STRIKE TIES UP TROLLEY SERVICE IN NEW JERSEY

NEWARK, N. J., June 7.—With trolley service in many cities and towns in northern New Jersey virtually suspended on account of the trolley men's strike for higher wages, John J. Sloggers of the conciliation division of the department of labor, today arranged for conferences with company and union officials.

All available motor trucks, automobiles and wagons were pressed into service to convey workers to plants working on government orders.

Women conductors, against whose employment the men have protested, were used on some lines today.

New York Carmen Strike

NEW YORK, June 7.—Virtually all of the motormen and conductors employed by the Union Railway Co. walked out today to enforce their demand for 50 cents an hour, an increase of 15 cents over the present scale. The Union Railway Co. operates lines in the Bronx and Westchester county to points in Connecticut. The police reported that the service was virtually at a standstill.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

The regular meeting of B. F. Butler Relief corps was held last night in Memorial hall, Miss Mary Smith presiding. Routine business was transacted and general orders were read by the secretary, Mrs. Lydia Bartlett. Several communications were received and acted upon. It was announced that the Middlesex County association would meet at Reading on June 9. The patriotic instructor and several of the members are to take part in the Flag day to be given by the Mary Smith tent, Daughters of Veterans.

The corps unanimously voted to cooperate with the Sons of Veterans auxiliary, 47, in entertaining the soldiers and sailors at the Y.M.C.A., June 23. An invitation was received and accepted to spend the coming day at the guest of the past president, Mrs. Bessie Cummings, in Cambridge.

The charter was draped during the evening for the late Mrs. Mary Flynn.

MEN AND WOMEN IN FIGHTING TRIM

They Keep To The Top Notch of Health

The spirit of the times demands perfect health and nerves, and keeping them up to the highest degree of efficiency.

Wise men and women have learned that it does not pay to allow health and nerves to run down and are quick to take advantage of Nature's greatest red blood and nerve tonic, Phosphated Iron, the minute they feel they are slowing up.

Whatever your work may be there is no reason why it should continue to the you; work should only use the right amount of your energy. It is trying to work on your nerves and forcing yourself that wastes your strength, runs you down, gives you those restless nights, loss of appetite and indigestion, when you get up in the morning as tired as when you went to bed. There is no sense in anyone being a victim of ill health, poor blood, over work, nerves or the blues when Phosphated Iron will afford such prompt and permanent relief.

All over the country men and women in every walk of life lay their good health, strength and nerves of iron to the use of Phosphated Iron, the red blood and nerve builder, and it will also put you on your feet, make you feel like a live one. It produces results that last, that's what counts, no "ifs" about it.

To insure physicians and their patients getting the genuine Phosphated Iron we have put in capsules only. Do not take pills or tablets. Insist on capsules. Fred Howard, Lowell Pharmacy and leading druggists everywhere.

The meeting closed with the flag salute.

The members of James A. Garfield, W.R.C., met last night at G.A.R. hall at 202 Merrimack street. During the afternoon, whilst was enjoyed after which a supper was served and the regular business meeting was held in the evening. The meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock by the president, Mrs. Elvina Giles Planders. Flag day services will be held Tuesday evening, June 11, under the direction of Mrs. Lestina Parker, to which the public is invited. Middlesex County association will meet in Reading Wednesday, June 13. An invitation was accepted to attend the Flag day exercises to be held in Memorial hall Thursday evening, June 13. The meeting closed with the flag salute.

The regular weekly meeting of the American branch of the Lowell Educational local was held last night, at 22 Middle street. One new member was admitted and considerable business of a routine nature was transacted. It was voted to have the Rev. Ernest Smith speak at the corner of Central and Jackson streets, at the meeting to be held at 8 o'clock on Monday night. The speaker will discuss political socialism.

NEWS OF THE DAY IN THE POLICE COURT

The police had a comparatively quiet time yesterday and last night when it is taken into consideration that "the greatest show on earth" was here, which generally attracts many of the light fingered gentry who separate the unwary from jewelry and money. All of the inspectors were on duty from the time the parade started in the morning until the show was over last night, but there was very little doing.

Two strangers were acting suspiciously in the vicinity of the Fair grounds and they were sent to the police station for safe keeping. Scores of soldiers from Camp Devens were also attracted to this city and as usual there were a number of unscrupulous persons who were willing to secure liquor for the soldiers. Three of these hoppers or bootleggers were gathered in by the police and booked for aiding and abetting in the purchase of liquor for soldiers and taken to Ayer this morning.

About 8 o'clock last night Patrolmen McNulty, Mahan and P. Sullivan saw two men acting suspiciously in the crowd at the circus grounds and after watching the pair walk in and out of the crowd questioned them. The answers given were not satisfactory and the men were sent to the police station where they were booked as suspicious persons. Later they were released by the police and advised to leave the city as soon as possible.

Shortly before 8:30 o'clock last night Sergt. Petrie and Officers Moore, O'Sullivan and Cooney visited a house in Lee street and disturbed a party made up of three soldiers, two young women and a civilian. There was evidence of liquor having been served and that the party had been in disorderly conduct. This civilian, Louis Fletcher, aged 41 years, and residing in the house in question, was charged with aiding and abetting a soldier in the purchase of liquor. He was taken to Ayer this morning. The three soldiers were also turned over to the military authorities at Ayer.

The girls gave their names, ages and residences as follows: Jeannette Gilchrist, 25 years, High street, and Elizabeth Whelan, 23 years, Lakeview avenue. They were arraigned in police court this morning charged with being lewd persons. Both were found guilty, the Whelan girl being sentenced to five months in jail. The Gilchrist girl's case was continued to Tuesday.

About 8:30 o'clock last night Sergt. Petrie and Officers P. Clark and Winn saw a man with a soldier and following the pair into Jackson street saw the man pass a bottle of liquor to the soldier. The "hipper" was arrested and gave his name as Joseph P. O'Hare, 30 years, laborer of Woburn. He was taken to Ayer this morning as was James Brown, 50 years, laborer, of Boston, who was arrested in Jackson street, about 11:30 o'clock last night while passing liquor to a soldier.

MANY TONS OF LIQUOR BROUGHT TO BANGOR

AUGUSTA, Me., June 7.—In a period of 146 days more than 212 tons of intoxicating liquors were brought into the city of Bangor, without seizure or complaint. Atty. Gen. Guy H. Sturgis asserted in his opening statement at the removal proceedings against Sheriff T. Herbert White of Bangor. The sheriff is accused of neglect to enforce the Maine prohibition law. The hearing is before the governor and council in the house of representatives chamber in the state house.

Atty. Gen. Sturgis appeared for the state and ex-Atty. Gen. Wm. R. Farnsworth of this city and Edward T. Murray of Bangor, Democratic leader of the last house of representatives, appeared for the accused sheriff. A large part of the time was occupied in documentary evidence.

"We shall show," continued Sturgis, "that the records of the courts will show that the sheriff or none of his deputies did not in one single instance make complaint or obtain a warrant for search and seizure of any box, package or parcel."

"We shall show by the testimony that during that period places long well known to be rumshops have been repeatedly selling intoxicating liquors. We shall produce the liquors purchased and show you when and where they were bought and the current price, which averaged $4 per quart."

Clinton C. Stevens of Bangor, clerk of courts of Penobscot county, read records from the supreme judicial court docket, tending to show that while capias were issued on indictments against persons convicted of liquor selling, arrests have not been made, the respondents are at large at the present time, and never have been called upon even to give bail. The taking of testimony on the part of the prosecution will be resumed today.

Some 40 witnesses were sworn in by the prosecution. They include the county attorney, clerk of courts and commissioner of Penobscot county, employees of the Maine Central Railroad Co., Eastern Steamship Co., the American Express Co., recorder of the Bangor municipal court, three members of the Bangor police force and well known professional and business men.

The local evening newspaper is the paper that reaches the home when the whole family is there to read it. The Sun fills this bill in Lowell.

$8,000,000 A YEAR IN TAXES

McAdoo Urges Raising Rates on Incomes—Would Help the Sale of Liberty Bonds

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Sec. McAdoo yesterday recommended in a letter to Chairman Kitchin of the house ways and means committee that the new revenue bill be drawn to raise $8,000,000,000 by taxation, one-third of the estimated $24,000,000,000 expenditures in the fiscal year 1919.

He recommended that a war profits tax be established at high rate to be superimposed on existing excess profits taxes, that the normal income tax on unearned incomes be raised, and that heavy taxation be imposed on luxuries.

The suggestions were given in response to a letter from Mr. Kitchin and constituted an outline of the treasury's ideas not only of taxation to meet the nation's huge war expenses in the future, but of preparing

Yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands of Girls Benefited

St. Louis, Mo.—"When I was only fifteen years old mother had to put me to bed every month for twodaysbecause I suffered such pain."

I also suffered from a weakness and mother took me to a doctor but he did nothing for me. Finally mother made me take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has made me strong and healthy. So when mother or I hear any woman complaining we tell them about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it did for me."

Mrs. JOHN FRAME, 1121 N. 18th St., St. Louis, Mo.

Girls who suffer as Mrs. Frame did should not hesitate to give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial, as the evidence that is constantly being published proves beyond question that this grand old remedy has relieved more suffering among women than any other medicine.

The letters constantly being published from women in every section of this country prove beyond question the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A Tonic For Women With Shaky Nerves

Any woman who is irritable, nervous, depressed, dissatisfied and overtired should face the facts in her own case and see where she is drifting.

A tendency to blame husband or child for everything that happens, perhaps to scold a little, is a sign that the nerves are lacking in the strength that makes the mind calm. If you are like this your nerves are sick. The following interview shows how the nerves can be strengthened.

"I was in a run-down condition," says Mrs. E. Salth, of No. 52 Linnea street, Brockton, Mass., "and my nerves were unstrung. I had tried several remedies without lasting relief. I would have trembling sensations that made me feel terrible. My heart fluttered and it seemed as if I would choke. These spells seemed to exhaust me and take all my strength."

"After reading about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in a newspaper I decided to try them. After taking two boxes I felt much better and my nerves were quieter. Upon the completion of the fifth box I was entirely relieved of the nervous spells and was much stronger in every way. I recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to anyone who suffers as I did."

The treatment in cases like this is one of nutrition of the nerve cells, requiring a non-alcoholic tonic. As the nerves get their nourishment from the blood the treatment must be directed toward building up the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act directly on the blood and with proper regulation of the diet have proved of the greatest benefit in many cases of neurasthenia. A tendency to anemia, or bloodlessness, shown by most nervous patients, is also corrected by these pills.

Two useful books "Diseases of the Nervous System" and "What to Eat and How to Eat" will be sent free by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., if you mention this paper. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50. There has been no increase in price.—Adv.

(four per cent normal and eight per cent excess profits) should be retained in respect to earned incomes, while a higher rate than 12 per cent should be imposed on unearned incomes.

"Four—That heavy taxation be imposed upon all luxuries."

As to War Profits

Explaining his policy as to a new tax to reach actual profits made out of the war, Mr. McAdoo said that corporations and business men in entering into war contracts they take grave risks and are called upon to make vast expenditures of capital for purposes which may prove unproductive after the war.

"They are not to be blamed in these circumstances from asking prices and terms which cover these risks," he said. "On the other hand, when the risk has been liquidated by proper allowances and the contract has proved profitable, the government should take back in taxes all profits above a reasonable reward."

In discussing the way in which a higher normal rate on incomes would promote the sale of Liberty Bonds, the secretary wrote:

"I hope that it will not be necessary further to increase the interest rate on government bonds. The people who subscribed are impatient of those who have not. Various plans have been urged upon me for forcing the people to buy Liberty Bonds."

"There is a popular demand also for high taxes upon war profits. There is also a popular demand that all the people would contribute to financing the war."

"There should, therefore, be a substantial increase in the normal income tax rate and a higher tax should be levied upon so-called unearned than on earned incomes. Income derived from Liberty Bonds would be exempt from this taxation and the relation between income from Liberty Bonds and income from other securities would be readjusted without increasing the rate of interest on Liberty Bonds."

Would Avoid Inflation

Not to increase the sum to be raised by taxes next year and consequently to raise $20,000,000,000 from government bonds, said Mr. McAdoo, "would be a surrender to the policy of high interest rates and inflation, with the evil consequences which would flow inevitably therefrom, and which would, I firmly believe, bring ultimate disaster to the country."

Treasury tax experts are at work now drafting plans for removing some of the acknowledged injustices of the present excess profits measure, applying particularly to business men in small capitalization and consequently high rates of earnings. Suggestions for these amendments will be presented to congress if they are called for.

Sec. McAdoo has expressed himself, however, as anxious to avoid the appearance of dictating legislation on revenue matters.

LOWELL MEN FEAST ON PERCH, BASS AND TROUT FROM LAKE WINNIPESAUKEE

White perch, bass and lake trout were the piece de resistance at a supper served to a few members of Club Lafayette in the quarters of the organization in Merrimack street last evening, and it may be said that those who partook of the feed had nothing but words of praise for the members of the organization who supplied the fish and for Chef Trudeau, who prepared one of the most delicious dishes of its kind ever served under the roof of the club. The affair was organized at a few minutes' notice and amply to satisfy the hunger of a half dozen or more members of the club, who were returning from a two-days fishing trip to Lake Winnepesaukee, and it was they who brought the fish along with them. Some members of the party claimed that the perch, bass and lake trout were duly and legally caught on the hook in the waters of the New Hampshire lake, while a telephone message received from Club Joliet in Manchester in the early part of the evening was to the effect that the Lowell party, who had made a brief stop at the club, had made another brief stop at the largest fish market in the Queen city, but the fishermen were given the benefit of the doubt by their fellow-members and the fish from Lake Winnepesaukee proved a real treat.

The members of the fishing party were Ovilla Morin, Pierre Bourgeois, Louis Desrosiers, Dr. George E. Caisse, Joseph Gagnon, Willie Rousseau and Z. A. Normandin. They left Lowell in two automobiles Tuesday morning and arrived at Glendale, N. H., their camping grounds, some time in the afternoon and they report that during their two-days stay on the shores of the great lake their meals consisted of fish, fish and more fish, and they all solemnly swear that not one pound of the food was purchased, but all was caught on the hook, and in addition they brought back with them about 25 pounds of white perch, bass and lake trout, while they also claim that they gave the railroad agent at Glendale fish enough to do him for a month.

During their spare time at the camp, that is when they were not out fishing, the "boys" were thoroughly drilled by Ovilla Morin, a veteran of the Spanish-American war, who was unanimously elected captain of the company upon reaching the summer resort. As a result of efficiency and hard work Private Bourgeois was promoted to sergeant, while Private Desrosiers was given the stripes of a corporal. It is said that if the campers had remained another couple of days at Glendale, there would have been no privates left in the company, for everyone was picking up the military manual in great style and all were in line for promotion and Captain Morin seemed generously disposed along that line. Be that as it may, all members of the party reported a splendid trip and they claim there is no better place for a real fishing trip than Lake Winnepesaukee.

BOSTON GETS AIR MAIL FROM NEW YORK

SAUGUS, June 7.—Lieut. T. H. Webb, a United States army aviator, landed here late yesterday with more than 1000 pieces of mail matter from New York for Boston. It was Boston's first airplane mail. The trip required three hours and 22 minutes.

In making a landing at the aviation field at Franklin park, here, Lieut. Webb's machine ran into a pile of soft earth and tipped up, throwing the pilot and his mechanic, Ray Heck, out, but neither was injured. The machine, however, was somewhat damaged, and it was not believed that it would be possible to make a return flight tomorrow as had been planned. Mechanicians who examined the airplane said that one propeller blade had been broken and that the front had been wrenched and strained.

Assistant Postmaster William E. Hurley of Boston and other postoffice officials were here to greet the aviator, and the seven pouches of mail which he brought were taken to Boston in an automobile for delivery.

Lieut. Webb made his start from Belmont park, Long Island, at 12:00 and landed here at 3:31 p. m. He lost his bearings once during the trip. Lieut. Webb said, and made a brief stop near Haddam, Conn., to get his bearings. As the machine neared Boston it ran into a rain storm.

Another machine had been hauled out onto the aviation field as a marker to guide Lieut. Webb in locating the park, and after circling the field once he landed almost directly in front of the waiting officials.

TRENCH FIGHTING GIVES WAY TO OLD-FASHIONED WARFARE

By Newspaper Enterprise Association.

PARIS, June 7.—Warfare on the western front has returned to the open methods of the American Civil war and the Napoleonic wars.

After three years and a half in the trenches, the contending armies are fighting once more in the open. Cavalry charges, maneuvering of large bodies of infantry, and the employment of mobile field artillery are seen again as in other battles famous in history.

For this the Hindenburg tactics of wresting territory from the allies regardless of human lives is responsible. But it comes as a welcome change to the allied soldiers, who are thoroughly sick of life in the trenches.

The March offensive on the Picardy and Flanders fronts was the first big battle on the west front since 1914 that was fought in the open. British and German cavalry detachments took part in that engagement, and the furious hand-to-hand fighting in streets and open fields by the opposing infantry has been described and re-described.

The present German drive on Paris saw the open warfare methods amplified. Ever since the start of the Hun's push on May 27, when the British and French were driven from their trenches along the Aisne, the fighting has been in the open.

Patrols of cavalry have been employed to a greater extent than at any time since 1914. Correspondents at the front tell of furious cavalry charges by the Germans against the French infantry. The Germans have had to leave their heavy artillery behind owing to the rapidity of their advance, but their field artillery and machine guns follow the infantry, and these pour a constant stream of projectiles into the French lines.

Allied cavalry patrols which have not seen active service for a long time are now dashing with reckless courage here and there along the front, making reconnaissances in the style of 1881. Frequently they meet enemy patrols, and then a hot battle with lances or carbines ensues.

Occasionally the allied horsemen run into regiments of advancing German infantrymen. Then their task is to get back to the French lines and warn the officers in command. In this way also, some furious encounters have taken place, which will not be told in detail until the actors in them get war crosses for their bravery.

For the first week of the battle the French infantry was in retreat, but it fought the Germans desperately nearly every step of the way. Rifles and bayonets took the place of machine guns and hand grenades. Hand-to-hand fighting supplanted trench warfare. Every inch of ground gained by the Germans was bitterly contested.

Now that the drive has been checked along the Noron-Chateau-Thierry line, the French infantry, re-enforced by thousands of General Foch's reserves, is counter-attacking and fighting furiously to prevent the enemy from advancing any further toward Paris.

Still the battle is being waged in the open. Towns have been captured by the foe at the point of the bayonet, only to be recaptured by the French in brilliant counter-charges of the kind which make the pages of history ring with heroism.

This is the kind of warfare that General Foch is best at. For years he studied and taught military tactics of this sort. He knows all that Napoleon knew about it, and more. He is France's greatest expert on offensive fighting. He has countless reserve forces to throw into the battle when he considers the time ripe.

To outgeneral this master of strategy, Hindenburg is going to have his hands full.

SOFT JOB SCHEME KILLED—TRADE TESTS FOR RECRUITS AT DEVENS

CAMP DEVENS, Ayer, June 7.—Recruits coming to this camp in future drafts will have an opportunity to show what is in them and the kind of work they are best fitted for almost as soon as they arrive, and if the army requires men to do the kind of work that they have been performing in civil life, they will have a chance to compete against other draftees for the jobs.

So far as it has been possible men have been selected to perform the kind of work for which they were best fitted.

The present German drive on Paris saw the open warfare methods amplified. Ever since the start of the Hun's push on May 27, when the British and French were driven from their trenches along the Aisne, the fighting has been in the open.

After they became members of the national army, but the new plan eliminates all possible chance of a man coming to camp and picking off a soft job by declaring himself to be an expert at that work. His own word for it won't go after this; he has got to prove it.

Announcement of this new system was made here yesterday, but it will probably not go into effect for some time, for it will require time to prepare. Trade tests, they are called, and they will include practically every trade required by the army, and the army needs men of about every trade there is.

Under the new system a list of the number of men of each trade required by the division will be made up. When the men begin to come in their records in civil life will be examined by the personnel officer and from these cards he will select the number of men of each trade required by the division. Then the men will be called upon to take the trade tests. Carpenters, blacksmiths, masons, electricians, chauffeurs, all the trades will be represented and tests will be given by experts at each trade.

Examination of Men Finished

The work of examining the men of the 15th division is practically completed, and while it is yet too early to learn exactly how many were found physically unfit for overseas service, it is estimated that the number will exceed 2500. Those who were disqualified for service abroad will be held for domestic service only—"D.S.O." as it is popularly called—and there is the possibility that some of these men at least may go to the United States guard.

From their divisional organizations, however, they will be transferred to the Depot Brigade, and it is believed that the men who will replace them in the division will come from the Depot Brigade, though this was not stated officially. It surprised the examining officers to find so many of the men who came here from Camp Upton physically unfit and comparatively few of the Unionists will have a place in the New England division when it goes across.

A Night Raid

Members of the division bayonet school last night made a night raid in the trenches back of the base hospital under the school instructors, Capt. R. H. Goodday and Company Sergt. Major C. Dawson, both of the British army. The men advanced in battle order with gas masks. After routing the enemy from his trenches, with the aid of a creeping barrage fire made with sticks of dynamite, they completely plowed in mid-air, signals were sent up that the position had been taken. The enemy, however, countered and another barrage had to be laid down to help beat them off. The "enemy" consisted of 30 candidates from the 4th Officers' Training school.

GEN. PEARSON WANTS TO JOIN THE ARMY

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Further efforts were made yesterday by Gen. Gardner W. Pearson of Lowell to get the war department to accept his services and his experience in the present war, his last call of the day being made upon Asst. Sec. Crowell, in company with Representatives Rogers and Clegg.

Gen. Pearson called earlier at the ordnance and other bureaus, but learned that only men who had specialized were considered in such branches, and his hope was that Asst. Sec. Crowell might find some opening for his general military abilities, gained through 20 years of experience in Massachusetts.

It is understood that the offer of his services was taken under consideration.

PRIVATE CULL WRITES FROM CAMP UPTON

Camp Upton, June 4, 1918.

Dear John: I am just finishing dinner and have a few minutes to write myself. I thought it a good chance to pen a few lines. Of course, you understand I can't write to each individual, as much as I would like to, but I'll try to get a card to them in the near future.

The army life is fine if one wants to get right down to business and make himself agreeable. Seldom you hear anyone finding fault and altogether things move along very smoothly.

Camp Upton is situated about 60 miles southwest of New York city on Long Island. The weather so far has been very fine with the exception of a couple of thunderstorms. The days are warm and the nights cool, thus enabling us to sleep soundly—and take it from us, we can sleep.

The boys from Division 2, that is the division I was in, are all quartered in the same barracks and platoon, while the others from Lowell are in various platoons, but are members of the 6th Company, 152nd Depot Brigade. Once in a while I get homesick, but the food is so good, and the boys will not stand for anybody having the blues.

We are in uniform now and I wish some of the boys could see me—a regular "jazz" soldier. I am making the best of it and getting along very nicely. I realize I had a good time at home.

Last week was somewhat quiet owing to the fact that we were in quarantine after receiving the much-talked about needle. The inoculation, while not severe, disabled me for a couple of days, but I recovered and am now in fine trim.

The meals are excellent and many go back for "seconds." Sunday we had ice cream and lemonade, and this proved quite a treat. It seems that everybody is getting used to the menu and after working during the day you are glad to eat.

This week has started the real army life. We answer first call at 6 o'clock, have roll call at 6.15, then make our bunks, sweep and have our barracks in order. At 7 o'clock we have breakfast and then a short rest. We start the day at 7.30 and drill until 11.30. Some days we have instructions, lectures, inspections, examinations, and several other minor details. Dinner is served at 12 o'clock and we rest until 2.30. Then we start the afternoon procedure. Retreat, that is the close of the working day for drill, comes at 4 o'clock. Instructions at 4.15, then we are dismissed.

We have our own mess kits and have to keep these clean. Washing takes considerable time as we have order, especially at the inspections, and I have to keep shaved about every day.

For now I will have to call this a mile and in conclusion let me express my sincere thanks to all. With kindest personal regards, I am Very truly yours,

SOLDIER AT FORT HANKS GIVEN THIRTY-THREE YEAR TERM FOR DISLOYALTY

BOSTON, June 7.—Philip H. Grosser, a private at Fort Hanks, was sentenced to 33 years imprisonment in the disciplinary barracks at Fort Jay yesterday, having been found guilty by court martial of making disloyal remarks and encouraging disloyalty among soldiers. Army officials said Grosser claimed to be a conscientious objector.

SIGNAL CORPS GUARD AT BOSTON FIRE

BOSTON, June 7.—The fire and police departments are co-operating with federal officials in investigating the probable cause of the three-alarm fire on Sleeper street, South Boston, yesterday, which did damage of $50,000. By vigorous work the firemen kept the flames confined to the top floor of the five-story building at 15 to 21 Sleeper street, where they originated. The place is used as a storeroom for hundreds of cases filled with electric light bulbs owned by the General Electric company.

The explosion of a multitude of these bulbs during the progress of the blaze could be heard for blocks away. To protect military stores, designed for the United States Signal corps for shipment abroad and temporarily housed in the structure, a cordon of the Third battalion was hurried to the scene from Commonwealth Pier, and

TWO BAY STATE AIRMEN DOWN 18 GERMANS

PARIS, June 7.—(Havas Agency) The 12th aerial victory of Second Lieut. Frank Baylies of New Bedford, Mass., and the sixth of Sergeant David E. Putnam, of Newton, Mass., are announced by the newspapers. Both are attached to French flying squadrons.

It is reported also that Lieut. Madison has gained his 32nd victory, Captain Pensard his 19th and Second Lieut. Doyou his 14th.

William Stevenson, a farm employe of Waverly, Penn., earns only $50 a month, yet he contracted to buy $260 worth of bonds, paying $25 a month. Of the remaining $25 he needs $22.50 for board, leaving him $2.50 for spending money.

MR. ROGERS APPEALS FOR DRAFT OF ALIENS

Special to The Sun

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 7.—Congressman Rogers urged immediate action regarding draft of aliens in the house today and called attention to the fact that although the senate and house had each passed separate bills tending to that end, no bill had been passed by congress nor have pending treaties with Great Britain and Canada been ratified. Said Mr. Rogers in part:

The draft law was signed by the president May 15, 1917. Ten million men between 21 and 31 registered June 5. As I pointed out in a rather extended speech delivered in this house on July 13, over one-eighth of the number, about a million and a quarter in all, were aliens and exempt from the draft. In some states the percentage of alien registrants to total registrants was 35 or 40 per cent. Yet the quotas of these states were based on total population, although one-third or more of that population was exempted outright. The unfair and unjust drain upon the citizen population of these communities was manifest. The spectacle of the young alien stepping into the job of the drafted American was not an agreeable one. But running still deeper was the conviction of our people that the alien who had come to our shores, obtaining our protection and enjoying our freedom and prosperity, must not escape without the slightest obligation to defend the United States in its struggle for existence.

The house committee on foreign affairs on Aug. 1 unanimously reported

out a resolution which I had introduced and which had the express sanction of the president and the secretary of state. This resolution called upon the secretary of state to enter into treaties for the inclusion in our draft of the subjects of foreign countries residing in this country.

On Aug. 1 the senate unanimously passed a practically identical resolution.

On Sept. 12 the senate passed the drastic Chamberlain bill, providing for the draft of all aliens except enemy aliens and aliens protected by treaty. This resolution, upon the personal request of the secretary of state, was killed later in September by the house committee on military affairs and has never been resurrected.

On February 27, after repeated postponements requested by the secretary of state, the house passed the Burnett bill, providing deportation for the aliens who did not submit to the draft. This bill apparently is as dead as the Chamberlain bill, no action having been taken by the senate. Presumably pursuant to the action of congress of last August, the secretary of state, on Feb. 27, finally submitted to the senate drafts of treaties with Great Britain and Canada for the mutual drafting of the subjects of each country residing in the other. On March 22, two and one-half months ago, the secretary withdrew the treaties. They have not been resubmitted.

Here the story stops. Fourteen months after the declaration of war and 12 months after the enactment of the draft law nothing has been done in spite of the warranted and insistent demand of the whole country for speedy action. Millions of our men are going forth to the war, yet no alien need accompany them to defend their common country.

"How long?" Is there an end to the delay? Can it be that we can not agree with those allies by whose side we are fighting for our lives? Surely the cordial feelings between us must make possible an immediate meeting of minds. Surely each nation will gladly yield in matters of detail. Surely the nations must not in this regard appear as bargainers, each seeking its utmost advantage. The common cause is far too great to be belittled by any such attitude. Let us get together in this as in all else. RICHARDS.

TRAINING AMERICAN ARMY HERE FOR OPEN COMBAT AND PURSUIT

WASHINGTON, June 7.—American troops in training at home are being especially schooled now in preparation for the forward movement of the allied armies expected to follow the ultimate crushing of Germany's offensive power.

It was learned yesterday that orders have been issued to division commanders to lay greater stress upon training for open warfare and reduce the time devoted to teaching trench specialties.

The men are being hardened to long marches, given target practice without end and thoroughly trained to take care of themselves in the give and take of open combat.

Military observers say the change in the midst of the greatest effort of the German general staff of the entire war speaks significantly of the spirit of confidence that pervades the councils and armies of America and the allies.

When many of the men now in training here reach France, long marches and swift maneuvering against a retreating foe may well be the order of the day.

Infantry officers returning from the front have been insisting recently upon greater attention to general elements of warfare and less to the details of position fighting in fixed trench lines.

These officers say the American soldier takes naturally to training of this sort and that he should be developed as highly as possible in all-round soldiering, leaving the details of trench warfare education to be added by a brief postgraduate course when he reaches France.

This view found ready sympathy here, for it is believed the old stalemate of the trench lines has been broken, never to be restored.

Yesterday's news from the front added to the growing conviction here that Gen. Foch has outgeneraled the Germans on the Aisne front in having brought them to a halt without weakening the defenses of the channel ports.

Territory has been yielded, but no point of strategic value, and the Germans must try again to draw away the supporting lines in Picardy and Flanders or face the necessity of hurling their army into the wall of man power, French, British and American, that now blocks the road to the channel ports.

Officers who have come from the front say that the American units pouring into France in a steady and growing stream despite German U-boats at both ends of the 3000-mile water haul are arriving well advanced in training for the business ahead of them.

Commenting upon the high tributes paid by French and British officers to the Americans, it was remarked yesterday that while the movements in which the Americans have been given a chance have as yet been minor affairs proportionately, always the dash has been there. One officer recently back from the front pointed out that while French and British veterans are brave beyond words, ready for battle whenever and wherever it may come, they are cooler by long years of the struggle. The Americans are craving a chance to fight, for it is all new to them.

TO PREVENT SPREAD OF TUBERCULOSIS

BOSTON, June 7.—Isolation and confinement of incurable consumptives as a means of protecting children and preventing the spread of tuberculosis was urged by Dr. John J. Lloyd of Rochester, N. Y., in an address today before the National Anti-Tuberculosis association, which is holding its 14th annual meeting here. The infection of young children, Dr. Lloyd declared, is seriously retarding the proper limitation of the disease.

Today's sessions, divided into three parts—sociological, clinical and pathological—were taken up with addresses on the various phases of the work of the association. Dr. Allen K. Krause of Baltimore, defining tuberculosis, made the statement that practically every adult was infected with the germs of the disease, though the symptoms were not always manifest. Rest rather than exercise was prescribed for persons suffering from active tuberculosis. In an address by Dr. Hugh M. Kinghorn of Saranac Lake, N. Y.,

The greater use of fresh air in preventive and curative work was urged by Dr. Vincent Y. Bowditch of Boston who especially praised fresh air schools for consumptive children.

THIN, IRRITABLE CHILD Gained Flesh, Strength and Good Nature by Taking Vinol

Middletown, Conn.—"I used Vinol for my little girl 5 years old for a run-down, nervous condition. She was thin, irritable all the time and had no appetite. In a week I noticed an improvement and now she has a good appetite, has gained in flesh and strength and is much pleasanter to live with."—Mrs. C. B. Wilkinson.

There is no secret about Vinol—it owes its success in such cases to beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptones and glycerophosphates, the oldest and most famous body-building tonics known. KILLING GARDEN DISEASES

There are parasites that prey upon society and parasites that live upon garden plants. Do not let them eat up any of your good food, Mr. Gardener, advises the national war garden commission in today's bulletin. Most garden diseases are caused by some kind of fungus which can be controlled by spraying.

Fungus diseases are fought with remedies called fungicides. The best all-purpose fungicide is Bordeaux mixture, which has been used for many years in fighting many kinds of diseases. This is the formula for ten quarts of it: Copper sulphate or blue stone, three ounces; lump lime or fresh hydrate lime, three ounces; water, ten quarts.

You can procure copper sulphate from a druggist or seedman, and lime from a seedman or a lumber or a coal dealer. Dissolve the copper sulphate in two quarts of hot water in a wooden bucket or earthen jar, or if you plan ahead just tie it in a piece of cloth and hang it just below the surface of a quart or two of water. It will dissolve slowly and settle to the bottom. If you put it at the bottom of the cold water it will not dissolve. Dilute this to five quarts with water. Slack the lump lime and pour on enough water to make five quarts. If you have hydrate lime, just mix it into the five quarts of water. Now pour the copper sulphate slowly into the lime water and stir with a paddle while doing so. This is Bordeaux mixture. It is a good plan to slack a couple of pounds of lime in the spring so as to have it on hand when wanted. It will keep for many months if you have water over it so it cannot dry out.

Bordeaux may be used with poison so as to kill both diseases and biting insects at one time, and with nicotine sulphate so as to kill diseases and sucking insects at one time. Do not make up more Bordeaux at one time than you will spray within a day or two, because it will not keep long. The prepared Bordeaux is effective, but more expensive than the homemade brand. Any reader of this paper who has not yet received a copy of the free war garden primer should do so immediately by writing to the national war garden commission of Washington, and enclosing a two-cent stamp for postage.

ACTRESS SOLVES MAKE-UP PROBLEM

This celebrated American actress has exceptional talent for playing juvenile roles, but for many years it was necessary for her to exercise the most painstaking care in her make-up, because her hair was so streaked with gray that it was noticeable across the "footlights"; and dyes are in bad taste, giving the hair that objectionable dyed look.

The problem of making up for juvenile parts was simplified for this noted actress recently when she began to use Q-Ban Hair Color Restorer, which completely removed the gray streaks and fully restored the natural dark color of her hair, which now glitters with health and beauty. It is no longer necessary for her to resort to dyes or wear a wig on the stage.

ANNOUNCES AWARDS IN TWO LABOR DISPUTES

BOSTON, June 7.—Findings in labor troubles at the West Boylston Manufacturing Company at Easthampton and the Edison Electric Light Company were announced yesterday by Executive Manager Henry B. Endicott of the Massachusetts committee on public safety and state food administrator. On the case of the former company, work had been halted because of the inability of the company and its employees to come to an understanding. As the company is making duck for important war work, Mr. Endicott's good offices were requested by Secretary of War Baker.

Mr. Endicott undertook the arbitration with the understanding that the employees should return to work immediately, which was done, and Mr. Endicott went to Easthampton rather than ask the principals to come to Boston. Mr. Endicott in this case decides on an increase of 12-1/2 per cent. for weavers, who had asked for an advance of 33 per cent., and 30 cents additional compensation while working overtime up to 9 o'clock, in addition to the regular piecework payment. Mr. Endicott refused their petition for 25 cents an hour in the event of a loom standing idle more than an hour. The company agrees to install a proper system for tagging imperfections in cloth. He does not think it advisable that the mills should be required to become a union shop, but decides that there shall be no discrimination against any of the committee for this cause.

To the spinners Mr. Endicott grants a 10 per cent. advance and agrees with them that they shall not be required to do overtime, except in connection with the weekly cleaning. They had asked for a 25 per cent. increase. The cloth quilters are given 10 per cent. advances. Spool tenders are given 10 per cent. increase and are to receive 20-1/2 cents for each hour they remain unemployed through no fault of their own.

In the Edison case, the operators are not given an advance, but will receive time and a half for overtime as against

WILD REPORT THAT GERMAN CROWN PRINCE AND 80,000 HUNS WERE CAPTURED

BOSTON, June 7.—All previous erroneous reports regarding misthreats alleged to have befallen the German crown prince, Friedrich Wilhelm, were outdone in persistence by a report yesterday that the crown prince and 80,000 of his force had been captured by the allies. There was no truth in the report.

CIRCUS WELL PATRONIZED BY LOWELL PEOPLE

Thousands of Lowell people journeyed to the Fair Grounds yesterday, thousands partook of the enjoyments thereon and thousands returned to their homes, wearied but well satisfied with their 1918 visit to that modern wonder—the circus.

Barnum & Bailey's melange exhibited at the well known stamping grounds yesterday afternoon and evening and the "big show" had most of the features of past years with many innovations. The combined total of the people who witnessed each performance was estimated at between 15,000 and 20,000, which means that the Barnum & Bailey management were not altogether empty-handed when they left town last evening.

There were all the introductory and extraneous attractions on the midway that led to the main tent. The side-show barkers were just as convincingly vociferous as ever, the red lemmons were as blushing shaded, and there were just as many steaming "dogs."

The menagerie had its usual quota of animals arranged around the tent that led to the circus itself and the hairy lions, fierce tigers and gaping giraffes had all their old-time fascination.

The big show itself opened with "Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp," a Chinese pageant that outshone any circus "openers" previously seen here. It was full of action and elaborated the well known story of the magic lamp. There are characters galore with all the dazzling costumes and graceful dancing so characteristic of these affairs.

The masters of the rings and trapeze were next on the program and although there were few young men performers in comparison with other years, nevertheless, the veterans were as agile as ever and there seemed to be a large number of young women performers, every one of them well worth looking at.

The riding was up to its customary standard and one of the clown performers overshadowed almost everything in the line of horseback riding that Lowell people have ever seen. This particular individual was at home in any position on the animals

BOSTON, June 7.—Findings in labor troubles at the West Boylston Manufacturing Company at Easthampton and the Edison Electric Light Company were announced yesterday by Executive Manager Henry B. Endicott of the Massachusetts committee on public safety and state food administrator. On the case of the former company, work had been halted because of the inability of the company and its employees to come to an understanding. As the company is making duck for important war work, Mr. Endicott's good offices were requested by Secretary of War Baker.

Mr. Endicott undertook the arbitration with the understanding that the employees should return to work immediately, which was done, and Mr. Endicott went to Easthampton rather than ask the principals to come to Boston. Mr. Endicott in this case decides on an increase of 12-1/2 per cent. for weavers, who had asked for an advance of 33 per cent., and 30 cents additional compensation while working overtime up to 9 o'clock, in addition to the regular piecework payment. Mr. Endicott refused their petition for 25 cents an hour in the event of a loom standing idle more than an hour. The company agrees to install a proper system for tagging imperfections in cloth. He does not think it advisable that the mills should be required to become a union shop, but decides that there shall be no discrimination against any of the committee for this cause.

To the spinners Mr. Endicott grants a 10 per cent. advance and agrees with them that they shall not be required to do overtime, except in connection with the weekly cleaning. They had asked for a 25 per cent. increase. The cloth quilters are given 10 per cent. advances. Spool tenders are given 10 per cent. increase and are to receive 20-1/2 cents for each hour they remain unemployed through no fault of their own.

In the Edison case, the operators are not given an advance, but will receive time and a half for overtime as against back and no matter what pace the horse undertook, the rider was ever able to adapt himself to it. The statue horses were exceedingly pretty to look at.

The animal acts were also fine. Ponderous elephants performed perfectly skated and played baseball with all the abandon of human beings. In fact all the animals were up to their usual mark.

The clowns were once more the centre of much attention. They introduced a lot of new "stuff" and this in combination with the old standbys never failed to bring out roars.

It was a satisfying, generous and enjoyable performance and all the good traditions of the circus were lived up to by the Barnum & Bailey people.

SEN. LODGE DEFENDS U. S. NAVY SAYS BRAGS INVITED U-BOATS

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Complete conference in the measures taken by the navy to deal with submarine raiders was expressed in the senate yesterday by spokesmen on both sides of the chamber. Senator Lewis of Illinois, democratic whip, and Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, republican, joined in declaring that the navy was on the alert and ready for the enemy.

Different Theories
These expressions came in the midst of a sharp debate precipitated by the reading by Senator Brandegee of Connecticut of a newspaper editorial criticizing the navy department for not warning shipping of the presence of the submarines. Commenting on this, Senators Lewis and Lodge agreed there was no complaint against the navy, though they had very different theories as to what possibly drew the submarines to American shores. Senator Lewis said the attack was invited by false statements in congress and elsewhere regarding the nation's preparedness; while the Massachusetts senator suggested that "loose brags and boasts" about the number of American troops transported overseas had contributed to the appearance of the raiders.

In connection with the warning of shipping, Acting Secretary Roosevelt disclosed yesterday that a radio message was sent broadcast by the navy more than a week ago informing all shipping and shore stations that enemy submarines might appear at any point along the Atlantic coast. At that time the news that the enemy had attacked schooners off the Virginia capes had not reached the department and Mr. Roosevelt declined to discuss how the navy received the information upon which the warning was based.

Picked Up U-Boat Radios
Steamers and all craft in port received the message. Slow moving sailing vessels without wireless, however, had to take their chances in ignorance until they made port.

The fact that naval radio stations general times recently have picked up unintelligible radio impulses, believed now to have come from the raiders themselves, was also revealed. They were too indistinct to be read. In view of later developments it appears likely that the enemy craft themselves heard the warning of their presence sent out.

Senator Lodge, in defending the navy, said in part:
"I shall not occupy the attention of the senate long and my purpose in rising is not to make an attack on any other American citizen or any party or to charge them with inviting Germany to come over here with her submarines. If I were disposed to do it, I might say that nothing has so stimulated and invited Germany as loose brags and boasts about the number of troops we are transporting to France."
"Germany has not been invited here by any attacks made upon the American navy because if there have been any attacks made upon the navy I for one have not heard them or seen them and I have followed the subject with extreme closeness for I am deeply interested in it owing to my somewhat long service on the committee on naval affairs."
"I shall not occupy the attention of the senate long and my purpose in rising is not to make an attack on any other American citizen or any party or to charge them with inviting Germany to come over here with her submarines. If I were disposed to do it, I might say that nothing has so stimulated and invited Germany as loose brags and boasts about the number of troops we are transporting to France."

Taken Every Precaution
"What I wish to say is that the navy and the navy department have taken every precaution that human foresight could suggest so far as I am able to judge and I have examined their preparations with as much intelligence and care as I could give the matter. The navy and navy department have necessarily anticipated a submarine attack from the very beginning of the war. They have had it constantly in their minds. They have tried to make every preparation to meet it. I think they have."

"It would be most injurious for me to stand here and follow down the map of the coast and tell the senate and the public exactly what these preparations are, tell them where the submarine chasers are, where the destroyers are, where the signal stations are, what arrangements they have made for meeting the danger when it came, as they were sure it would come. No human mind possibly can tell when out of the great waste of waters of the Atlantic ocean a submarine, which travels by night and submerges by day, will appear. As soon as the navy had any authentic news to indicate the presence of submarines on this coast they acted. That is all that I feel at liberty to say in a general way."

Submarines From Europe
Senator Fall developed a line of explanation from Senator Lodge as to the beliefs of the naval authorities as to the possibility of the German navy having a base on the western shore of the Atlantic. Senator Lodge replied:
"These submarines, of course, in the first instance came from Europe. They are believed to be, I think correctly, submarines of a very large type built by Germany. It is understood from the best information that can be obtained that these vessels, some of them—they are very few as yet—have a steaming radius of over 6000 miles. If that is correct, by boarding their fuel and sharing it as much as possible they would have some latitude in point of time; but of course there must come a moment when they must seek a base. It must either be a base on shore where oil and other supplies are provided or it must be a mother ship."

"It is possible that they have received oil smuggled out of this country on some vessel. It could not be done, I should suppose, more than once. It is highly improbable that they have any base on the coast of the United States or of Canada because the land patrol and the sea patrol are almost as absolutely complete as they can be made."

"We have a patrol along the coast which is composed chiefly of what is known as the life-saving service or coast guard as it is now known. We also have an organized system for procuring information from fishermen and others on the coast, extending from Maine to the Gulf. These sources of information were organized and in operation through the navy department at least two years before we entered the war so I believe that so far as our own coast are concerned the chances of a base there are almost negligible."

"The chances of a base in the West Indies are very small. I do not like to go into all the details, but I think it will suggest itself to senators if they will consider the different islands beginning with the lower end of the Lesser Antilles, possessions of France and England, and coming up to the islands which we either control or are interested in, ending with Cuba, where we have a great naval base at Guantanamo."

"There remains, of course, the possibility of a base in the Gulf of Mexico, on Mexican territory."

cause the land patrol and the sea patrol are almost as absolutely complete as they can be made. The land never came into possession of the league. Its existence was regarded as a myth by officers of the league. Mrs. Rose H. Kahn, his mother, said at the time that her son "must have made a mistake," as he owned "no such quantity as that."

Mrs. Kahn denied in 1912 assertions of her son that he was a cousin of Otto H. Kahn, the banker. As for the story that he was a lineal descendant of Sir Moses Montefiore, she said:
"His name is Montefiore, and we always gave him the impression he was descended from Sir Moses. As a matter of fact, he is not."

When Kahn arrived on a Scandinavian-American line steamship, May 26, and was detained by the authorities, he described himself as connected with a New York exporting house. He left America for Russia, by way of San Francisco, a year ago. He had been under suspicion as a German agent.

of educational literature and exhibits. Four of these are already in action. The lectures, exhibits and other public meetings being held in various parts of France are being attended by thousands of people, asserted Dr. Miller. The whole country is awakening to the fact that tuberculosis is a serious menace and that American efforts to arouse community responsibility in the control of this disease may well be copied in France.

BOSTON BOYS WHO CAME TO LOWELL WERE GATHERED IN BY THE POLICE

Thomas Aslan, aged 14 years, and Manuel Demole, aged 13 years, both of Boston, are troubled with wanderlust and yesterday took a journey to this city. About 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon they attracted the attention of Sgt. Maguire and Patrolman Linnane who, after questioning the pair, sent them to the police station where they were kept until their parents, who had been notified, called for them and took them back to Boston.

TANKER DAMAGED BY MINE RE-FLOATED

PHILADELPHIA, June 7.—With the Stars and Stripes waving gallantly from her stern, the American tanker Herbert L. Pratt, damaged by a mine off the Delaware capes last Monday, arrived at her dock here yesterday and at once began unloading her cargo of oil that a German submarine was unable to send to the bottom of the ocean. The only outward evidences of her experience were patches of fresh black paint on her bow and furniture and other fittings scattered about the deck to dry. Members of the crew said the Pratt had received wireless warnings to be on the lookout for submarines, and a sharp watch was kept. As the Pratt was heading in toward the capes there was a terrific explosion under the bow. This was at 3.25 p. m. The tanker immediately began to settle by the head and the ship's four lifeboats were sent over the side. Three of them, filled with members of the crew, started to row away but when it was found the tanker was not sinking rapidly they were called back and the ship put full speed for shallow water and struck on a shoal. The explosion occurred about nine miles from shore.

Shipping men regard the quick raising of the tanker's bow as a fine piece of wrecking work.

SAYS AIR RAIDS ON NEW YORK ARE POSSIBLE

LONDON, June 7.—The announcement that the police commissioner of New York had issued instructions to citizens as to their conduct in case hostile air raids are made over the city, has aroused much interest in London. Naval men declare that German air raids on New York are not wildly improbable.

It was reported two years ago that Germany was constructing submarine seaplane carriers, and it was suggested that one of the airplane raider on the British east coast was carried out with the aid of such craft.

With the coming of the submarine cruiser, it is considered to be no difficult matter to transport a seaplane for carrying out raids, not on a formidable scale, but on a scale picturesque enough to have distinct psychological value from the point of view of the German admiralty.

UNIFIED SUPPORT OF WAR

Before the war there was a feeling abroad that the United States could not conduct a great war successfully because of the wide distribution of power among the people. The idea prevailed that no democracy could stand the test of a great war successfully. Well, we think that this doubt has been removed.

President Wilson has ample power to conduct the war as he pleases and what is better, the people are behind him. With the various steps in the progress of the war came a unification of sympathy and it has been growing more perfect until the present hour.

Looking back over the long list of events crowded into one short year, the average citizen must feel astonished at what has been accomplished and in all there is nothing more gratifying than the unanimity of the support loyally given to the government in its prosecution of the war.

If there ever was at any time a lack of enthusiasm in the war in this country, it has been completely overcome by the visit of the submarines. In the early days of the war, before we entered the conflict, there was difference of opinion and divided sympathies. There were pro-German elements who did not conceal their sentiments, but after our declaration of war, that was largely changed, except among enemy aliens.

It may be said that at the present moment the spirit of the nation is magnificent. Even the croakers have been silenced and now the whole people seem to be thoroughly united in the determination to win the war. And how could it be otherwise since the nation's liberties are threatened? We see what German militarism is—the most barbarous form of human butchery—all done according to the Kaiser's blasphemous claim with the sanction and assistance of the Most High.

When addressing a portion of his army last week, the only consolation the Kaiser could give his people in reference to the present drive was, that vast stretches of the most beautiful regions of France had been reduced to a hideous desert. To such a depth of barbarity have the German people fallen that nothing will so buoy them up as an account of some form of brutality practised upon some other people. Not the young or old, the sick or wounded, the babe in arms or the man or woman bending with the weight of years, can win any sympathy from the Germans and hence they transfuse the child on a bayonet or bomb a base hospital with a spirit of ghastly glee comparable only to the ferocity with which a wild beast devours his prey.

Every country that has fallen under the control of Germany has been subjected to the utmost cruelty and extortion as witness Belgium, Rumania, Serbia, the Ukraine and Poland. Even Finland that has excused the cause of the central powers is held in military subjection to the Kaiser's sway and so with Austria, Turkey and Bulgaria. The aims of Germany have been found out in so many different ways that there is now no doubt as to her ambition not only to rule but to oppress the world.

This nation is therefore fighting for its own liberties first and next to save the world from slavery. The freedom of the United States, the freedom of oppressed nations and the protection of humanity from such chains as the German militarists must impose, surely offer sufficient inspiration to every friend of freedom to stand by the Allied cause until the Kaiser's power is broken and the world saved from threatened thralldom and made safe for democracy.

FOCH, "THE BIG BOSS"

The Italians—influenced by devil-made rumors—were still retreating before their German-Austrian "Kamraden." Then British and French troops poured into Italy, commanded by Foch. At once the Italians began to make some sort of a stand. An Italian boy soldier loaded down with a heavy bag of supplies was climbing a steep path. No horse or automobile could make it; everything must go on men's backs. The young Italian was very tired. The load was too much for him, but he kept plugging ahead. He heard footsteps. A brisk old man dressed in the horizon blue of France came up beside him.

"Pretty heavy load for you, son," said the old Frenchman, speaking Italian.

"Ouf, m'sieu," answered the son of Italy, speaking French to be courteous. "Let me give you a hand," said the old French soldier, and he seized the heavy bag and threw it over his own shoulders, and the sons of the two old Latin nations kept climbing. After a time the man in horizon blue said, "Let's rest a minute," and they sat down beside the path.

Soon some Italian general staff officers appeared—one of them being on the king's personal staff. Of course the two soldiers by the roadside came to their feet to salute the high officers. But the Italian officer stopped. "The one who belonged to the king's personal staff calculated one word. 'Foch!'"

"That's who it was—Foch, 'Le Patron,' which is French for 'the Boss.'" common human being. But it didn't leave him. He didn't forget that he is Le Patron. He saluted the Italian high officers stiffly, threw the bag on his shoulders again, and with the Italian boy soldier beside him protesting volubly, those two started up the path again.

Pretty safe sort of a man, Foch, eh? Pretty good sort to have in charge of our boys who go "over there." The man who has human sympathy and the willingness to do small things as well as the ability to do mighty things will win the war.

What a contrast between the kind hearted Foch and the bloody Hindenburg or Kaiser!

BOYS CALLED TO WAR

He was speaking about the young men just called upon to register for service "over there," our boys who have passed their twenty-first birthday since their older brothers registered for the same high purpose last June. And this is what the man said: "They're too young. They're just boys. First thing, boys under 21 will be called."

It wasn't that he was opposed to conscripting men for war service, for he went on to say that it would be better if men over 21 were taken. He hadn't looked at it from the right angle, that's all. He hadn't stopped to think that—

Boys of 21 usually have fewer dependents than men over 31.

That they seldom are as firmly fixed in their life occupation.

That they are healthier, can better stand hardships and therefore it is more probable that they will return after they have done their bit.

Boys, more than men, crave the excitement of adventure, and find it most abundantly and most gloriously "over there."

This is not the first time that boys have gone to war. Indeed our boys saw more youthful faces in the ranks, mere children, who today, would never get by the recruiting officer. Official records of the U. S. war department show that 2,159,798 boys under 22 years of age fought in the northern army alone during the Civil war. Over 800,000 of these blue-uniformed warriors were 16 and under, and over a million were 18 and under.

The boys would respond if we needed them, but the draft law very wisely passes them by at least for the present. The nation should put the age up to 34 before putting it down under 21. The European countries engaged in the war are calling men of 18 and in some cases boys of 16, but let us hope it will never be necessary in this country.

John McCormick having finished up a $100,000 tour for the benefit of the Red Cross during which he has held his audience enthralled with "The Long Long Trail" and "Keep the Flame Fires Burning," both of which he includes in all of his programs, is now off on a new $100,000 search for the Knights of Columbus war fund. It is certain that Mr. McCormick would rather put his great earnings into these noble funds than to buy houses and pictures with them.—Holyoke Transcript.

It is to be hoped McCormick will come to Lowell on his tour for the Knights of Columbus campaign. He would get a splendid reception as indicated by the box office receipts.

HELPING THE CAUSE

Most every schoolchild in America is a member of the Thrift Stamp army. They are trying to help their big brothers "over there" win the war by providing the money with which the government may buy guns, food and ammunition for our fighters.

These little boys and girls are enrolled as privates in the Thrift Stamp army when they have sold a certain number of stamps and are promoted as their sales mount upward. They are encouraged to go from house to house and to consider every American as a possible customer. This is fine for the youngsters. It teaches them salesmanship and it enables them to help with the nation's war work.

They will ring many a doorbell in their quest for Thrift Stamp customers. And days will come when many a housewife will go several times to her front door to meet these youthful patriots. Many a person will be asked over and over again, "Mister, do you want to buy a Thrift Stamp?"

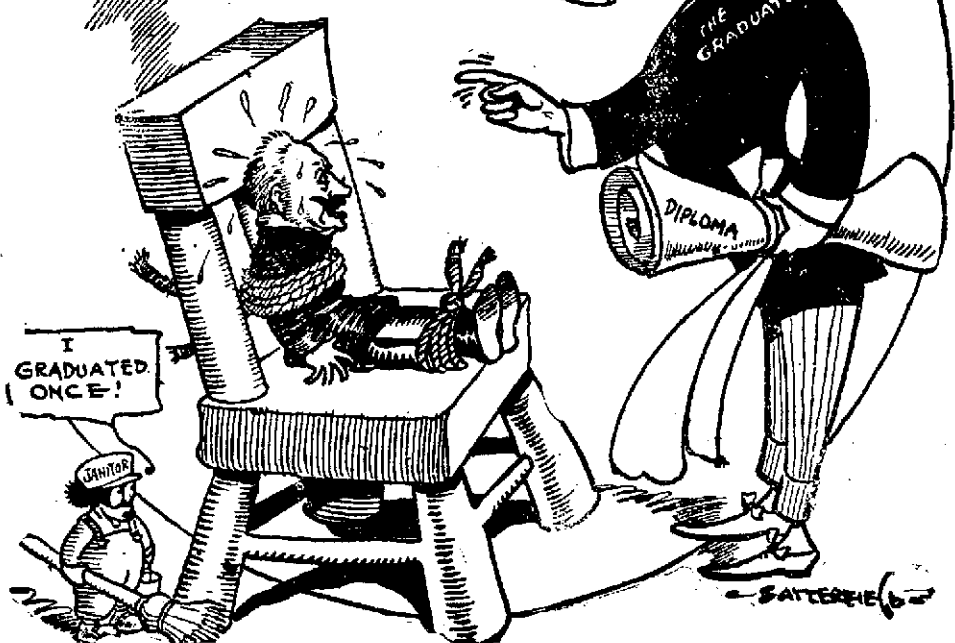

It may grow tiresome to answer the often repeated question. It may often interfere with one's household duties. But—let us never forget that the children are doing this for their country and yours, not for profit! If we must refuse to purchase a stamp—and we cannot buy from all much as we would like, let our answers be kindly, given with a smiling appreciation of the children's efforts.

This will we encourage them. They are miniature editions of fine Americans. Treat them cordially.

NO DAY LOAFERS

The fact that we have few people idle in our city was made apparent yesterday during the circus parade. At no time in late years has a big parade been viewed by such a small crowd. The people are all working, and only those employed near the route of parade in addition to the youngsters, the housewives and those who work in the stores, were out to see the biggest show on earth. This clearly indicates that the people of Lowell are practically all engaged in the workshops and factories. There was no time to see the street pageant but a big crowd turned out to the performance in the evening and apparently enjoyed it to the limit.

SEEN AND HEARD

Partnership between hoes and hose will do much to make the war garden 100 per cent. efficient.

The Toronto Globe remarks that Americans have often journeyed to Europe about this time of the year, but never before in such a steady, staid way stream and for such a splendid purpose.

Always Tell the Truth

A demure-looking chap hailed a Hingham coast steamer with the query: "Have you got coal in your wagon?" "Yes sir," said the driver, stopping his horse. "That's right," observed the demure chap with an approving nod; "always tell the truth, and people will respect you," and he hurried on much to the disgust of the driver, who was scrambling for a piece of coal.

His Destination

"And are you bound for France?" I said. "To one in khaki dressed. His face was brown, his hair was red; he had a bulging chest. He turned and stared. Then said, 'Who Me?' 'Why, I am bound for Germany.'"

"But first," I said, "you'll have to go to England or to France. There feel the warmth of friendship's glow. Tradition and romance." "That would be fine of course; but me, I want to get to Germany."

—New York Sun.

Full of Resource

Representative McLenore said the other day at a dinner in Washington: "Our American resourcefulness and knack of getting things done is going to shine out in this war. Look how our commanding officers deal with the French hotels that overcharge our soldiers. They just, sen-tries at the door to explain to our men that the place is 'out of bounds.' That soon brings the hotel to reason. 'We're a resourceful nation. An American girl in Paris once halted her millionaire father before a jeweler's shop in the Rue de la Paix, and pointed to a tiara surmounted by a coronet."

"Pa, buy me that," she said. "Buy you that?" her father chuckled. "Why, girlie, you've got to be a duchess to wear that." "The girl tossed her head. "You buy it," she said. "I'll find the duke." —Detroit Free Press.

Warm Welcome

Capt. Norman Thwaites of the British intelligence department said in New York the other day: "The sugar shortage is felt keenly over the water. It's odd how you miss your sugar over there. You long for it as you'd long for tobacco."

"A Baywater special constable hurried home from his beat at the Marble Arch the other evening to be present on a very interesting occasion, and as he sat in his library in the small hours the nurse came to him and said:

"It's all right, sir."

"The Baywater man swallowed; he mistook his dry lips; then he asked: "Is it a boy?"

"The nurse smiled soothingly. "One of our's a boy, sir," she said. "And the Baywater man, instead of turning pale or smothering an oath, as he'd probably done in peace time, uttered a glad cry of joy.

"Thank heaven," he exclaimed, "that gives us two extra sugar rations." —Washington Star.

Save The Tin Foil

A real war-time saving is that of tin-foil and collapsible tin tubes in wide use for dentifrices, paints and other materials. This is saving without false economy—the regeneration of material which would otherwise be lost. All tin foil and empty tubes should be made into a ball by the individual or family. It does not take long to accumulate a mass of this material of baseball size, and such a ball will often yield two pounds and upward of pure tin on melting. It is estimated that the average family throws away at least one pound of tin annually, a national waste of 10,000 tons.

In ordinary times the difficulty of gathering tin-foil and like discarded material does not always justify conservation, as new tin is less expensive than the work of collecting from millions of individuals. In war time, however, every pound of tin is urgently needed, regardless of the cost of collection.

Balls of tin-foil gathered by the individual may be turned over to local charities for sale in bulk when sufficient has been accumulated. Tin-foil saving is very effective when organized in hotels, clubs and other places where waste-baskets yield large quantities monthly.—Weekly Bulletin.

High For One Bath

Inasmuch as one can use the Atlantic ocean around Coney Island for bathing at a cost of 50 cents, Joe Hernandez was justified in a slight bathing protest that developed at No. 225 East Twenty-third street, New York. In his case the use of a bath tub in medium size cost him upward of 750 highly prized dollars. He screamed once, and as a result Chester Pike and John Gonos, who live on the banks of the bath tub, are now receiving their mail at the Jefferson Market jail.

According to the somewhat loud and fragmentary evidence of Mr. Hernandez, he has been in New York six days, which he regards as what is technically known as a plenty. On Saturday he checked in at the boarding house at the address given and, as he declared in court, he found it for four days all that his adventure had promised. It was quiet, cool, comfortable, cleanly and not costly.

Just where Mr. Hernandez left his trousers containing the $750 during his first three baths he does not recall, but he is sure that he did not take them into the tub. On the day of the tragedy, though, he recalls clearly that he left them sitting cross-legged on a chair in his own room. After his bath he returned to find them sprawled boisterously across the chair, with pockets inside out and key ring pointing sou' by southwest. With one deft search he learned the worst, and his cry was heard from river to river.

Policeman Hoover, of the West Twentieth street station, arrived three stairs at a time, and after hearing all seized John Gonos and Chester Pike, fellow boarders. Pike said he had $105 which Gonos had given him for safe keeping, and Pike led the policeman to the cellar of the boarding house, where $650 more was found behind a crate of bottles. The policeman then took the lead, and the line of march was east and south to the Jefferson Market court, where Magistrate Simpson held the demons of the bath in $1500 bail each.

The Movie Reporter

The movies are getting better! The other night I saw a film with a movie newspaper reporter in it who almost looked like a regular reporter. He didn't wear stiff cuffs and write the scoop on them. He didn't wear a shirt with zebra stripes. He didn't wear a trick suit with fancy vest. He didn't have spats, wear an Arabian bazaar necktie or carry a cane. He didn't smoke a cigar in an ivory holder, and sport a splashy band straw hat. On the back of his head, his hair wasn't marcelled. He wasn't always grinning. Showing his pearly teeth. And he didn't carry a revolver. Nope, this movie reporter looked like a Regular guy. It's about Time the movies woke up. Reporters are a different animal than the chorus men. They make of them in the movies.

11 AMERICANS AWARDED D. S. C.

Decorated for Gallantry in Action
—Many Instances of Individual
Bravery and Heroism

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Thursday, June 6 (By the Associated Press).—The Distinguished Service Cross has been awarded to the following officers and men of the American Expeditionary Forces:

Lieutenants George S. Redwood and Christian S. Holmes, Sergeant James A. Murphy, Corporals Ernest Burch and Henry J. Mongeay, Privates Edward Armstrong, Bernhard S. Rolt and Carson L. Shuman, Captain C. Raymond Hulst, Lieutenant Paul McCloud and Second Lieutenant Donald Moosac.

The last three are railway engineers and won their crosses for their gallantry in the fight on Nov. 30 southwest of Cambrai, when the American engineers assisted the British in withstanding a German attack.

Lieutenant Redwood and four members of his company, Corporal Mongeay and Privates Armstrong, Holt and Shuman got into a portion of an enemy trench and were surrounded by a party of double their number. They drove off the enemy and made their way back to the American lines with four prisoners. Lieutenant Holmes "led a patrol and displayed extraordinary coolness and daring in cutting 12 strands of enemy wire in front of a listening post, and crawling through. There he leaped upon a sentinel and brought him back through No Man's Land. Sergeant Murphy aided in the exploit and "with coolness and nerve, killed one of the sentinels who had fired on Holmes."

of the Junior Red Cross on Saturday, June 8th, at 2.30 o'clock in Edison hall, Kirk street (St. Anne's Parish hall). A delightful entertainment has been prepared by the girls, who are going to be assisted by some well known talented friends, and the matinee bids fair to be a success.

FAIR JOAN OF ARC RESCUES LOST BOY AT THE BIG CIRCUS YESTERDAY

He wanted to see the circus. He was 11 years old. Maybe that was why he wanted to see the circus. But he didn't see the circus.

Yesterday afternoon he was wandering about the Fair grounds, wondering, as it were, he saw everything that could be seen outside the canvas walls and then he decided to go home. But his home was a great distance from the Fair grounds. You went down that street outside—but he was in the midst of tents and stands and had lost his way. "That street" was not visible from the labyrinth of structures where he stood. He was lost.

Unable to speak English he wandered around aimlessly for a while, and then the seriousness of his plight dawned upon him and he expressed this by the universal method. He wept—bitterly.

Then came the rescue. A fair Joan of Arc appeared on the scene. In unromantic, everyday life, she is a music teacher. But yesterday she was a

There were many instances of individual bravery and heroism in the successful attack of the American marines in the Chateau-Thierry sector, today. Many of the Americans who were wounded refused to leave the fight on that account.

Sergeant J. L. Dulworth of Kansas City was captured by the Germans Monday night while dazed from a blow on the head from a rifle butt. A German was dragging him away when he regained consciousness. He hit the German on the jaw and escaped.

"I was not going to be the first American captured on this sector," Sergeant Dulworth said. "The Dutchman looked more scared than I, so I biffed him. Now I've got to get back and get me a Dutchman to make up for the lump on my head."

The sergeant took part in the fighting today. Private Charles Ginsberg, a former New York newsboy, but whose home is now in Washington, Ga., captured a German in a shell hole. He searched the German for hidden weapons and when he came upon photographs of the prisoner's two children, the German wanted to fight. The prisoner was allowed to keep the photographs.

An American corporal found himself behind the German lines two days ago. By keeping himself hidden and crawling a foot at a time, he reached the American line during the height of today's battle and in time to take part in the victory.

chivalrous saviour in the eyes of the young man who couldn't find his way home. She took him to Engine I fire station in Gorham street, and Engineer James W. Jantzen gave the boy something to eat and endeavored to discover where he lived.

Police headquarters was notified and Officer Fred Gilmore of the Humana society was sent out on the case. By deductive methods, Officer Gilmore found out that the young adventurer lived in Aiken street and he took him home.

Now we come to another interesting phase of this rare romance. The young man has a brother in the navy. Brother was home yesterday on a short leave of absence, and was very eager to see his young brother before going back to duty. Extensive searching failed to bring him and the navy man was about to give up when the prodigal son walked in, somewhat disconsolate but very happy to see his big senior brother.

Thus do the ponderous organizations of a great city unbend themselves to the needs of the youngest individual. And the young man who didn't see the circus promised that he would begin taking music lessons at once and that he would never again go to a circus without his big brother accompanying him.

Girl workers in German factories are getting $1.20 in cash out of their wages weekly, and are compelled to use the rest to buy war bonds.

BIG TRACK MEET ON SO. COMMON TOMORROW

Everything is in readiness for the big track meet to be held on the South common tomorrow afternoon, under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. Athletic club, and Physical Director Fred Flynn feels confident that the meet will be a big success. During the past few days entries have been pouring into the headquarters and about all the good older path men in the city have signified their intention of competing. There will be events for all, and suitable prizes will be awarded the winners. The collection of prizes is one of the best ever assembled for a local meet, and all are well worth winning. Fred Flynn, the well known long distance runner, is one of the last men to send in his entrance blank. Lynch, Curry, Richards and Sullivan, all clever performers, will also appear. Many others, whose names have been previously published will be in line when the signal is given to start at 2 o'clock.

Special races have been arranged for the local grammar schools, and these promise to be very interesting. The meet is open to all athletes in and around Lowell and weather permitting a great afternoon of track events is promised.

After the meet there will be a ball game.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

The Kimball's will play the South Lawrence A.A. on the South common Saturday afternoon.

LOWELL AND LAWRENCE AT SPALDING PARK

Lowell high baseball team will play the last home game of the season tomorrow afternoon, when Captain Mansur's men will line up against the strong Lawrence academy nine at Spalding park. At the beginning of the season the Groton team was ranked with the best in the state. Later in the season the "work on the farm movement" was started and some of the academy's best ball players were called. The team was somewhat disrupted for this reason. Nevertheless, the season's schedule was not cancelled and the private school has rounded out a well balanced team that will give Lowell a good tussle. The game will be a preliminary contest for the biggest game of the season when Lowell goes to Lawrence next Tuesday afternoon to settle the tie existing between the two nine as a result of Lowell winning Wednesday's game at Spalding park. It is understood that there are a number of former Lowell high ball players in the ranks of Lawrence academy this year.

RIFLES ENOUGH FOR ARMY OF 2,000,000

WASHINGTON, June 7.—More than 1,500,000 rifles have been produced for the United States army since the country entered the war, says an announcement last night by the war department of this number. In addition to the modified Enfields, 178,736 Springfield models of 1903, and 351,270 Russian rifles.

"Besides the rifles made since war was declared," said the announcement, "there are 600,000 Springfield models of 1903 in use. Only about one-half the soldiers in an army carry rifles. On this basis the ordnance department has enough rifles, Springfield and modified Enfields, for an army of about 2,000,000 men, allowing wastage for the year."

Last week's production was placed at 35,641 rifles. In addition to the rifles completed, there is the equivalent of 100,000 Enfields and 100,000 Springfield made up in spare parts since the declaration of war.

All the rifles and spare parts with the exception of the Russian rifles, go into the hands of soldiers going overseas. The Russian rifles are used for training purposes and equipping the home guard.

PREDICTS CATASTROPHE IN GERMANY

AMSTERDAM, June 7.—Allegations that the German censorship is growing more stringent were made at the opening sitting of the reichstag on Tuesday, by Baron von Reichenberg of the Centrist party, and Deputy Bauer, a socialist.

Matters were growing continually worse, Deputy Bauer said, and the censorship increasingly had placed itself in the service of the "just of course," even meetings for equal suffering being forbidden, although this aims coincided with government policy.

The feeling among the people was becoming ever more exasperated, the deputy added. He complained that while the pacifists were harassed, the annexationist politicians were encouraged, and he declared that this policy of force at home would inevitably lead to a catastrophe.

Secretary of the Interior Wallatraf gave figures intended to prove the impartiality of the censorship, especially in the matter of newspaper prohibition. He declared that after an examination of the demands made by the reichstag in regard to the censorship, the government would be unable to adopt them.

JOHN H. SPARKS WRITES FROM "OVER THERE"

Hon. John H. Sparks of this city, who at the present time is actively engaged in field work for the Knights of Columbus in France, is enjoying the best of health, and despite the fact that he is working from 7 o'clock in the morning until 11 o'clock at night, he greatly enjoys the work. This morning his brother, Dr. J. H. Sparks, received two very interesting letters from John, one of which was dated May 17 and the other May 22.

John writes in a very descriptive manner of his five days in Paris and some of the sights he saw. At present he is stationed at Bordeaux, France, and expects to stay there for some time. He says his quarters are very nice, and that in fact all of the Knights of Columbus huts are well fitted out and are patronized by large numbers of soldiers. On the second floor is a large veranda overlooking one of the main thoroughfares and when he has a few minutes to spare he sits himself on the veranda.

He writes that while there is considerable excitement during the day, at night and the streets are cleared at 10:30 o'clock and the only way to get out after that is by taxis and cabs, and these are few and far between. In speaking of the beautiful stores, he says that everything is sky high when it comes to price.

The other day he decided that he would purchase an alarm clock, but after pricing them and finding that those that retail for about $1 in this city are selling for $2 plus the war tax, John decided that there would be nothing doing in the alarm clock line. He will depend on waking up at the right time or having some one call him.

He also met Jackson Palmer of this city in Bordeaux as well as John Salmon, also of this city, who is connected with Knights of Columbus war work.

SOLDIERS WITH TUBERCULOSIS TO BE RESTORED TO COMPLETE PHYSICAL USEFULNESS

BOSTON, June 7.—"Soldiers disabled by tuberculosis should be restored to complete physical usefulness, just as well as one who has had his leg shot off," said Dr. Harry E. Mook of the surgeon general's office, speaking here today before the annual meeting of the National Tuberculosis association. "The rehabilitation of these men," he continued, "includes their mental and physical training until they can be re-established as useful members of society."

In declaring those in military ser-

ST. RAILWAY MEN ACCEPT
FIVE CENT INCREASE

An offer of an increase of five cents an hour to the employees of the Bay State Street Railway Co. by the officials of the road, has been accepted. Although the demand was for an increase of ten cents, as a result of meetings held last night it was voted to accept the five cent increase temporarily, the said increase to go into effect as soon as possible. The increase will affect all Lowell men in the employ of the Bay State Co., motormen and conductors, the men in the car barns, those of the track department and all not employed on a salary basis.

The employees felt confident that the increase of ten cents would be granted but according to the receiver, Wallace R. Donham, this would be impossible at the present time, but the road officials can see their way clear to grant the original demand. Two special meetings were held at headquarters in Rumbold building last night. The advisability of accepting the five cent increase was discussed and eventually it was almost unanimously decided to accept five cents, though a number were for holding out for ten cents.

At the present time Lowell street railway men are getting a wage of $5.12 cents an hour. The proposed increase will place them on a wage scale of $5.17 cents an hour, which, the men claim, is not enough to meet the present high cost of living, and which is not enough, in comparison with the wages being paid other operatives of the city and state.

Under those conditions many of the union men have left to take employment in other work, and the efficiency of the company has been severely impaired.

If you want quick returns try a classified ad in The Sun, Lowell's greatest newspaper.

CASES HEARD IN THE SUPERIOR COURT

The case of Albert Gosselin against James H. Hustis, temporary receiver for the Boston & Maine railroad, an action of tort for personal injuries, the ad damnum in which is $20,000, was resumed at the session of the superior court with juries this morning.

Gosselin was employed as a carpenter at the repair shop of the Boston & Maine railroad at Billerica, and on May 3, 1917, claims that he sustained serious personal injuries as a result of a heavy weight falling on his right leg, and other injuries.

Plaintiff Gets Verdict

The jury in the case of Florence A. Crossman vs. the city of Everett, an action for personal injuries, claimed to be due to a defective sidewalk, returned a verdict of $500 for Mrs. Crossman.

Adjourned to Cambridge

The jury-waived session of the superior court, presided over by Judge Hammond, which opened its session a week ago Monday, adjourned to East Cambridge today. In the divorce libel of Clarence B. Phinney of this city against Ada K. Phinney, a contested case, the libellant alleging desertion, the court dismissed the petition.

AWARD OF $1750 FOR LOWELL

WOMAN WHOSE SON WAS KILLED

Lawyer William F. Curtin this morning, received a report from John H. Gosselin, of the industrial accident board, that that body had awarded the mother of Harry J. Clune, who was killed at the Newton Mfg. Co. plant last September the sum of $3,500 per week for 500 weeks, making a total of $1750.

Clune had been employed at the Newton plant when an explosion occurred killing him and seriously injuring many others. At the time of the accident he was earning $2.10 per week, and his mother, Mrs. Marietta Arlin was a partial dependent. If she had been wholly dependent she would have received $10 per week for 500 weeks.

George E. Mears and A. R. Delyes appeared for the insurance and employer respectively and William F. Curtin of this city for the dependent.

Inquest Postponed

An inquest into the cause of death of George Stavros, aged six years of 150 Market street, was heard before Judge John J. Pickman in the court of second sessions this morning. The child was struck and instantly killed by an automobile owned and operated by Arthur C. Saunders in Market street, nearly opposite Palmer street, on Tuesday, May 28. A number of witnesses were heard this morning, but owing to the fact that Medical Examiner T. B. Smith was unable to be present and also that another witness was missing after the witnesses present had been heard the inquest was continued until a later date.

HORSE AND DOG SHOT

A black horse, the property of Joseph Daly, was taken sick with colic street near the Fair Grounds yesterday and Dr. W. S. Sherman, the veterinarian, and Officer Fred Gilmore of the humane society, were called but neither could relieve the animal's suffering. Officer Gilmore shot the horse. A brown and white dog without a collar and whose owner is unknown, was struck by a wood team on Gorham street near the Fair Grounds yesterday and its hind leg was broken. The animal ambulance of the humane society was called and Officer Gilmore shot the animal.

The reason why opals are so often lost from their settings is that they expand with heat more than any other precious stones. Consequently they force open the gold which holds them in place, with the result that they ultimately fall out.

INCOME TAX DELINQUENTS
SUBJECT TO ARREST

Special to The Sun

STATE HOUSE, Boston, June 7.—Men and women who have not yet paid their income taxes for 1917 are subject to summary arrest, and Attorney General Harry C. Attwill is at present preparing warrants which he will have served within a few days.

Of the $12,000,000 which was due the commonwealth under the income tax act, all but $70,000 had been paid prior to the first of April. On that day the attorney-general sent to every delinquent a notice, demanding payment forthwith, and calling attention to the authority given in the law to have delinquents arrested and held for payment of the tax.

This notice proved sufficient to bring in about half of the money then overdue, but there is still outstanding a total of approximately $35,000 on which the commonwealth desires to begin drawing interest. Consequently Mr. Attwill gave instructions yesterday to Max Levinson, assistant attorney-general, to begin the preparation of tax warrants, and as soon as they are ready the attorney-general will forward the warrants to constables to be served.

Under the law, the constable has power to take the body of such person and commit him to jail until he pays the tax and charges of commitment and imprisonment, or is discharged according to law.

JOURNEMEN PLUMBERS ARE OUT ON STRIKE

The members of the Journeymen Plumbers' union held a meeting in the Union Bank building yesterday and after being informed that their employers had refused to grant the increase of wages to $6 a day, they declared a strike and all pledged themselves to remain away from their work until their grievances are settled.

The journeymen plumbers are now receiving $4.75 and $5 a day, but they feel that with the high cost of living they cannot get by on less than $6 a day, and the master plumbers refuse to grant the increase, although they are willing to pay their men $5.50 a day.

Trades and Labor Council

The weekly meeting of the members of the Trades and Labor council was held last evening at the quarters in Middle street with Vice President Downing in the chair. In the course of the meeting it was reported that the wage grievances of the lumbermen and molders had been satisfactorily settled and it was announced that the annual state convention of the stationery firemen will be held in this city in July. Communications were received from Senator Weeks and Congressman Rogers and the matter of holding a celebration on Labor day was discussed, but no definite action was taken.

Lathers' Union

The members of the Lathers' union held their weekly meeting at 35 Middle street last evening with President Thomas Allard in the chair. Fifteen candidates were initiated and routine business was transacted.

Painters' Union

President Arthur Stockley presided over the weekly meeting of the Painters' union, which was held last evening in Carpenters' hall and routine business was transacted.

A military band of women, said to be the first of its kind in this country, has been organized at New York, with Miss Annabelle Boyer as drum major.

U-BOATS AFTER SINKING 14 SHIPS
OFF COAST LAY FOR LARGER PREY

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Belief that the German submarines which early in the week successfully attacked coast schooners and steamers off the New Jersey coast were now lying in wait for larger prey in one of the transatlantic travel routes off the Virginia capes was expressed in official circles here today. This theory was strengthened by the torpedoing Wednesday of the British steamship Harpathian, 100 miles off the Virginia coast, news of which was announced in navy department despatches published today.

In the torpedoing of the Harpathian, the raiders struck without warning. The navy department had not received word as to whether the ship was armed but expressed the opinion that it was, as all British steamers plying through the war zone carry guns. The Harpathian went down within seven or eight minutes after the torpedo struck, but the crew got away and was landed late yesterday at a port in Chesapeake Bay.

The sinking of the Harpathian brought the total number of victims of the German raiders to 14—six steamers and eight schooners. Tuesday morning, when the man at the wheel sighted an object off our starboard quarter, which he took to be a submarine chaser. I was at breakfast but came on deck. "Almost immediately it sent a shot crashing through our foremast and signaled for us to heave to. I brought the schooner up and the submarine moving closer to us, broke up the German flag and two officers and four members of the crew, the officers only being armed, boarded us. "One of the officers, a man about 45 years old, speaking perfect English, demanded the ship's manifest and papers and announced that we would be given 15 minutes to take to the schooner's one boat. One of the officers accompanied me to the cabin, where I turned over the ship's papers to him. "The boarding party had little to say. The officer with me did not know how long he had been in American waters, or how many submarines German navy had on this side. He told me to get all of the crew in the boat and place therein what provisions we had. "As soon as we cleared the schooner, the Germans placed bombs at the ends of the ropes and swung them over the sides of the vessel, to which time fuses were attached. The Germans then left the ship and, as we pulled away, a terrific explosion took place and I noticed two gaping holes in the side of my ship. Being loaded with lumber, however, the schooner did not sink and is probably drifting about. "The submarine was about 175 feet long and carried two guns, one fore and one aft, and disappeared almost immediately after igniting the fuses to the bombs. "We saved all of our personal belongings and two pet dogs we had aboard. We had been drifting about for an hour when an American destroyer picked us up. After taking us on board the destroyer sighted the submarine but she submerged before she had a chance to fire on her."

BRITISH SHIP TORPEDOED AND SUNK OFF U. S. COAST

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Sinking of the British steamship Harpathian, 100 miles off the Virginia Capes at 3 o'clock Wednesday morning, by a German submarine, was announced last night at the navy department. "The entire crew was rescued by the steamer Palmer, which arrived late yesterday in Chesapeake bay. "The submarine was a torpedo. One member of the British crew was injured. The Harpathian was a freighter of 2370 net tons, 330 feet long, and owned by J. & C. Harrison of London. "No Warning Given "Only meagre details had reached the department last night. The ship went down in seven or eight minutes, and it is regarded as probable that, unlike other vessels attacked off the American coast, she was struck without warning. "All British steamers plying through the war zone are armed, but no men-

CAPTAIN SAYS LUMBER
KEPT BOAT AFLOAT

AN ATLANTIC PORT, June 7.—Capt. R. R. Coudman and the crew of the schooner Edward R. Baird, from Jacksonville, to New York, sunk by a German submarine, 18 miles off Cape Charles Tuesday morning, were landed here yesterday. "Capt. Coudman said: "We were proceeding about 100 miles off Hog island in a smooth sea, Tuesday morning, when the man at the wheel sighted an object off our starboard quarter, which he took to be a submarine chaser. I was at breakfast but came on deck. "Almost immediately it sent a shot crashing through our foremast and signaled for us to heave to. I brought the schooner up and the submarine moving closer to us, broke up the German flag and two officers and four members of the crew, the officers only being armed, boarded us. The ship went down in seven or eight minutes, and it is regarded as probable that, unlike other vessels attacked off the American coast, she was struck without warning. "All British steamers plying through the war zone are armed, but no mention of an armed guard was made in the navy report.

OUT A WEEK AGO

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Acting Sec. Roosevelt of the navy disclosed late yesterday that a radio message was sent broadcast by the navy more than a week ago informing all shipping and shore stations that enemy submarines might appear at any point along the Atlantic coast.

At that time the news that the enemy had attacked schooners off the Virginia Capes had not reached the department and Mr. Roosevelt declined to discuss how the navy received the information upon which the warning was based.

Steamers and all craft in port received the message. Slow moving sailing vessels without wireless, however, had to take their chances, in ignorance, until they made port.

The fact that naval radio stations several times recently have picked up unintelligible radio impulses believed now to have come from the raiders themselves, was also revealed. They were too indistinct to be read. In view of later developments it appears likely that the enemy craft heard the warning of their presence sent out.

Sec. Baker yesterday sent to congress a request for a $16,000,000 appropriation for 16 new balloons and airplane stations along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, to supplement the army's preparations for its part in repelling submarine or air attacks. Equipment for the stations is said to be in hand and they probably will be established within a few weeks after the money is provided.

TIGHTEN REGULATIONS
GOVERNING SHIP MOVEMENTS

WASHINGTON, June 7.—New orders tightening regulations governing the licensing and movement of tugs and other vessels in American harbors in anticipation of war conditions being brought to this side of the Atlantic will be issued shortly by the treasury and enforced by customs authorities. It is indicated today. Vessels will be required to get licenses and to submit to more strict rules concerning movement and anchorage. Persons will not be allowed to carry cameras on or about harbors, except ferriesboats.

Ames Lyons, aged 76, of Marysville, Pa., hasn't found any takers for his $500 placed in a bank at the start of the European war. Lyons borrowed the money on his property and deposited it in the bank to back his assertion that the allies would dictate the terms of peace when the war ends.

Talk the American Language Here

By not learning and speaking, it is going to cost you money.

Foreign languages are very worthy of study, help education, and have their places: In churches, in clubs, in schools, and homes at certain times, but not to the exclusion of the national language.

Their place for daily use, however, is not in some other nation's country.

It is a rude and discourteous thing to converse in a foreign tongue in public places, where those are present who only speak the national language.

One should think twice before speaking in a foreign tongue before anyone or anywhere,—travelers excepted.

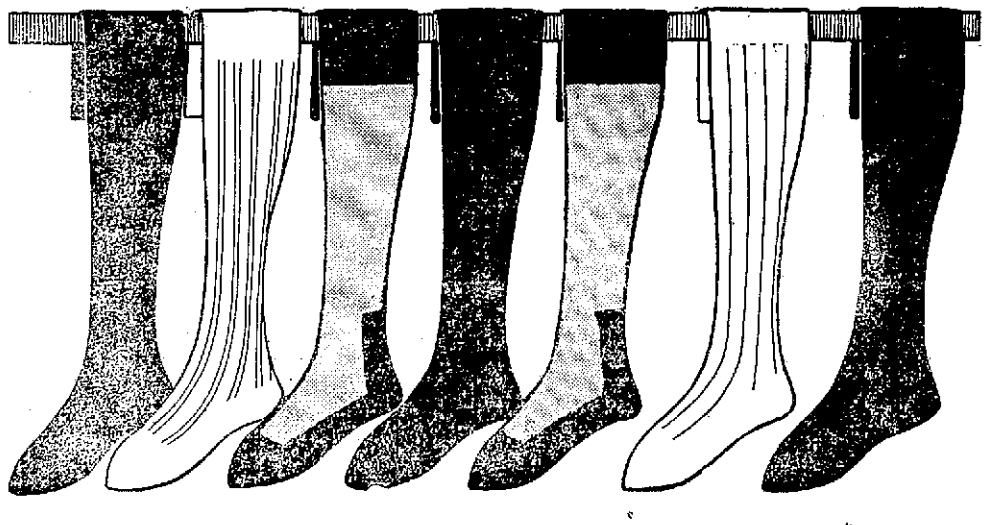

If you have your shoes shined and the boys talk to each other, but not in English, tell them how you feel! If they try to talk the American language, go again!

If you go into a store, and the help there converse before you, trying to talk English, go again!

If you go around the mill or factory, and you hear the men talking in a foreign language, do you think it is right or courteous? Ask them, "Why don't you speak English?" Take their names and explain that they are in America, and with Americans, and we want one language here for general use.

Recommend newspapers printing in foreign languages, to use the opposite half of the page for the English translation. These newspapers would then be doing good work in education. It is well worth the extra cost to them, and would increase their circulation, drawing readers from other nationalities.

Electricity SOLVES THE "SERVANT PROBLEM"

LET IT HELP YOU

Reports issued by the employment service of the United States Department of Labor show a decided shortage of household help.

"For every first class housekeeper, cook or waitress there are a hundred families waiting her," says Mrs. H. M. Richards, chief of the woman's division. Whether your family is among them or not—

Employ Electrical Help TO FREE YOUR HANDS

The home equipped with the Electric Washing Machine, Vacuum Cleaner, Sewing Machine, Iron, Cooking Utensils, etc., is the home untroubled by servant problems. It is the home in which housework is performed quickly, easily and with greatest care.

Especially at this time when the country needs the services of its women for Red Cross, food conservation and other patriotic duties, housewives will find Electricity a wonderful aid in the home.

THE ELECTRIC IRON

Heats quickly and evenly and stays hot. Enables you to do your ironing in the shortest possible time.

American Marines Launch Second Attack on Hun Lines and Capture Torcy and Push On to Bouresches

FRENCH ARMED SHIP IN BATTLE WITH U-BOAT OFF VIRGINIA CAPES

AN ATLANTIC PORT, June 7.—A French armed merchant ship came into port here today and reported an encounter with a German submarine off the Virginia Capes. Details of the battle are lacking, but it is said the fight occurred a short distance outside the Capes. The extent of the damage to the merchantman is unknown.

BIG DRIVE FOR THRIFT AND WAR SAVINGS STAMPS OPENED TODAY

Beginning today and continuing until June 23, Lowell and the rest of the state will be in the throes of an energetically conducted thrift and war savings stamp campaign, and it is proposed by the officials in charge that one out of every four persons in the city and state will have invested in the miniature government securities by the end of the drive.

Marines Dashed Into Huns Yelling Like Indians—Used Rifles and Bayonets With Deadly Accuracy

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES ON THE MARNE, June 7. (By The Associated Press).—The American marines who began a second attack on the German lines late yesterday, captured the village of Torcy and drove their way into Bouresches northwest of Chateau-Thierry. This morning, they were holding Torcy in the face of repeated counter attacks and were pushing back the Germans through the streets of Bouresches. Virtually all their objectives in this attack were attained.

General Revision of Classifications Under Selective Service Act Ordered by Gen. Crowder—Change Will Bring 500,000 in the First Class

WASHINGTON, June 7.—A general revision of classifications under the selective service act was started today by Provost Marshal General Crowder, when he telegraphed to the governors of all states ordering investigations to determine the reason for the small number of registrants in class one in some localities.

SECOND LARGEST WHEAT CROP IN HISTORY OF U. S. IN PROSPECT

WASHINGTON, June 7.—The second largest wheat crop in the history of the country is in prospect for this year's harvest. The department of agriculture today forecast a total of 921,000,000 bushels of winter and spring wheat combined. That is only 69,000,000 bushels less than the billion bushel crop the government had hoped for and continuation of the ideal conditions such as prevailed during the last month might yet produce a harvest of 1,000,000,000 bushels.

Production Forecast
WASHINGTON, June 7.—Wheat production forecast 921,000,000 bushels.
Winter wheat condition was 82.5 per cent of a normal. Spring wheat condition was 95.2 and the acreage 22,459,000.
Production of oats was forecast at 1,500,000,000 bushels, the acreage 41,475,000, and the condition 92.2.
Barley production, 225,000,000 bushels; acreage, 9,108,000, and condition 90.5.
Rye production, 81,000,000 bushels, and condition 83.6.
Hay production 107,000,000 tons; condition, 89.0; pastures condition, 92.5.
Apple production, 205,000,000 bushels; condition, 89.8.
Peach production, 12,900,000 bushels; condition, 82.0.

Great Interest in Wheat Crop
WASHINGTON, June 7.—Chief interest in the June crop report of the department of agriculture today centered in the production forecast of this year's wheat crop. With American people using the least amount of wheat possible and sending to Europe every bit they can spare, the size of this year's crop will determine the extent to which wheat will be available for home use until the 1919 harvest. The govern-

FRENCH RECAPTURE GROUND AND INFLECT HEAVY LOSSES ON HUNS

Striking the Germans northwest of Chateau-Thierry, along the line where the enemy legions were launching their heaviest blows but a few days ago, American marines, fighting with French troops on either side, have pushed back the tip of the salient driven by the Germans in their rush to the Marne. They have recaptured the village of Torcy and at last accounts were disputing with the Germans the possession of the towns of Bus-saires and Bouresches.

The gallant work of the American “soldiers of the sea” in this advance of over two miles, along a front of almost three miles, stands out as a heroic chapter in the story of American participation in the struggle. Narratives of the battle which began on Thursday afternoon tell of the irresistible dash of the marines and the deadly accuracy of the fire they poured into the German forces opposed to them.

CHESTER G. ADCOX

“In Lowell you have a most beautiful city. One not to be excelled by any city for cleanliness, and above all a city that does things. Lowell was to the front in her campaign on the Liberty Loan and again in the Red Cross drive, and I also note with great pleasure that Lowell is coming to the front in appreciation of our introduction of Vitalitas, America's Supreme Remedy. At the Dows Drug Store a little over a week ago we opened a demonstration of this wonderful remedy and hundreds of people have responded, come in and are investigating it.”

Vitalitas comes direct from nature and contains the chemical and mineral elements so essential in the treatment of Rheumatism, Indigestion, Stomach and Kidney ills. Those who suffer with the above dreaded disorders should not hesitate to take advantage of the opportunity and come to the Dows Drug Store, Merrimack Square, and talk to the special Vitalitas man and learn more of this marvelous remedy.

Vitalitas is sold at the Dows Drug Store, Merrimack Square.

VICTORY FOR AMERICAN MARINES

Gain Over Two Miles and Inflict Severe Losses on Germans Near the Marne

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN PICARDY, June 7. (By the Associated Press)—American marines attacked the Germans at dawn yesterday morning and gained 3 1/2 kilometers (about 2 1/2 miles) over a four-kilometer front and captured 100 prisoners in the Chateau Thierry sector. The French, attacking at the same time on the left, took 150 prisoners. The Americans now hold all the important high ground northwest of Chateau Thierry.

The marines again attacked at five o'clock yesterday afternoon and the battle is still raging.

Our Men Fight Like Tigers

The fight started at 3:45 o'clock yesterday morning and the Americans had attained all their objectives by 7:45 o'clock.

The Americans have been pressing the Germans so hard that the enemy has been forced to throw three new divisions of his best troops in the line during the last three days.

The Americans are veritable tigers. Their commanders have all they can do to hold the men back.

Even the wounded are enthusiastic and eager to fight. They are proud of their wounds. A general who visited a field dressing station said he was moved by the sight.

By this advance, which, Gen. Pershing announces, occurred at the village of Torcy, the allies outflank the 10-mile front of the enemy which faces the plateau of Villers-Cotterets forest. Westward behind the forest lies Villers-Cotterets, the allies' railroad junction, which it is necessary to keep safe.

Furthermore, a considerable gain in the Torcy region threatens to roll up the German line along the Marne. At the point of their present nearest advance toward Paris the Germans now stand at a disadvantage in a sharp salient, on both sides of which American and French troops are making an aggressive fight.

Inflict Severe Losses

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Gen. Pershing's report last night announces that American and French troops advanced their lines northwest of Chateau Thierry about a mile yesterday morning, capturing prisoners and inflicting severe losses in killed and wounded on the enemy.

The statement follows: "In an attack northwest of Chateau Thierry this morning our troops, in conjunction with the French advanced our lines near Torcy about a mile, capturing prisoners and inflicting severe losses in killed and wounded. "There was lively artillery fighting in Lorraine last night, our batteries executing effective reprisals and neutralization fire. "There is nothing else of importance to report."

BIG DROP IN N. E. SOFT COAL SHIPMENTS

BOSTON, June 7.—Shipments of soft coal into New England fell off last month more than 420,000 tons as compared with May of last year, according to preliminary reports of the month's receipts to James J. Storrow, federal fuel administrator for New England.

Mr. Storrow left Boston last night to put the situation before the United States fuel administration at Washington.

"These figures are so alarming that I believe Dr. Harry A. Garfield, the federal fuel administrator, should at

TO MY CUSTOMERS:

For the past ten years in Lowell I have given advance information in the woolen market and those of you who followed my advice profited thereby.

I am telling you now, don't hesitate to purchase as many suits of clothes as your pocketbook will allow. It will be a hundred per cent. investment, as cotton and shoddy garments will sell around $25 a few months from today. That's why I tell you to buy all the clothes you can afford right now.

once know the facts at first hand," said Mr. Storrow.

"Unless something can be done to cure conditions responsible for this big deficit in our coal receipts," said Mr. Storrow, "New England is faced with nothing short of disaster next winter."

"All-rail soft coal receipts in New England in May, 1917, were about 1,513,000 net tons. Last month, preliminary returns indicate that we received only 838,845 tons of all-rail coal, or a little more than half of what the railroads brought up here in the same month a year ago."

"This is a reduction in rail receipts of more than 700,000 tons in one of our best months for rail transportation."

"There is some ground for encouragement in the fact that the dumpings at Hampton Roads, in the month of May, appear to be about 100,000 tons better than a year ago, and the ports of Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York may also show some improvement."

"It is unlikely, however, that this improvement in the water shipments will amount to much more than 250,000 tons. This leaves a net falling off in last month's receipts of soft coal for New England, as compared with the same month a year ago, of more than 420,000 tons."

Mr. Storrow said that the situation could probably not be explained as a result of a falling off in production at Pennsylvania coal mines, where practically all of the all-rail shipments of soft coal for New England come from.

"We understand that these mines are running slightly ahead in production of what they were a year ago," said Mr. Storrow.

"The only explanation appears to be that coal which should now be coming into New England is being diverted somewhere else."

P. S. A. Franklin, chairman of the ship control committee, deserves a great deal of the credit, Mr. Storrow said, for the improvement shown in the movements of soft coal over the water routes.

"Mr. Franklin evidently is hard at work," said Mr. Storrow, "in an effort to avert the threatened collapse of New England's industries. He is giving us all the new ships he can for the coal trade, and is also doing everything possible to help us keep the ships we have. His work in our behalf is certainly appreciated."

"It is a fact, however, that in spite of everything being done to expedite coal shipments, we are steadily falling behind."

"Two months of the coal year are gone, and they are two of the best months as regards transportation that we will have. In April, total soft coal receipts for New England were 720,000 tons under requirements, and in May 650,000 tons less than what they should have been. This means that we are already 1,270,000 tons short of what we ought to have this far, if New England's total requirements for the year are to be met."

"It is practically a physical impossibility to make up this lost tonnage. This is the time of year when we should be doing our best. If we go on at this rate for two or three months more, winter will find us with our coal pile short from four to five million tons."

"The coal situation just now, so far as New England is concerned, is worse than it has ever been," said Mr. Storrow. "Something must be done, and done right away, if we are to be saved at all."

The fuel administrators of the other New England states will accompany Mr. Storrow to Washington.

LOCAL CATHOLIC CHURCHES OBSERVE FEAST OF THE SACRED HEART

Local Catholic churches observed the feast of the Sacred Heart and also the first Friday of the month today when large numbers of parishioners attended mass in the morning and received holy communion. This evening holy hour services will be held in many of the churches in conjunction with special devotions in honor of the Sacred Heart.

There was a special mass at St. Jean Baptiste church at 5:45 this morning for the soldiers of the parish. It was said at the request of the Sacred Heart league. At this church there will be a sermon on the Sacred Heart at 7:30 this evening by Rev. Charles Denzot, O.M.I.

HOSPITAL SHIP STRUCK MINE OFF ENGLISH COAST

THE HAGUE, June 7.—The hospital ship Konigin Regentes, having on board the English delegates to the Anglo-German war prisoners' conference at The Hague, struck a mine off the English coast. Four firemen perished but all others were saved by the hospital ship Sinderov.

The delegates aboard the ship were the home secretary, Sir George Cave; Baron Newton, under secretary for the foreign office, who attended the previous conference; Lieut. Gen. Sir Herbert Belfield, director of prisoners of war since 1911, and Mrs. Darley Livingstone, the wife of an English colonel. Mrs. Livingstone, who is an American, is secretary of the government committee on prisoners of war.

ALADDIN'S MAGIC HAS NOTHING ON THIS OHIO WIZARD

Discovers drug which loosens sore, touchy corns so they lift out

You reckless men and women who are pestered with corns and who have at least once a week invited an awful death from lockjaw or blood poison are now told to use a drug called frezzone, which the moment a few drops are applied to any corn, the soreness is relieved and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts out with the fingers.

This new ether drug is the recent discovery of a noted Cincinnati chemist. It is a sticky substance which dries the moment it is applied and is said to simply shrivel the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. It is claimed that a quarter of an ounce of frezzone will cost very little at any of the drug stores, but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

You are further warned that cutting at a corn is a suicidal habit.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

Note:—Below is what the press agents of the different theatres say of the current attractions and of others to come later.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

Two picture features that cannot easily be beaten were shown for the first time at the B. F. Keith theatre yesterday, and will be repeated twice today and tomorrow. The first is "Love Me," a Paramount picture of engrossing beauty, with sweet Dorothy Dalton in the big role. How a breezy western girl literally forces a very stuff-backed family to love her, furnishes an amusing story, and yet one which is thoroughly human. Even the mother of the girl's husband, who thinks no woman is quite good enough for her son, succumbs at last. The second feature is "Paws of the Bear," with William Desmond in a great part. Centering around the present war, there are no battle scenes. Rather, it is a story showing the chase across the Atlantic after some secret papers of a German agent. He finally gets away with them but it is shown that they have no reference whatever to the point the intelligence men wish to clear up. Mr. Desmond is a dashing American globe-trotter, who is caught in Belgium when war is declared. The other members of the company are wholly adequate. The

Smoking
Makers of the Highest Grade
Turkish and Egyptian Cigarettes

THE STRAND
The best pictures in the best and coolest picture palace in New England is a big claim, but that's just what we mean when we assure the public that The Strand is unexcelled as a place of amusement of this kind. Ask the regular patrons. Today, Madge Kennedy in "Fair Pretender," a Goldwyn picture, and Peggy Lyland in "Peg of the Pirates," both excellent picture plays, are the attractions, and there are so many other contributions to the program that space does not permit their mention at this time. Suffice it to say that The Strand gives more genuine novelties than all the others put together, and then some.

Don't forget the popular children's morning matinee on Saturday, Mae Osborne in "The Little Duchess" will be the star attraction, and there will be others of the juvenile variety that will please the "kiddies." Remember the time is 10 o'clock a. m. and the price is five cents for the little folks. Nothing like it anywhere else.

ROYAL THEATRE

One of these breezy, snappy picture performances will be offered at the Royal theatre for the week-end on today and tomorrow. Topping the list of extra good attractions is "Barce, Son of Kazan," a five-act Vitagraph drama with Neil Shipman in the leading role. This play offers the star a great opportunity to display her histrionic accomplishments, no better vehicle has ever served this well-known actress. The play carries on the stage later to a pitch of excitement, and the ending is admirably led up to by the conflicting events. It's one of the 100 per cent. perfect pictures women's magazines talk so much about. The supporting players play to good advantage, and are specially noteworthy.

On the added attraction list we find the tenth episode of "The Woman in the Web," the Vitagraph serial; the 13th episode of "The Eagle's Eye," with King Baggett and Marguerite Snow. Capt. Flynn's story of enemy spies in America, which runs in serial form. A new Lonesome Luke comedy, also a "Broncho Billy" western film are also in evidence.

LAKEVIEW PARK

Every day is a big day at Lakeview, and summer camps, of which many are now on the ground, are singing the praises of the park and its fine dancing pavilion as conducted by Archie Conley, the floor director, and his efficient assistants. Miner Doyle's orchestra is on the job afternoon and evening, too, and Barney Horn never tires of singing the latest of dance music to cheer you up. Go there Sunday, and relax—it's the best way to spend the day.

LOWELL BOY SCOUTS WILL HAVE INDIVIDUAL GARDENS IN- STEAD OF FARM

Instead of having one general farm as they did last year, the Boy Scouts of the Lowell council will work on their own individual farms or gardens and as a stimulus to good work, a number of prizes have been offered by an anonymous friend for excelling garden and farm produce cultivated by the scouts. At the close of the season an exhibit of the boys' products will be held and competent judges will pass on the merits of them. Each boy must furnish evidence that he has raised his particular entry. Prizes of a suitable nature will be awarded for the following entries:

- 1—Dish of 12 potatoes, three prizes.
- 2—Dish of 12 tomatoes, white, red or yellow.
- 3—Dish of 12 onions white, red or yellow.
- 4—Dish of six cucumbers.
- 5—Bunch of 10 carrots.
- 6—Bunch of 10 parsnips.
- 7—Bunch of 10 beets.
- 8—Bunch of 10 turnips.
- 9—Ten ears of sweet corn.
- 10—Ten ears of fodder corn.
- 11—One plate of six peppers.
- 12—Bunch of celery.
- 13—Best cauliflower.
- 14—Largest squash.
- 15—Largest pumpkin.
- 16—Heaviest cabbage.

BIG REDUCTION IN MATERIALS USED IN GREAT BRITAIN FOR ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES
NEW YORK, June 7.—The amount of materials annually used in the United Kingdom of Great Britain for the manufacture of alcoholic beverages has been reduced from 1,506,000 tons before the beginning of the war to 512,000 tons at present, according to a statement issued here by the British Pictorial service.

All the materials now being used for this purpose, it is stated, are utilized in brewing beer. "During the past year," the memorandum says, "no manufacture of spirits for human consumption has been permitted and no further manufacture is at present contemplated."

It is pointed out that about one-third of the materials used are not of a kind that could be used as a human food and that about one-quarter to one-third of the weight of the original materials is recovered in the form of brewer's and distiller's grains, malt comings for cattle food and in the form of yeast for preparing human food.

"No unmalted barley is now in the hands of the brewers or malsters," says the statement. "The whole of the existing stocks of unmalted grain was requisitioned for breadstuffs on Feb. 23 last."

Rations compulsorily imposed in the United Kingdom are enumerated as follows:

"Meat, including chicken, all kinds of game, etc. not exceeding 1½ lbs. per week. There will be supplementary rations for those engaged in hard labor. "Butter and margarine, 1-4 pound of either, not both, per week. "Sugar, 1-2 pound per week. "There are many other restrictions, such as the restrictions of wheat in bread, of feeding cereals to livestock, in the uses of milk, etc."

FRENCH RECAPTURE GROUND AND INFLICT HEAVY LOSSES

AMERICANS GAIN ALL OBJECTIVES

Just to the south, the Americans launched their blow at the Germans and have taken extensive ground. Reports from the scene state that virtually all their objectives were gained, which would appear to indicate that the attack was not a local affair, but part of a well-defined plan directed by the allied command.

Bellau wood, east of Torcy was first reported cleared of Germans by the marines, but later advices made it appear probable that the enemy was still holding a portion of it.

HUNS DRIVEN OUT OF HILL 204

West of Chateau-Thierry, the Germans, in their rush last week, occupied hill 204, a height which dominated the city. From this they have been ejected by the French.

On the front between the Marne river and Rheims the British have gained a footing in the town of Bligny, which is nine miles from Rheims and in a sector which might become vital, should the allies attack there in force.

German official statements have indicated aggressive there may be linked mentioned the arrival of allied forces up with the activity on the western in this particular region, and the al- side of the salient in consideration of what may be the initiation of a counter offensive against the Germans.

Maint Withdrawal of Crack Troops

The blows being struck at the German positions will have a tendency to prevent the Germans from withdrawing their crack troops for recuperation before launching an attack on another sector of the front. Advices from the battle area say that three German divisions which evidently had been held in reserve, had been brought up to the front to oppose the Americans.

North of the Soissons sector, French patrols have been active, while along the British front there has been no fighting of an unusual nature.

Attack Opened Yesterday

Thursday morning, the allied troops, Americans on the left and French on the right, had advanced to within 500 yards of Bussaires. Attacking again at 5 o'clock Thursday evening, by 10:30 p. m. they had widened the advancing line to about six miles between Gandelu, on the west, and Belleau wood on the east. At that hour the Americans were at Granges farm, south of Gandelu, while the French had driven the Germans from Belleau wood and were advancing on the village of Belleau.

Capture Many Prisoners

In their impetuous attack, which was completed victoriously in four hours, the Americans and French captured more than 270 prisoners, including 10 officers. This was on a front of about two and one-half miles. The French also advanced their lines somewhat near Longpont, east of the Reiz forest.

Germans Told Americans Were British

Berlin, in its latest statement mentions local engagements northwest of Chateau-Thierry, but still refuses to disclose the fact that American troops are now on this front. German prisoners declare they were told the new troops were British.

French Completely Check Enemy

On the eastern wing of the salient the Germans delivered strong local attacks, evidently for the purpose of outflanking Rheims on the south. At Champlaf and St. Euphrase, the French checked the enemy completely, while at Bligny British troops threw the Germans from a height they had gained.

British "Get" 518 Hun Airplanes

Except on the northern side of the Flanders salient, where the Germans have made a slight gain against the French around Loree, there has been little activity elsewhere on the western front. British and French bombing and fighting machines have been very active behind the German lines the British penetrating to Coblenz, in Germany. During May, the British destroyed or damaged 518 enemy machines, 400 of which were destroyed in aerial combats.

Germans Claims 35,000 Captured

The army of the German crown prince since May 27, Berlin announces, has captured 35,000 prisoners. The booty taken includes 656 guns and more than 2000 machine guns. The military correspondent of the Pan-German Voessische Zeitung, says the allied defense is now too strong for further German advances.

German Air Raid on Paris

German airmen again attempted to raid Paris Thursday night and got through the strong French defenses. Bombs were dropped and properly damage was caused. The death of only one person was reported.

AMERICANS AND FRENCH CONTINUE TO HURL HUNS BACK

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY ON THE MARNE, Thursday, June 6, 10:30 p. m. (By the Associated Press) Up to this hour the Americans and French troops advancing between Veully-la-Poterie and Torcy, have reached the outer edges of the towns of Bussaires and Torcy.

On the west, the allied line has been carried to Granges farm, south of Gandelu, west of Veully. Belleau wood, east of Torcy, has been cleared of the enemy. Further details are not available at this hour.

The Americans comprise the detachments on the left of the advancing line. After capturing a small wood shaped like the letter S, they reached the cemetery at Veully and continued to press forward slowly, under a heavy fire from German machine guns.

During the attack this morning at dawn, the German artillery fire against the allies was feeble but the enemy front line was well studded with machine guns. In the action this morning the Americans and French advanced one kilometre into the German lines and captured 270 prisoners, including 10 officers.

Forty-five minutes after the fighting started, one French regiment had gained the border of Maree wood and the edge of a triangular wood 500 yards southeast of Bussaires, notwithstanding sharp resistance. This regiment alone took more than 100 prisoners.

BELIEVES GERMAN LULL EFFORT AT DECEPTION

LONDON, June 7.—The Germans do not intend to attempt any further or immediate progress around Chateau-Thierry, says Reuters' correspondent with the American army in France, who spent Thursday northwest of that town. The enemy, he adds, shows lassitude which might well seem an intentional effort at deception.

PARIS REPORTS SUCCESSES FOR AMERICANS AND FRENCH

PARIS, June 7.—American troops, fighting on the main battle front, have gained ground on the line of Torcy-Belleau and Boursches, west of Chateau-Thierry, the war office announces in today's statement. West of Noyon and north of Montdidier, on the Picardy area, local operations by the French were successful and prisoners were taken.

In fighting north of the Aisne, the French captured the village of Le-Port, west of Fontenoy.

On the Marne front, northwest of Chateau-Thierry, French troops captured the village of Vinly.

The French also recaptured hill 203, between the Marne and Rheims. British troops regained a footing in the village of Bligny, inflicting large losses on the enemy.

The text of the statement follows: "North of Montdidier and west of Noyon the French made several successful raids and took prisoners."

"North of the Aisne French troops in a night attack captured the village of Le Port, west of Fontenoy. South of the Aisne, the French improved their positions southeast of Ambleux."

"Between the Ouren and the Marne the French continued their local operations in the region of Veully-la-Poterie and Bussaires. They made further progress and captured the village of Vinly, north of the Clignon river, as well as the grove east of the station of Veully-la-Poterie and the northern edge of this village.

"Farther south American troops gained ground on the front of Torcy, Belleau and Boursches, west of Chateau-Thierry."

"A spirited attack made by the French resulted in the recapture of hill 204. Between the Marne and Rheims, British troops regained a footing in the village of Bligny and inflicted heavy losses on the Germans. "The French took 100 prisoners in the course of these actions.

UNEVENTFUL NIGHT ALONG THE BRITISH BATTLEFRONT

LONDON, June 7.—An uneventful night along the British front is reported by the war office today. The official statement reads: "A party of our troops raided a hostile post last night northeast of Bethune and after inflicting casualties on the garrison and capturing a machine gun returned without loss. "There is nothing further to report from the British front."

SAFE ARRIVAL OVER SEAS

The many friends of First Class Private Charles E. Kenebeck, 218th Engineers who enlisted early in December and has been in training at Vancouver barracks, state of Washington, since Christmas, will be pleased to know of his safe arrival over seas word having been received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Kenebeck, 215 Stackpole street.

A will that was lost when an overcoat was stolen several years ago, preserved by the thief and returned by him, was declared genuine by Judge J. J. Trimble in the Pittsburg probate court.

Friedrich von Mecklenburg-Schwerin, Duke of Finland. The duke has expressed his willingness to accept the crown if it is offered him.

TERRIFIC LOSSES OF SOME HUN FAMILIES

BERNE, June 7.—As bearing upon the war losses of some German families a statement made yesterday to the Associated Press correspondent by a German woman now in Berne is interesting.

"Twenty-five of my relatives have been killed, five are invalids, and only two are left unharmed out of 32 engaged in the war," said this woman, whose husband was killed on the German front near Arras. "My uncle sent seven sons into the war and six of them were killed within two months. The losses of the Germans since the March offensive began had been terrific," she said.

HIGH SCHOOL STEEL IS WHITE ELEPHANT

What will be done with the high school steel?

That is a question that is being propounded by a number of citizens of this city, inasmuch as the high school commission, which was elected at a joint meeting of the school board and the city council, has been declared to be an illegally appointed commission by Justice Pierce of the supreme court. Another interesting point is whether or not the commission will resign or if the city officials will be forced to have a court order issued to officially disband the commission. The commission had until June 1 to appeal to the full bench of the supreme court, but the time has expired and nothing has been done in that line.

In relation to what will be done with the steel, it may be said that the city fathers themselves are in a quandary, for the steel cannot be sold as fabricated steel and therefore must be disposed of as junk at a great loss to the city.

It was stated this morning that the high school commission at its various meetings did not favor erecting a school which would cost the city $1,500,000 as the plans called for, and furthermore that the commission was not very favorably impressed with the site selected for the erection of the new building. The commission was planning, so it is said, to modify the plans to some extent in order to decrease the cost of the structure, but inasmuch as it had cost the city a lot of money for the site in Anne and Kirk streets, it was decided to erect the building there, but not until after the close of the war.

Relative to the commission's next step, The Sun was informed some time ago that the members of the commission had planned to send in their resignations to the city council and school board, and this morning a member of the commission reiterated the statement by saying he believed all arrangements had been made for a wholesale resignation and that the papers would be turned over to the proper authorities within a short time.

It is certain that the proposed high school will not be built this year or while the war is on, and in the meantime the city will pay the interest on the $700,000 loan. Already about $200,000 has been spent for plans and steel. This money was borrowed under a special act of the legislature and cannot be expended for any other purpose than that for which it was intended, while the war is on, and in the meantime the city will pay the interest on the $700,000 loan. Already about $200,000 has been spent for plans and steel. This money was borrowed under a special act of the legislature and cannot be expended for any other purpose than that for which it was intended.

Park Department
By the coming of the Barnum & Bailey circus to Lowell the city is on about $500 for the circus management paid $250 for the use of the Fair grounds, which is owned by the city and of that amount about $50 will be spent in cleaning up the grounds.

McSorley Not to Blame
The commission has reached the opposite conclusion, however, in the case of Frederick J. McSorley of Lowell, who on April 27 was involved in an accident which resulted in the death of Juliette Mary Brown. After full investigation, the commissioners have decided that the accident occurred without serious fault on the part of McSorley.

MATRIMONIAL

Frederick Moore of Worcester, and Helen Callahan of this city, were married yesterday afternoon at the immaculate Conception rectory, the ceremony being performed by the pastor, Rev. Lawrence F. Tighe, O.M.I. The bride was Margaret Callahan, while the best man was Thomas Callahan. After an extended wedding trip to New York, the couple will make their home in Worcester.

Beardsley-MacFadyen
Percy Asher Beardsley and Esther May MacFadyen were married yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride in Granville, by Rev. Wheelock Moore. Dr. Arnold Moore of London, N. H., acted as best man, while the bride was Ruth B. MacFadyen. The bride wore white Georgette and carried white roses. The bridesmaid wore a pink charming and carried sweet peas. At the close of the ceremony, a reception was held and present were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Garret and Clayton Caspell of Nashua.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hazlett of Chelmsford, Olive and Vina McPhee of Boston. The ushers were Blanche Sinnett, Gertrude Leggett, Blanche Kelly, Lillian Marshall.

Davey-Horgan

Mr. William Davey and Miss Mary Horgan were married by Rev. Fr. Heffernan at the rectory of St. Peter's church Wednesday evening, at 6 o'clock. The bridesmaid was Miss Mary Roark. The best man was Mr. Wesley Davey, a brother of the groom. The bride was prettily attired in blue tulle with an overdress of Georgette crepe and a picture hat to match, and carried white bridal roses. The bridesmaid wore gray tulle with Georgette overdress and picture hat, and carried pink bridal roses. After the ceremony, a wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's parents at 13 Burns street, and there was an entertainment consisting of songs by Commissioner James B. Donnelly, piano selections by Miss Lulu Ginty, Mrs. John McLaughlin and Master Thomas Ginty, and James Daly played the bagpipes. Mr. and Mrs. Davey will enjoy their honeymoon in Canada and will be at home to their friends at 13 Burns street, after July 15.

BRYCE IN PLEA FOR HOME RULE

Former British Ambassador to United States Endorses Unity Idea of Redmond's Daughter

LONDON, June 7.—Viscount Bryce, the former British ambassador at Washington, in a statement yesterday in reply to the appeal of Mrs. Max Green, daughter of the late John R. Redmond, on May 24, endorses her appeal for unity between England and Ireland.

He urged the British parliament to hasten the passage of an adequate home rule bill, but at the same time asks the people "to make it plain to the world that the Irish people stand in line with Britain, America, Italy and France in their determination to save the world from the German ruthlessness and tyranny."

Bryce's statement.

realize that centuries of conflict have made of their own nationality, and the Irish mind has been turned upon itself, so much occupied with Ireland's grievances and claims that it has not grasped the real meaning of this war. Englishmen are accordingly disappointed that Ireland does not show a stronger desire to join in the conflict against German aggression.

"What is most wanted today is that the people of both countries should get to understand each other more completely. A true understanding of another's character and ideas is the basis of friendship among nations as among men. Today the two peoples are nearer to a just comprehension and genuine friendship than seemed possible years ago."

No Fears for Home Rule

Viscount Bryce continued: "There need be no fear in Ireland that the English democracy, bewildered though they be by the reckless violence and wild language of the Sinn Féiners, have any intention of going back on the home rule policy which parliament has solemnly sanctioned."

"The British people desire with all their hearts to see prosperity and contentment in Ireland under a home rule parliament and they hope that when Ireland sees this she will of her own accord join in vindicating against Germany these very principles of liberty and nationality upon which she founds her own claims."

"This is not a war which England has undertaken for her own benefit. It is a war for right and humanity, and victory will be won for Ireland as well as the rest of Europe."

"Englishmen who have been pressing the claims of Ireland for 30 years have no doubt of what is needed now. Parliament ought to bring into operation a large and effective home rule scheme, and this must be done without delay."

"Ireland, on her part, ought to make it plain to the world that the Irish people stand in line with Britain, America and France, which peoples are giving all that is dearest to them in their determination to save the world from the menace of German ruthlessness and tyranny. Ireland loves liberty and justice, how can she fail to feel with them and to wish that her own should fight beside them in such a cause?"

CARDINAL DEDICATES ST. THERESA HOUSE

LYNN, June 7.—More than 1500 inspected the new St. Theresa House, an $50,000 home for working girls, which was dedicated by Cardinal O'Connell yesterday, as a part of the observance of the golden jubilee of Mr. Arthur J. Teeling, D.D., P.R., who has served St. Mary's parish for more than 25 years.

The new home is a modern building, superbly furnished and will be supervised by the Sisters of Nazareth. It was dedicated in the presence of a large assemblage of Catholic clergy, among whom were Bishop Nolan of Hartford and Bishop Anderson of Boston.

Following the solemn high mass, at which the cardinal presided, visiting clergy to the number of 100 were entertained at luncheon in the new home. The cardinal spoke briefly and Mr. Teeling gave a reminiscent talk. A feature of the services was the preaching of the sermon at the mass by Bishop Nolan, a native of Newburyport, who served Mr. Teeling as an altar boy when he was located in that city.

LOWELL HERD, ORDER OF BUFFALO, ADDRESSED BY SUPREME ADVOCATE

There was a large attendance at the regular meeting of Lowell Herd, Order of Buffalo, in Odd Fellows temple last night. Considerable business was transacted during the evening. President George E. Moussette occupied the chair.

Supreme Advocate Judge Maurice L. Cunningham of the national organization, accompanied by Supreme President James E. Hughes, was present and delivered an interesting address to the members. They were tendered a reception after which the regular business meeting was held.

The membership committee reported that 15 applications had been received and seven had been accepted. Members of the relief and sick committee reported no members on their list. The physician's report also showed the herd to be in splendid shape.

Communication was received from Supreme Secretary Charles H. Flinn notifying the herd that the annual convention will be held in Boston at the John Winthrop hall, Tremont street. The election of delegates to this convention was acted upon and the following were chosen: George E. Moussette, William H. Garvey and Robert M. Dempsey, and alternates Daniel Murray, John Gillis and Joseph Regan, after which the following members addressed the members on the proposed laws coming before the convention: George E. Moussette, William H. Garvey, Robert E. Dempsey and James E. Hughes.

It was also announced that the proposed drawing had been postponed until June 20, and will be held in the club rooms.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE

A driver in the employ of the street department of the city and a pair of horses had a narrow escape from being badly hurt yesterday afternoon, when the dump cart and horses backed over a high embankment at the ledge in Fletcher street. The driver jumped before the wagon went over. The horses, however, went to the bottom of the pit, but escaped with a few scratches. The accident was the result of the timber used as a stop at the edge of the embankment becoming displaced.

In five hours 300 men put up a hospital building 230 by 38 feet, including heating plant, light and sewer connections, on Staten Island.

IMPORTANT SUGAR NOTICE

The following notice relative to the amount of sugar to be used by manufacturers has been sent in by Hon. Edward Fisher, assistant food administrator of Middlesex county:

The amount of sugar which may be used by manufacturers will probably be restricted during the period of the war.

All manufacturers of less essential food products using sugar must file required statement with the sugar department of the food administration at the state house by June 10th, covering sugar used, on hand, and their requirements.

Unless such reports are filed by June 10th, no sugar will be allotted for the balance of 1918 to the manufacturer, failing to make such return.

CONSCRIPTION IS NOT WITHDRAWN IN IRELAND

DUBLIN, June 7.—A warning to Ireland that Lord French's recruiting proclamation does not mean the withdrawal of conscription, was made in a statement issued last night by the anti-conscription conference after a four-hour session at Mansion House. The lord mayor of Dublin presided at the meeting and John Dillon, Joseph Devlin and other nationalist leaders, as well as representatives of labor and the Sinn Féin, were present. The lord mayor of Dublin, it was announced, will proceed to the United States when the attempt to conscript Ireland is renewed. The imprisonment of the Sinn Féiners without trial, its condemnation and the Irish military administration denounced. The statement says nothing of the attitude of the conference toward the recruiting campaign.

STRIKE TIES UP TROLLEY SERVICE IN NEW JERSEY

NEWARK, N. J., June 7.—With trolley service in many cities and towns in northern New Jersey virtually suspended on account of the trolley men's strike for higher wages, John J. S. Rogers of the conciliation division of the department of labor, today arranged for conferences with company and union officials. All available motor trucks, automobiles and wagons were pressed into service to convey workers to plants working on government orders. Women conductors, against whose employment the men have protested, were used on some lines today.

New York Carmen Strike
NEW YORK, June 7.—Virtually all of the motormen and conductors employed by the Union Railway Co. walked out today to enforce their demand for 60 cents an hour, an increase of 15 cents over the present scale. The Union Railway Co. operates lines in the Bronx and Westchester county to points in Connecticut. The police reported that the service was virtually at a standstill.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

The regular meeting of B. F. Butler Relief corps was held last night in Memorial hall, Miss Mary Smith presiding. Routine business was transacted and general orders were read by the secretary, Mrs. Lydia Bartlett. Several communications were received and acted upon. It was announced that the Middlesex County association would meet at Reading on June 8. The patriotic instructor and several of the members are to take part in the Flag day exercises to be given by the Mary Smith tent, Daughters of Veterans.

The corps unanimously voted to cooperate with the Sons of Veterans auxiliary, 47, in entertaining the soldiers and sailors at the I.M.C.A., June 23. An invitation was received and accepted to spend relief corps day as the guest of the past president, Mrs. Bessie Cummings, in Cambridge. The charter was draped during the evening for the late Mrs. Mary Flynn.

MEN AND WOMEN IN FIGHTING TRIM

They Keep To The Top Notch of Health

The spirit of the times demands perfect health and nerves, and keeping them up to the highest degree of efficiency. Wise men and women have learned that it does not pay to allow health and nerves to run down and are quick to take advantage of Nature's greatest red blood and nerve tonic, Phosphated Iron, the minute they feel they are slowing up. Whatever your work may be there is no reason why it should continue to tire you; work should only use the right amount of your energy; it is trying to work on your nerves and forcing yourself that wastes your strength, runs you down, gives you those restless nights, loss of appetite and indigestion, when you get up in the morning as tired as when you went to bed. There is no sense in anyone being a victim of ill health, poor blood, over work, nerves or the blues when Phosphated Iron will afford such prompt and permanent relief. All over the country men and women in every walk of life lay their good health, strength and nerves of iron to the use of Phosphated Iron, the red blood and nerve builder, and it will also put you on your feet, make you feel like a live one. It produces results that last, that's what counts, no "ifs" about it. To insure physicians and their patients getting the genuine Phosphated Iron we have put in capsules only. Do not take pills or tablets. Insist on capsules. Fred Howard, Lowell Pharmacy and leading drug stores everywhere.

The Bon Marche

The meeting closed with the flag salute. The members of James A. Garfield W.R.C. met last night at G.A.R. hall at 202 Merrimack street. During the afternoon, whilst was enjoyed after which a supper was served and the regular business meeting was held in the evening. The meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock by the president, Mrs. Elvira Giles Planders. Flag day services will be held Tuesday evening, June 11, under the direction of Mrs. Lestina Parker, to which the public is invited. Middlesex County association will meet in Reading Wednesday, June 13. An invitation was accepted to attend the Flag day exercises to be held in Memorial hall Thursday evening, June 13. The meeting closed with the flag salute.

The regular weekly meeting of the American branch of the Lowell Socialist local was held last night at 22 Middle street. One new member was admitted and considerable business of a routine nature was transacted. It was voted to have the Rev. Ernest Smith speak at the corner of Central and Jackson streets, at the meeting to be held at 8 o'clock on Monday night. The speaker will discuss political socialism.

NEWS OF THE DAY IN THE POLICE COURT

The police had a comparatively quiet time yesterday and last night when it is taken into consideration that "the greatest show on earth" was here, which generally attracts many of the light fingered gentry who separate the unwary from jewelry and money. All of the inspectors were on duty from the time the parade started in the morning until the show was over last night, but there was very little doing. Two strangers were acting suspiciously in the vicinity of the Fair grounds and they were sent to the police station for safe keeping. Scores of soldiers from Camp Devens were also attracted to this city and as usual there were a number of unscrupulous persons who were willing to secure liquor for the soldiers. Three of these hipsters or bootleggers were gathered in by the police and booked for aiding and abetting in the purchase of liquor for soldiers and taken to Ayer this morning. About 8 o'clock last night Patrolmen McNulty, Mahan and P. Sullivan saw two men acting suspiciously in the crowd at the circus grounds and after watching the pair walk in and out of the crowd questioned them. The answers given were not satisfactory and the men were sent to the police station where they were booked as suspicious persons. Later they were released by the police and advised to leave the city as soon as possible. Shortly before 9:30 o'clock last night Sergt. Petrie and Officers Moore, O'Sullivan and Cooney visited a house in Lee street and disturbed a party made up of three soldiers, two young women and a civilian. There was evidence of liquor having been consumed and that the party had been a disorderly one. The civilian, Louis Fletcher, aged 44 years, and residing in the house in question, was charged with aiding and abetting a soldier in the purchase of liquor. He was taken to Ayer this morning. The three soldiers were also turned over to the military authorities at Ayer.

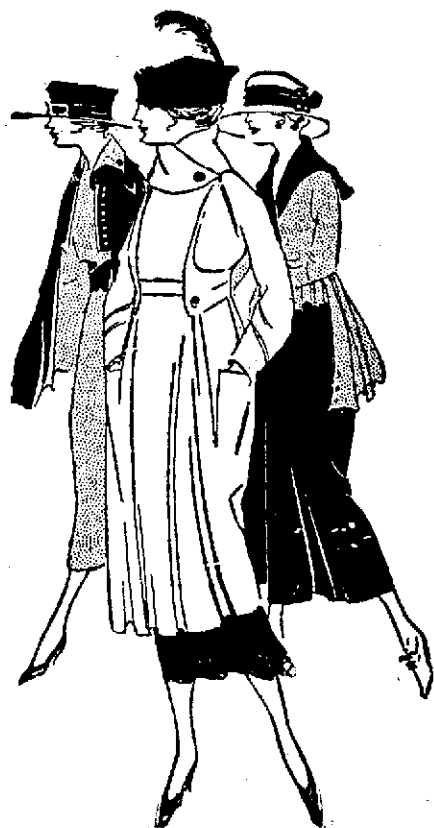

The girls gave their names, ages and residences as follows: Jeannette Gilchrist, 25 years, High street, and Elizabeth Whelan, 23 years, Lakeview avenue. They were arraigned in police court this morning charged with being lewd persons. Both were found guilty, the Whelan girl being sentenced to five months in jail. The Gilchrist girl's case was continued to Tuesday. About 8:30 o'clock last night Sergt. Petrie and Officers P. Clark and Winn saw a man with a soldier and following the pair into Jackson street saw the man pass a bottle of liquor to the soldier. The "hipper" was arrested and gave his name as Joseph F. O'Hare, 30 years, laborer of Woburn. He was taken to Ayer this morning as was James Brown, 50 years, laborer, of Boston, who was arrested in Jackson street, about 11:30 o'clock last night while passing liquor to a soldier.

MANY TONS OF LIQUOR BROUGHT TO BANGOR
AUGUSTA, Me., June 7.—In a period of 146 days more than 212 tons of intoxicating liquors were brought into the city of Bangor, without seizure or complaint. Atty. Gen. Guy H. Sturgis asserted in his opening statement at the criminal proceedings against Sheriff T. Herbert White of Bangor. The sheriff is accused of neglect to enforce the Maine prohibition law. The hearing is before the governor and council in the house of representatives chamber in the state house. Atty. Gen. Sturgis appeared for the state and ex-Atty. Gen. Wm. R. Farnsworth of this city and Edward T. Munroe of Bangor, democratic leader of the last house of representatives, appeared for the accused sheriff. A large part of the time was occupied in documentary evidence. "We shall show," continued Sturgis, "that the records of the courts will show that the sheriff or none of his deputies did not in one single instance make complaint or obtain a warrant for search and seizure of any box, package or parcel. "We shall show by the testimony that during that period places long well known to be rumshops have been repeatedly selling intoxicating liquors. We shall produce the liquors purchased and show you when and where they were bought and the current price, which averaged $4 per quart. Clinton C. Stevens of Bangor, clerk of courts of Penobscot county, read records from the supreme judicial court docket tending to show that while capias were issued on indictments against persons convicted of liquor selling, arrests have not been made. The respondents are at large at the present time, and never have been called upon even to give bail. The taking of testimony on the part of the prosecution will be resumed today. Some 40 witnesses were sworn in by the prosecution. They include the county attorney, clerk of courts and commissioner of Penobscot county, employees of the Maine Central Railroad Co., Eastern Steamship Co., the American Express Co., recorder of the Bangor municipal court, three members of the Bangor police force and well known professional and business men.

$8,000,000 A YEAR IN TAXES

McAdoo Urges Raising Rates on Incomes—Would Help the Sale of Liberty Bonds

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Sec. McAdoo yesterday recommended in a letter to Chairman Kitchin of the house ways and means committee that the new revenue bill be drawn to raise $8,000,000,000 by taxation, one-third of the estimated $24,000,000,000 expenditures in the fiscal year 1919.

He recommended that a war profits tax be established at high rates to be superimposed on existing excess profits taxes; that the normal income tax on unearned incomes be raised, and that heavy taxation be imposed on luxuries.

The suggestions were given in response to a letter from Mr. Kitchin and constituted an outline of the treasury's ideas not only of taxation to meet the nation's huge war expenses in the future, but of preparing

GIRLS' PAINS AND WEAKNESS

Yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands of Girls Benefited

St. Louis, Mo.—"When I was only fifteen years old mother had to put me to bed every month for two days because I suffered such pain. I also suffered from a weakness and mother took me to a doctor but he did not help me. Finally mother made me take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has made me strong and healthy. So when mother or I hear any woman complaining we tell them about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it did for me."—Mrs. JOHN FRAME, 1121 N. 18th St., St. Louis, Mo.

Girls who suffer as Mrs. Frame did should not hesitate to give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial, as the evidence that is constantly being published proves beyond question that this grand old remedy has relieved more suffering among women than any other medicine.

The letters constantly being published from women in every section of this country prove beyond question the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A Tonic For Women With Shaky Nerves

Any woman who is irritable, nervous, depressed, dissatisfied and over-tired should face the facts in her own case and see where she is drifting.

A tendency to blame husband or child for everything that happens, perhaps to scold a little, is a sign that the nerves are lacking in the strength that makes the mind calm. If you are like this your nerves are sick. The following interview shows how the nerves can be strengthened.

"I was in a run-down condition," says Mrs. E. Salin, of No. 52 Linnea street, Brockton, Mass., "and my nerves were unstrung. I had tried several remedies without lasting relief. I would have trembling sensations that made me feel terrible. My heart fluttered and it seemed as if I would choke. These spells seemed to exhaust me and take all my strength."

"After reading about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in a newspaper I decided to try them. After taking two boxes I felt much better and my nerves were quieter. Upon the completion of the fifth box I was entirely relieved of the nervous spells and was much stronger in every way. I recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to anyone who suffers as I did."

The treatment in cases like this is one of nutrition of the nerve cells, requiring a non-alcoholic tonic. As the nerves get their nourishment from the blood the treatment must be directed toward building up the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act directly on the blood and with proper regulation of the diet have proved of the greatest benefit in many cases of neurasthenia. A tendency to anemia, or bloodlessness, shown by most neurasthenic patients, is also corrected by these tonic pills.

Two useful books "Diseases of the Nervous System" and "What to Eat and How to Eat" will be sent free by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., if you mention this paper. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50. There has been no increase in price.—Adv.

(Four per cent normal and eight per cent excess profits) should be retained in respect to earned incomes, while a higher rate than 12 per cent should be imposed on unearned incomes.

"Four—That heavy taxation be imposed upon all luxuries."

As to War Profits Explaining his policy as to a new tax to reach actual profits made out of the war, Mr. McAdoo said that corporations and business men in entering into war contracts they take grave risks and are called upon to make vast expenditures of capital for purposes which may prove unproductive after the war.

"They are not to be blamed in these circumstances from asking prices and terms which cover these risks," he said. "On the other hand, when the risk has been liquidated by proper allowances and the contract has proved profitable, the government should take back in taxes all profits above a reasonable reward."

In discussing the way in which a higher normal rate on incomes would promote the sale of Liberty Bonds, the secretary wrote:

"I hope that it will not be necessary further to increase the interest rate on government bonds. The people who subscribed are impatient of those who have not. Various plans have been urged upon me for forcing the people to buy Liberty Bonds."

"There is a popular demand also for high taxes upon war profits. There is also a popular demand that all the people would contribute to financing the war."

"There should, therefore, be a substantial increase in the normal income tax rate and a higher tax should be levied upon unearned incomes than on earned incomes. Income derived from Liberty Bonds would be exempt from this taxation and the relation between income from Liberty Bonds and income from other securities would be readjusted without increasing the rate of interest on Liberty Bonds."

Would Avoid Inflation

Not to increase the sum to be raised by taxes next year and consequently to raise $20,000,000,000 from government bonds, said Mr. McAdoo, "would be a surrender to the policy of high interest rates and inflation, with the evil consequences which would flow inevitably therefrom, and which would, I firmly believe, bring ultimate disaster to the country."

Treasury tax experts are at work now drafting plans for removing some of the acknowledged injustices of the present excess profits measure, applying particularly to businesses with small capitalization and consequently high rates of earnings. Suggestions for these amendments will be presented to congress if they are called for.

Sec. McAdoo has expressed himself, however, as anxious to avoid the appearance of dictating legislation on revenue matters.

partook of the food had nothing but words of praise for the members of the organization who supplied the fish and for Chef Trudeau, who prepared one of the most delicious dishes of his kind ever served under the roof of the club. The affair was organized at a few minutes' notice and simply to satisfy the hunger of a half dozen or more members of the club, who were returning from a two-days fishing trip to Lake Winnepesaukee, and it was they who brought the fish along with them. Some members of the party claimed that the perch, bass and lake trout were duly and legally caught on the hook in the waters of the New Hampshire lake, while a telephone message received from Club Joliet in Manchester in the early part of the evening was to the effect that the Lowell party, who had made a brief stop at the club, had made another brief stop at the largest fish market in the Queen city, but the fishermen were given the benefit of the doubt by their fellow-members and the fish from Lake Winnepesaukee proved a real treat.

The members of the fishing party were Ovilla Morin, Pierre Sougezais, Louis Desrosiers, Dr. George R. Chase, Joseph Gagnon, Willie Rousseau and Z. A. Normandin. They left Lowell in two automobiles Tuesday morning and arrived at Gledale, N. H., their camping grounds, some time in the afternoon and they report that during their two-days stay on the shores of the great lake their meals consisted of fish, fish and more fish, and they all solemnly swear that not one pound of the food was purchased, but all was caught on the hook, and in addition they brought back with them about 25 pounds of white perch, bass and lake trout, while they also claim that they gave the railroad agent at Gledale fish enough to do him for a month.

During their spare time at the camp, that is when they were not out fishing, the "boys" were thoroughly drilled by Ovilla Morin, a veteran of the Spanish-American war, who was unanimously elected captain of the company upon reaching the summer resort. As a result of efficiency and hard work Private Bourgeois was promoted to sergeant, while Private Desrosiers was given the stripes of a corporal. It is said that if the campers had remained another couple of days at Gledale, there would have been no privates left in the company, for everyone was picking up the military manual in great style and all were in line for promotion and Captain Morin seemed generously disposed along that line. Be that as it may, all members of the party reported a splendid trip and they claim there is no better place for a real fishing trip than Lake Winnepesaukee.

BOSTON GETS AIR MAIL FROM NEW YORK

SAUGUS, June 7.—Lieut. T. H. Webb, a United States army aviator, landed here late yesterday with more than 1000 pieces of mail matter from New York for Boston. It was Boston's first airplane mail. The trip required three hours and 22 minutes.

In making a landing at the aviation field at Franklin park, here, Lieut. Webb's machine ran into a pile of soft earth and tipped up, throwing the pilot and his mechanic, Ray Heck, out, but neither was injured. The machine, however, was somewhat damaged, and it was not believed that it would be possible to make a return flight tomorrow as had been planned. Mechanics who examined the airplane said that one propeller blade had been broken and that the front had been wrenched and strained.

Assistant Postmaster William E. Hurley of Boston and other postoffice officials were here to greet the aviator, and the seven pouches of mail which he brought were taken to Boston in an automobile for delivery.

Lieut. Webb made his start from Belmont park, Long Island, at 12:00 and landed here at 3:31 p. m. He lost his bearings once during the trip, Lieut. Webb said, and made a brief stop near Haddam, Conn., to get his bearings. As the machine neared Boston it ran into a rain storm.

Another machine had been hauled out onto the aviation field as a marker to guide Lieut. Webb in locating the park, and after circling the field once he landed almost directly in front of the waiting officials.

The housewives of Hazleton, Penn., took cooking lessons in wartime substitutes recently from Mrs. James Wilson, formerly chef to the late Queen Victoria of England.

TRENCH FIGHTING GIVES WAY TO OLD-FASHIONED WARFARE

By Newspaper Enterprise Association.

PARIS, June 7.—Warfare on the western front has returned to the open methods of the American Civil war and the Napoleonic wars.

After three years and a half in the trenches, the contending armies are fighting once more in the open. Cavalry charges, maneuvering of large bodies of infantry, and the employment of mobile field artillery are seen again as in other battles famous in history.

For this the Hindenburg tactics of wrestling territory from the allies regardless of human lives is responsible. But it comes as a welcome change to the allied soldiers, who are thoroughly sick of life in the trenches.

The March offensive on the Picardy and Flanders fronts was the first big battle on the west front since 1911 that was fought in the open. British and German cavalry detachments took part in that engagement, and the furious hand-to-hand fighting in streets and open fields by the opposing infan-

SOFT JOB SCHEME KILLED—TRADE TESTS FOR RECRUITS AT DEVENS

CAMP DEVENS, Ayer, June 7.—Recruits coming to this camp in future drafts will have an opportunity to show what is in them and the kind of work they are best fitted for almost as soon as they arrive, and if the army requires men to do the kind of work that they have been performing in civil life, they will have a chance to compete against other drafts for the jobs.

Under the new system a list of the number of men of each trade required by the division will be made up. When the men begin to come in, their records in civil life will be examined by the personnel officer and from these cards he will select the number of men of each trade required by the division. Then the men will be called upon to take the trade tests. Carpenters, blacksmiths, masons, electricians, chauffeurs, all the trades will be represented and tests will be given by experts at each trade.

Examination of Men Finished

The work of examining the men of the 76th division is practically completed, and while it is yet too early to learn exactly how many were found physically unfit for overseas service, it is estimated that the number will exceed 2500. Those who were disqualified for service abroad will be held for domestic service only—"D.S.O." as it is popularly called—and there is the possibility that some of these men at least may go to the United States guard.

From their divisional organizations, however, they will be transferred to the Depot Brigade, and it is believed that the men who will replace them in the division will come from the Depot Brigade, though this was not stated officially. It surprised the examining officers to find so many of the men who came here from Camp Upton physically unfit and so many of the Uptonians will have a place in the New England division when it goes across.

A Night Raid

Members of the division bayonet school, a night raid in the trenches back of the base hospital under the school instructors, Capt. R. H. Goodday and Company Sgt. Major C. Dawson, both of the British army. The men advanced in battle order with gas masks. After routing the enemy from his trenches, with the aid of a creeping barrage fire made with sticks of dynamite, the British exploded in midair, signals were sent up that the position had been taken. The enemy, however, countered and another barrage had to be laid down to help beat them off. The "enemy" consisted of 30 candidates from the 4th Officers' Training school.

Occasionally the allied horsemen run into regiments of advancing German infantrymen. Then their task is to get back to the French lines and warn the officers in command. In this way also, some furious encounters have taken place which will not be told in detail until the actors in them get war crosses for their bravery.

For the first week of the battle the French infantry was in retreat, but it fought the Germans desperately nearly every step of the way. Rifles and bayonets took the place of machine guns and hand grenades. Hand-to-hand fighting supplanted trench warfare. Every inch of ground gained by the Germans was bitterly contested.

Now that the drive has been checked along the Noyon-Chateau-Thierry line, the French infantry, reinforced by thousands of General Foch's reserves, is counter-attacking and fighting furiously to prevent the enemy from advancing any further toward Paris.

Still the battle is being waged in the open. Towns have been captured by the foe at the point of the bayonet, only to be recaptured by the French in brilliant counter-charges of the kind which make the pages of history ring with heroism.

This is the kind of warfare that General Foch is best at. For years he studied and taught military tactics of this sort. He knows all that Napoleon knew about it, and more. He is France's greatest expert on offensive fighting. He has countless reserve forces to throw into the battle when he considers the time ripe.

To outgeneral this master of strategy, Hindenburg is going to have his hands full.

fitted after they became members of the national army, but the new plan eliminates all possible chance of a man coming to camp and picking off a soft job by declaring himself to be an expert at that work. His own word for it won't go after this; he has got to prove it.

Announcement of this new system was made here yesterday, but it will probably not go into effect for some time, for it will require time to prepare. Trade tests, they are called, and they will include practically every trade required by the army, and the army needs men of about every trade there is.

Under the new system a list of the number of men of each trade required by the division will be made up. When the men begin to come in, their records in civil life will be examined by the personnel officer and from these cards he will select the number of men of each trade required by the division. Occasionally the allied horsemen run into regiments of advancing German infantrymen. Then their task is to get back to the French lines and warn the officers in command. In this way also, some furious encounters have taken place which will not be told in detail until the actors in them get war crosses for their bravery.

For the first week of the battle the French infantry was in retreat, but it fought the Germans desperately nearly every step of the way. Rifles and bayonets took the place of machine guns and hand grenades. Hand-to-hand fighting supplanted trench warfare. Every inch of ground gained by the Germans was bitterly contested.

Now that the drive has been checked along the Noyon-Chateau-Thierry line, the French infantry, reinforced by thousands of General Foch's reserves, is counter-attacking and fighting furiously to prevent the enemy from advancing any further toward Paris.

Still the battle is being waged in the open. Towns have been captured by the foe at the point of the bayonet, only to be recaptured by the French in brilliant counter-charges of the kind which make the pages of history ring with heroism.

This is the kind of warfare that General Foch is best at. For years he studied and taught military tactics of this sort. He knows all that Napoleon knew about it, and more. He is France's greatest expert on offensive fighting. He has countless reserve forces to throw into the battle when he considers the time ripe.

To outgeneral this master of strategy, Hindenburg is going to have his hands full.

GEN. PEARSON WANTS TO JOIN THE ARMY

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Further efforts were made yesterday by Gen. Gardner W. Pearson of Lowell to get the war department to accept his services and his experience, in the present war, his last call of the day being made upon Asst. Sec. Crowell, in company with Representatives Rogers and Olney.

Gen. Pearson called earlier at the ordnance and other bureaus, but learned that only men who had specialized were considered in such branches, and his hope was that Asst. Sec. Crowell might find some opening for his general military abilities, gained through 20 years of experience in Massachusetts.

It is understood that the offer of his services was taken under consideration.

PRIVATE CULL WRITES FROM CAMP UPTON

Camp Upton, June 4, 1918.

Dear John: I am just finishing dinner and have a few minutes to myself. I thought it a good chance to pen a few lines. Of course, you understand I can't write to each individual as much as I would like to, but I'll try to get a card to them in the near future.

The army life is fine if one wants to get right down to business and make himself agreeable. Seldom you hear anyone finding fault and altogether things move along very smoothly.

We have our own mess kits and have to keep these clean. Washing takes considerable time as we have to wait our turn. Clean faces are in order, especially at the inspections, and I have to keep shaved about every day.

For now I will have to call this a mile and in conclusion let me express my sincere thanks to all. With kindest personal regards, I am have roll call at 6.15, then make our bunks, sweep and have our barracks in order. At 7 o'clock we have breakfast and then a short rest. We start the day at 7.30 and drill until 11.30. Some days we have inspections, lectures, inspections, examinations and several other minor details. Dinner is served at 12 o'clock and we rest until 1.30. Then we start the afternoon procedure. Retreat, that is the close of the working day for drill, comes at 4 o'clock. Instructions at 4.15, then we are dismissed.

SOLDIER AT FORT HANKS GIVEN THIRTY-YEAR TERM FOR DISLOYALTY

BOSTON, June 7.—Philip H. Grosser, a private at Fort Banks, was sentenced to 30 years' imprisonment in the disciplinary barracks at Fort Jay yesterday, having been found guilty by court martial of making disloyal remarks and encouraging disloyalty among soldiers. Army officials said Grosser claimed to be a conscientious objector.

The explosion of a multitude of these bulbs during the progress of the blaze could be heard for blocks away.

To protect military stores, designed for the United States Signal corps for shipment abroad and temporarily housed in the structure, a cordon of the Third battalion was hurried to the scene from Commonwealth Pier, and under Lieutenant Samuel Henderson stood guard about the building. The smoke was so dense as to drive out employees from adjoining structures, while a rescue squad from the Fort Hill fire station used smoke masks with facility and effectiveness.

It is reported also that Lieut. Madon has gained his 32nd victory, Captain Pensard his 19th and Second Lieut. Boyon his 14th.

William Stevenson, a farm employee of Waverly, Penn., earns only $50 a month, yet he contracted to buy $250 worth of bonds, paying $25 a month. Of the remaining $25 he needs $22.50 for board, leaving him $2.50 for spending money.

MR. ROGERS APPEALS FOR DRAFT OF ALIENS

Special to The Sun

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 7.—Congressman Rogers urged immediate action regarding draft of aliens in the house today and called attention to the fact that although the senate and house had each passed separate bills tending to that end, no bill had been passed by congress nor have pending treaties with Great Britain and Canada been ratified. Said Mr. Rogers in part:

The draft law was signed by the president May 18, 1917. Ten million men between 21 and 31 registered June 5. As I pointed out in a rather extended speech delivered in this house on July 13, over one-eighth of the number, about a million and a quarter in all, were aliens and exempt from the draft. In some states the percentage of alien registrants to total registrants was 35 or 40 per cent. Yet the quotas of those states were based on total population, although one-third or more of that population was exempted outright. The unfair and unjust drain upon the citizen population of these communities was manifest. The spectacle of the young alien stepping into the job of the drafted American was not an agreeable one. But running still deeper was the conviction of our people that the alien who had come to our shores, obtaining our protection and enjoying our freedom and prosperity, must not escape without the slightest obligation to defend the United States in its struggle for existence.

The house committee on foreign affairs on Aug. 1 unanimously reported

out a resolution which I had introduced and which had the express sanction of the president and the secretary of state. This resolution called upon the secretary of state to enter into treaties for the inclusion in our draft of the subjects of foreign countries residing in this country.

On Aug. 1 the senate unanimously passed a practically identical resolution.

On Sept. 12 the senate passed the drastic Chamberlain bill, providing for the draft of all aliens except enemy aliens and aliens protected by treaty. This resolution, upon the personal request of the secretary of state, was killed later in September by the house committee on military affairs and has never been resurrected.

On February 27, after repeated postponements requested by the secretary of state, the house passed the Burnett bill, providing deportation for the aliens who did not submit to the draft. This bill apparently is as dead as the Chamberlain bill, no action having been taken by the senate.

Presumably pursuant to the action of congress of last August, the secretary of state, on Feb. 27, finally submitted to the senate drafts of treaties with Great Britain and Canada for the mutual drafting of the subjects of each country residing in the other. On March 22, two and one-half months ago, the secretary withdrew the treaties. They have not been resubmitted.

Here the story stops. Fourteen months after the declaration of war and 13 months after the enactment of the draft law nothing has been done in spite of the warranted and insistent demand of the whole country for speedy action. Millions of our men are going forth to the war, yet no alien need accompany them to defend their common country.

"How long?" Is there no end to the delay? Can it be that we can not agree with those allies by whose side we are fighting for our lives? Surely the cordial feelings between us must make possible an immediate meeting of minds. Surely each nation will gladly yield in matters of detail. Surely the nations must not in this regard appear as bargainers, each seeking its utmost advantage. The common cause is far too great to be belittled by such attitudes. Let us get together in this as in all else.

IN POLICE COURT

William Kemp, a butcher of Chelmsford, was in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with selling diseased meat and after being found guilty was ordered to pay a fine of $65.

Alfred Daniel and Joseph Hachy were found guilty of larceny and the former was ordered to pay a fine of $40 while the latter was sentenced to six months in jail.

Mohamed Karon was charged with a violation of the Lord's day and a fine of $5 was imposed while Harvey R. Lacaille was fined $3 for a violation of a city ordinance, relative to collecting fares on jitneys.

William F. Regan, charged with drunkenness, was sentenced to two months in jail. Joseph Kozel was ordered to pay a fine of $7 and five simple drunks were released.

TRAINING AMERICAN ARMY HERE FOR OPEN COMBAT AND PURSUIT

WASHINGTON, June 7.—American troops in training at home are being especially schooled now in preparation for the forward movement of the allied armies expected to follow the ultimate crushing of Germany's offensive power.

It was learned yesterday that orders have been issued to division commanders to lay greater stress upon training for open warfare and reduce the time devoted to teaching trench specialties.

The men are being hardened to long marches, given target practice without end and thoroughly trained to take care of themselves in the give and take of open combat.

Military observers say the change in the midst of the greatest effort of the German general staff of the entire war speaks significantly of the spirit of confidence that pervades the councils and armies of America and the allies.

When many of the men now in training here reach France, long marches and swift maneuvering against a retreating foe may well be the order of the day.

Influent officers returning from the front have been insisting recently upon greater attention to general elements of warfare and less to the fine details of position fighting in fixed trench lines.

These officers say the American soldier takes naturally to training of this sort and that he should be developed as highly as possible in all-round soldiering, leaving the details of trench warfare education to be added by a brief postgraduate course when he reaches France.

This view found ready sympathy here, for it is believed the old stalemate of the trench lines has been broken, never to be restored.

Yesterday's news from the front added to the growing conviction here that Gen. Foch has outgeneraled the Germans on the Aisne front in having brought them to a halt without weakening the defenses of the channel ports.

Territory has been yielded, but no point of strategic value, and the Germans must try again to draw away the supporting lines in Picardy and Flanders or face the necessity of hurling their army into the wall of man power, French, British and American, that now blocks the road to the channel ports.

Officers who have come from the front say that the American units pouring into France in a steady and growing stream despite German U-boats at both ends of the 2000-mile water haul are arriving well advanced in training for the business of them.

Commenting upon the high tributes paid by French and British officers to the Americans, it was remarked yesterday that while the movements in which the Americans have been given a chance have as yet been minor affairs proportionately, always the dash has been there.

One officer recently back from the front pointed out that while French and British veterans are brave beyond words, ready for battle whenever and wherever it may come, they are cooler by long years of the struggle. The Americans are craving a chance to fight, for it is all new to them.

TO PREVENT SPREAD OF TUBERCULOSIS

BOSTON, June 7.—Isolation and confinement of incorrigible consumptives as a means of protecting children and preventing the spread of tuberculosis was urged by Dr. John J. Lloyd of Rochester, N. Y., in an address today before the National Anti-Tuberculosis association, which is holding its 14th annual meeting here.

The infection of young children, Dr. Lloyd declared, is seriously retarding the proper limitation of the disease.

Today's sessions, divided into three parts—sociological, clinical and pathological—were taken up with addresses on the various phases of the work of the association. Dr. Allen K. Krause of Baltimore, dealing with tuberculosis, made the statement that practically every adult was infected with the germs of the disease, though the symptoms were not always manifest.

Rest rather than exercise was prescribed for persons suffering from acute tuberculosis, in an address by Dr. Hugh M. Kinghorn of Saranac Lake, N. Y.

The greater use of fresh air in preventive and curative work was urged by Dr. Vincent T. Bowditch of Boston who especially praised fresh air schools for consumptive children.

THIN, IRRITABLE CHILD

Gained Flesh, Strength and Good Nature by Taking Vinol

Middletown, Conn.—"I used Vinol for my little girl 5 years old for a run-down, nervous condition. She was thin, irritable all the time and had no appetite. In a week I noticed an improvement and now she has a good appetite, has gained in flesh and strength and is much pleasanter to live with."—Mrs. C. E. Wilkinson.

There is no secret about Vinol. It gives its success in such cases to beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptones and glycerophosphates, the oldest and most famous body-building tonics known. KILLING GARDEN DISEASES

There are parasites that prey upon society and parasites that live upon garden plants. Do not let them eat up any of your good food. Mr. Gardener, advise the national war garden commission in today's bulletin. Most garden diseases are caused by some kind of fungus which can be controlled by spraying.

Fungus diseases are fought with remedies called fungicides. The best all-purpose fungicide is Bordeaux mixture, which has been used for many years in fighting many kinds of diseases. This is the formula for ten quarts of it: Copper sulphate or blue stone, three ounces; lump lime or fresh hydrate lime, three ounces; water, ten quarts.

You can procure copper sulphate from a druggist or seedsman, and lime from a seedsman or a lumber or a coal dealer. Dissolve the copper sulphate in two quarts of hot water in a wooden bucket or earthen jar, or if you plan ahead just tie it in a piece of cloth and hang it just below the surface of a quart or two of water. It will dissolve slowly and settle to the bottom. If you put it at the bottom of the cold water it will not dissolve. Dilute this to five quarts with water. Slack the lump lime and pour on enough water to make five quarts. If you have hydrate lime, just mix it into the five quarts of water. Now pour the copper sulphate slowly into the lime water and stir with a paddle while doing so. This is Bordeaux mixture. It is a good plan to slack a couple of pounds of lime in the spring so as to have it on hand when wanted. It will keep for many months if you have water over it so it cannot dry out.

Bordeaux may be used with poison so as to kill both diseases and biting insects at one time, and with nicotine sulphate so as to kill diseases and sucking insects at one time. Do not make up more Bordeaux at one time than you will spray within a day or two, because it will not keep long. The prepared Bordeaux is effective, but more expensive than the homemade brand. Any reader of this paper who has not yet received a copy of the free war garden primer should do so immediately by writing to the national war garden commission of Washington, and enclosing a two-cent stamp for postage.

This celebrated American actress has exceptional talent for playing juvenile roles, but for many years it was necessary for her to exercise the most painstaking care in her make-up, because her hair was so streaked with gray that it was noticeable across the "forelights," and dyes are in bad taste, giving the hair that objectionable dyed look.

The problem of making up for juvenile parts was simplified for this noted actress recently when she began to use Q-Ban Hair Color Restorer, which completely removed the gray streaks and fully restored the natural dark color of her hair, which now glimmers with health and beauty. It is no longer necessary for her to resort to dyes or wear a wig on the stage.

ANNOUNCES AWARDS IN TWO LABOR DISPUTES

BOSTON, June 7.—Findings in labor troubles at the West Boylston Manufacturing Company at Easthampton and the Edison Electric Light company were announced yesterday by Executive Manager Henry B. Endicott of the Massachusetts committee on public safety and state food administration. On the case of the former company, work had been halted because of the inability of the company and its employees to come to an understanding. As the company is making duck for important war work, Mr. Endicott's good offices were requested by Secretary of War Baker.

Mr. Endicott undertook the arbitration with the understanding that the employees should return to work immediately, which was done, and Mr. Endicott went to Easthampton rather than ask the principals to come to Boston. Mr. Endicott in this case decides on an increase of 12 1/2 per cent. for weavers, who had asked for an advance of 35 per cent. and 50 cents additional compensation while working overtime up to 9 o'clock, in addition to the regular piecework payment. Mr. Endicott refused their petition for 25 cents an hour in the event of a long standing idle more than an hour. The company agrees to install a proper system for tagging imperfections in cloth. He does not think it advisable that the mills should be required to become a union shop, but decides that there shall be no discrimination against any of the committee for this cause.

To the spinners Mr. Endicott grants a 10 per cent. advance and agrees with them that they shall not be required to do overtime, except in connection with the weekly cleaning. They had asked for a 25 per cent. increase. The cloth room girls, twister tenders, doers and quillers are given 10 per cent. advances. Spool tenders are given 10 per cent. increase and are to receive 20 1/2 cents for each hour they remain unemployed through no fault of their own.

In the Edison case, the operators are not given an advance, but will receive time and a half for overtime as against straight time given by the company. In a statement issued last night by Mr. Endicott he says:

"It appeared to the arbitrator during the hearings that much of the trouble had been caused by unfortunate misunderstandings between the men and certain subordinate officials of the company; that it was apparent that the men did not have the confidence in the open-mindedness of these immediate superiors. Mr. Endicott recommended that the company take steps to remedy this condition, as he observed this was essential if the company desired to maintain the public's good will."

CIRCUS WELL PATRONIZED BY LOWELL PEOPLE

Thousands of Lowell people journeyed to the Fair Grounds yesterday, thousands partook of the enjoyments thereon and thousands returned to their homes, wearied but well satisfied with their 1918 visit to that modern wonder—the circus.

Barnum & Bailey's melange exhibited at the well known stamping grounds yesterday afternoon and evening and the "big show" had most of the features of past years with many innovations. The combined total of the people who witnessed each performance was estimated at between 15,000 and 20,000 which means that the Barnum & Bailey management were not altogether empty-handed when they left town last evening.

There were all the introductory and extraneous attractions on the midway that led to the main tent. The side-show hawkers were just as convincingly vociferous as ever, the red lemons were as blushing shaded and there were just as many steaming "dogs."

The menagerie had its usual quota of animals arranged around the tent that led to the circus itself and the hairy lions, fierce tigers and gaping giraffes had all their old-time fascination.

The big show itself opened with "Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp," a Chinese pageant that outshone any circus "openers" previously seen here. It was full of action and elaborated the well known story of the magic lamp. There are characters galore with all the dazzling costumes and graceful dancing so characteristic of these affairs.

The masters of the rings and trapeze were next on the program and although there were few young men performers in comparison with other years, nevertheless, the veterans were as agile as ever and there seemed to be a large number of young women performers, every one of them well worth looking at.

The riding was up to its customary standard and one of the clown performers overshadowed almost everything in the line of horseback riding that Lowell people have ever seen. This particular individual was at home in any position on the animal's back and no matter what pace the horse undertook, the rider was ever able to adapt himself to it. The statue horses were exceedingly pretty to look at.

The animal acts were also fine. Ponderous elephants performed perfectly the most delicate stunts. Bears roller-skated and played baseball with all the abandon of human beings. In fact all the animals were up to their usual mark.

The clowns were once more the centre of much attention. They introduced a lot of new "stuff" and this in combination with the old standbys never failed to bring out roars. It was a satisfying, generous and enjoyable performance and all the good traditions of the circus were lived up to by the Barnum & Bailey people.

SEN. LODGE DEFENDS U. S. NAVY SAYS BRAGS INVITED U-BOATS

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Complete conference in the measure taken by the navy to deal with submarine raiders was expressed in the senate yesterday by spokesmen on both sides of the chamber. Senator Lewis of Illinois, democratic whip, and Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, republican, joined in declaring that the navy was on the alert and ready for the enemy.

Different Theories
These expressions came in the midst of a sharp debate precipitated by the reading by Senator Brandegee of Connecticut of a newspaper editorial criticizing the navy department for not warning shipping of the presence of the submarines. Commenting on this, Senators Lewis and Lodge agreed there was no complaint against the navy, though they had very different theories as to what possibly drew the submarines to American shores. Senator Lewis said the attack was invited by false statements in congress and elsewhere regarding the nation's preparedness; while the Massachusetts senator suggested that "loose brags and boasts" about the number of American troops transported overseas had contributed to the appearance of the raiders.

In connection with the warning of shipping, Acting Secretary Roosevelt disclosed yesterday that a radio message was sent broadcast by the navy more than a week ago informing all shipping and shore stations that enemy submarines might appear at any point along the Atlantic coast. At that time the news that the enemy had attacked schooners off the Virginia capes had not reached the department and Mr. Roosevelt declined to discuss how the navy received the information upon which the warning was based.

Steamers and all craft in port received the message. Slow moving sailing vessels without wireless, however, had to take their chances in ignorance until they made port.

The fact that naval radio stations general times recently have picked up unintelligible radio impulses, believed now to have come from the raiders themselves, was also revealed. They were too indistinct to be read. In view of later developments it appears likely that the enemy craft themselves heard the warning of their presence sent out.

Senator Lodge, in defending the navy, said in part:
"I shall not occupy the attention of the senate long and my purpose in rising is not to make an attack on any other American citizen or any party or to charge them with inviting Germany to come over here with her submarines. If I were disposed to do it, I might say that nothing has so stimulated and invited Germany as loose brags and boasts about the number of troops we are transporting to France."

"Germany has not been invited here by any attacks made upon the American navy because if there have been any attacks made upon the navy I for one have not heard them or seen them and I have followed the subject with extreme closeness for I am deeply interested in it owing to my somewhat long service on the committee on naval affairs."

Taken Every Precaution
"What I wish to say is that the navy and the navy department have taken every precaution that human foresight could suggest so far as I am able to judge and I have examined their preparations with as much intelligence and care as I could give the matter. The navy and navy department have necessarily anticipated a submarine attack from the very beginning of the war. They have had it constantly in their minds. They have tried to make every preparation to meet it. I think they have."

It would be most injurious for me to stand here and follow down the map of the coast and tell the senate and the public exactly what these preparations are, tell them where the submarine chasers are, where the destroyers are, where the signal stations are, what arrangements they have made for meeting the danger when it came, as they were sure it would come. No human mind possibly can tell when out of the great waste of waters of the Atlantic ocean a submarine, which travels by night and submerges by day, will appear. As soon as the navy had any authentic news to indicate the presence of submarines on this coast they acted. That is all that I feel at liberty to say in a general way."

Submarines From Europe
Senator Fall developed a line of explanation from Senator Lodge as to the beliefs of the naval authorities as to the possibility of the German navy having a base on the western shore of the Atlantic. Senator Lodge replied:

"These submarines, of course, in the first instance came from Europe. They are believed to be, I think correctly, submarines of a very large type built by Germany. It is understood from the best information that can be obtained that these vessels, some of them—they are very few as yet—have a steaming radius of over 6000 miles. If that is correct, by hoarding their fuel and sharing it as much as possible they would have some latitude in point of time; but of course there must come a moment when they must seek a base. It must either be a base on shore where oil and other supplies are provided or it must be a mother ship."

"It is possible that they have received oil smuggled out of this country on some vessel. It could not be done, I should suppose, more than once. It is highly improbable that they have any base on the coast of the United States or of Canada, because the land patrol and the sea patrol are almost as absolutely complete as they can be made."

"We have a patrol along the coast which is composed chiefly of what is known as the life-saving service or coast guard as it is now known. We also have an organized system for procuring information from fishermen and others on the coast extending from Maine to the Gulf. These sources of information were organized and in operation through the navy department at least two years before we entered the war so I believe that so far as our own coasts are concerned the chances of a base there are almost negligible."

"The chances of a base in the West Indies are very small. I do not like to go into all the details, but I think it will suggest itself to senators if they will consider the different islands beginning with the lower end of the Lesser Antilles, possessions of France and England, and coming up to the islands which we either control or are interested in, ending with Cuba, where we have a great naval base at Guantanamo."

"There remains, of course, the possibility of a base in the Gulf of Mexico, on Mexican territory."

ALLEGED PLOTTERS ARE RELEASED ON BAIL

NEW YORK, June 7.—Montefiore J. Kahn and Vladimir Joffelson, suspected of plotting to smuggle into this country jewels of the former czar of Russia, furnished $10,000 bail each before U. S. Commissioner Stanton at Hoboken yesterday and were released. They were given a hearing today. Kahn's brother was said to be their bondsman.

York. He said the land was worth $2,600,000.
The land never came into possession of the league. Its existence was regarded as a myth by officers of the league. Mrs. Rose H. Kahn, his mother, said at the time that her son "must have made a mistake," as he owned "no such quantity as that."

Mrs. Kahn denied in 1912 assertions of her son that he was a cousin of Otto H. Kahn, the banker. As for the story that he was a lineal descendant of Sir Moses Montefiore, she said:

"His name is Montefiore, and we always gave him the impression he was descended from Sir Moses. As a matter of fact, he is not."

Mrs. Kahn arrived on a Scandinavian-American line steamship, May 26, and was detained by the authorities. He described himself as connected with a New York exporting house. He left America for Russia, by way of San Francisco, a year ago. He had been under suspicion as a German agent.

ENTHUSIASTIC OVER EFFORT OF COMMISSION ON PREVENTION OF TUBERCULOSIS

BOSTON, June 7.—Efforts of the commission on the prevention of tuberculosis, supported by the Rockefeller Foundation, are being received with the greatest enthusiasm by the French people everywhere in France, said Dr. James Alexander Miller of New York in an address here yesterday before the National Tuberculosis association.

of educational literature and exhibits. Four of these are already in action. The lectures, exhibits and other public meetings being held in various parts of France are being attended by thousands of people, asserted Dr. Miller. The whole country is awakening to the fact that tuberculosis is a serious menace and that America efforts to arouse community responsibility in the control of this disease may well be copied in France.

BOSTON BOYS WHO CAME TO LOWELL WERE GATHERED IN BY THE POLICE

Thomas Aslan, aged 14 years, and Manuel Domolo, aged 13 years, both of Boston, are troubled with wanderlust and yesterday took a journey to this city. About 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon they attracted the attention of Sergeant Maguire and Patrolman Linsane who, after questioning the pair, sent them to the police station where they were kept until their parents, who had been notified, called for them and took them back to Boston.

TANKER DAMAGED BY MINE RE-FLOATED

PHILADELPHIA, June 7.—With the Stars and Stripes waving gaily from her stern, the American tanker Herbert L. Pratt, damaged by a mine off the Delaware capes last Monday, arrived at her dock here yesterday and at once began unloading her cargo of oil that a German submarine was unable to send to the bottom of the ocean. The only outward evidences of her experience were patches of fresh black paint on her bow and furniture and other fittings scattered about the deck to dry.

was a terrific explosion under the bow. This was at 3:25 p. m. The tanker immediately began to settle by the head and the ship's four lifeboats were sent over the side. Three of them, filled with members of the crew, started to row away but when it was found the tanker was not sinking rapidly they were called back and the ship put on full speed for shallow water and struck on a shoal. The explosion occurred about nine miles from shore.

Shipping men regard the quick raising of the tanker's bow as a fine piece of wrecking work.

SAYS AIR RAIDS ON NEW YORK ARE POSSIBLE

LONDON, June 7.—The announcement that the police commissioner of New York had issued instructions to citizens as to their conduct in case hostile air raids are made over the city, has aroused much interest in London. Naval men declare that German air raids on New York are not wildly improbable.

It was reported two years ago that Germany was constructing submarine seaplane carriers, and it was suggested that one of the airplane raids on the British east coast was carried out with the aid of such craft.

With the coming of the submarine cruiser, it is considered to be no difficult matter to transport a seaplane for carrying out raids, not on a formidable scale, but on a scale picturesque enough to have distinct psychological value from the point of view of the German admiralty.

UNIFIED SUPPORT OF WAR

Before the war there was a feeling abroad that the United States could not conduct a great war successfully because of the wide distribution of power among the people. The idea prevailed that no democracy could stand the test of a great war successfully. Well, we think that this doubt has been removed.

President Wilson has ample power to conduct the war as he pleases and what is better, the people are behind him. With the various steps in the progress of the war came a unification of sympathy and it has been growing more perfect until the present hour.

Looking back over the long list of events crowded into one short year, the average citizen must feel astonished at what has been accomplished and in all there is nothing more gratifying than the unanimity of the support loyally given to the government in its prosecution of the war.

If there ever was at any time a lack of enthusiasm in the war in this country, it has been completely overcome by the visit of the submarines.

In the early days of the war, before we entered the conflict, there was difference of opinion and divided sympathies. There were pro-German elements who did not conceal their sentiments, but after our declaration of war, that was largely changed, except among enemy aliens.

It may be said that at the present moment the spirit of the nation is magnificent. Even the croakers have been silenced and now the whole people seem to be thoroughly united in the determination to win the war. And how could it be otherwise since the nation's liberties are threatened? We see what German militarism is—the most barbarous form of human butchery—all done according to the Kaiser's blasphemous claim with the sanction and assistance of the Most High.

When addressing a portion of his army last week, the only consolation the Kaiser could give his people in reference to the present drive was, that vast stretches of the most beautiful regions of France had been reduced to a hideous desert. To such a depth of barbarity have the German people fallen that nothing will so buoy them up as an account of some form of brutality practised upon some other people. Not the young or old, the sick or wounded, the babe in arms or the man or woman bending with the weight of years, can win any sympathy from the Germans and hence they transfuse the child on a bayonet, or bomb a base hospital with a spirit of ghastly glee comparable only to the ferocity with which a wild beast devours his prey.

Every country that has fallen under the control of Germany has been subjected to the utmost cruelty and extortion as witness Belgium, Rumania, Serbia, the Ukraine and Poland. Even Finland that has exposed the cause of the central powers is held in military subjection to the Kaiser's sway and so with Austria, Turkey and Bulgaria. The aims of Germany have been found out in so many different ways that there is now no doubt as to her ambition not only to rule but to oppress the world.

This nation is therefore fighting for its own liberties first and next to save the world from slavery. The freedom of the United States, the freedom of oppressed nations and the protection of humanity from such chains as the German militarists would impose, surely offer sufficient inspiration to every friend of freedom to stand by the Allied cause until the Kaiser's power is broken and the world saved from threatened thralldom and made safe for democracy.

FOCH, "THE BIG BOSS"

The Italians—influenced by devil-made rumors—were still retreating before their German-Austrian "Kamrats." Then British and French troops poured into Italy, commanded by Foch. At once the Italians began to make some sort of a stand. An Italian boy soldier loaded down with a heavy bag of supplies was climbing a steep path. No horse or automobile could make it; everything must go on men's backs. The young Italian was very tired. The load was too much for him, but he kept plugging ahead. He heard footsteps. A brisk old man dressed in the horizon blue of France came up beside him.

"Pretty heavy load for you, son," said the old Frenchman, speaking Italian.

"Oui, m'sieu," agreed the son of Italy, speaking French to be courteous.

"Let me give you a hand," said the old French soldier, and he seized the heavy bag and threw it over his own shoulders, and the sons of the two old Latin nations kept climbing. After a time the man in horizon blue said, "Let's rest a minute," and they sat down beside the path.

Soon some Italian general staff officers appeared—one of them being on the king's personal staff. Of course the two soldiers by the roadside came to their feet to salute the high officers.

But the Italian officer stopped. The one who belonged to the king's personal staff ejaculated one word: "Foch!"

That's who it was—Foch, "Le Patron," which is French for the Big Boss.

common human being. But it didn't faze him. He didn't forget that he is Le Patron. He saluted the Italian high officers stiffly, threw the bag on his shoulders again, and with the Italian boy soldier beside him protesting volubly, those two started up the path again.

Pretty safe sort of a man, Foch, eh? Pretty good sort to have in charge of our boys who go "over there." The man who has human sympathy and the willingness to do small things as well as the ability to do mighty things will win the war.

What a contrast between the kind hearted Foch and the bloody Hindenburg or Kaiser!

BOYS CALLED TO WAR

He was speaking about the young men just called upon to register for service "over there," our boys who have passed their twenty-first birthday since their older brothers registered for the same high purpose last June. And this is what the man said: "They're too young. They're just boys. First thing, boys under 21 will be called."

It wasn't that he was opposed to conscripting men for war service, for he went on to say that it would be better if men over 31 were taken. He hadn't looked at it from the right angle, that's all. He hadn't stopped to think that—

Boys of 21 usually have fewer dependents than men over 31.

That they seldom are as firmly fixed in their life occupation.

That they are healthier, can better stand hardships and therefore it is more probable that they will return after they have done their bit.

Boys, more than men, crave the excitement of adventure, and find it most abundantly and most gloriously "over there."

This is not the first time that boys have gone to war. Indeed our other wars saw more youthful faces in the ranks, mere children, who today, would never get by the recruiting officer. Official records of the U. S. war department show that 2,152,798 boys under 22 years of age fought in the northern army alone during the Civil war. Over 800,000 of these blue-uniformed warriors were 16 and under, and over a million were 18 and under.

The boys would respond if we needed them, but the draft law very wisely passes them by at least for the present. The nation should put the age up to 34 before putting it down under 21. The European countries engaged in the war are calling men of 18 and in some cases boys of 16, but let us hope it will never be necessary in this country.

John McCormick having finished up a $100,000 tour for the benefit of the Red Cross during which he has held his audience enthralled with "The Long, Long Trail" and "Keep the Home Fires Burning," both of which he includes in all of his programs, is now off on a new $100,000 search for the Knights of Columbus war fund. It is certain that Mr. McCormick would rather put his great earnings into those noble funds than to buy holystoke pictures.

It is to be hoped McCormick will come to Lowell on his tour for the Knights of Columbus campaign. He would get a splendid reception as indicated by the box office receipts.

HELPING THE CAUSE

Most every schoolchild in America is a member of the Thrift Stamp army. They are trying to help their big brothers "over there" win the war by providing the money with which the government may buy guns, food and ammunition for our fighters.

These little boys and girls are enrolled as privates in the Thrift Stamp army when they have sold a certain number of stamps and are promoted as their sales mount upward. They are encouraged to go from house to house and to consider every American as a possible customer. This is fine for the youngsters. It teaches them salesmanship and it enables them to help with the nation's war work.

They will ring many a doorbell in their quest for Thrift Stamp customers. And days will come when many a housewife will go several times to her front door to meet these youthful patriots. Many a person will be asked over and over again, "Mister, do you want to buy a Thrift Stamp?"

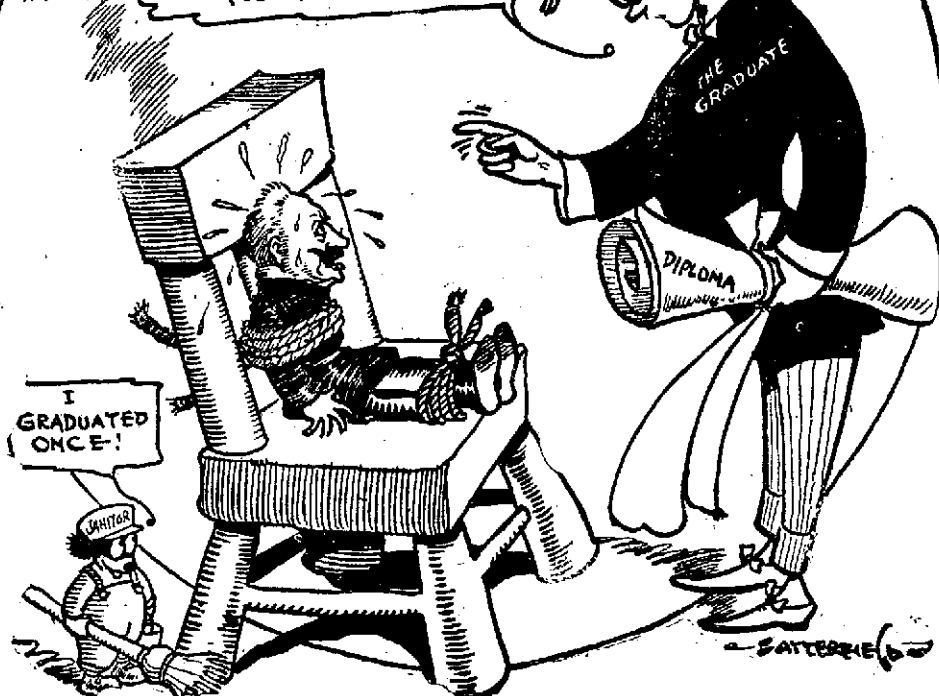

It may grow tiresome to answer the often repeated question. It may often interfere with one's household duties. But—let us never forget that the children are doing this for their country and yours, not for profit! If we must refuse to purchase a stamp—and we cannot buy from all, much as we would like, let our answers be kindly, given with a smiling appreciation of the children's efforts.

Thus will we encourage them. They are miniature editions of fine Americans. Treat them cordially.

NO DAY LOAFERS

The fact that we have few people idle in our city was made apparent yesterday during the circus parade. At no time in late years has a big parade been viewed by such a small crowd. The people are all working and only those employed near the route of parade in addition to the youngsters, the housewives and those who work in the stores, were out to see the biggest show on earth. This clearly indicates that the people of Lowell are practically all engaged in the workshops and factories. There

SEEN AND HEARD

Partnership between hoes and hobs will do much to make the war garden 100 per cent. efficient.

The Toronto Globe remarks that Americans have often journeyed to Europe about this time of the year, but never before in such a steady, stalwart stream and for such a splendid purpose.

Always Tell the Truth

A demure-looking chap hailed a Hingham coal steamer with the query: "Have you got coal in your wagon?" "Yes sir," said the driver, stopping his horse. "That's right," observed the demure chap with an approving nod, "always tell the truth, and people will respect you," and he hurried on much to the disgust of the driver, who was scrambling for a piece of coal.

His Destination

"And are you bound for France?" I said. "To one in khaki dressed. His face was in his hair was red; He had a bulging chest. He turned and stared. Then said, 'Who me?' 'Who I am bound for Germany.' 'But first,' I said, 'you'll have to go to England and to France.' There he felt the warmth of friendship's glow. 'Tradition and romance.' 'That would be fine, of course; but me, I want to get to Germany.' 'England and France are great, I s'pose; And maybe, coming back, We'll stop awhile and see some shows. But first I want a whack At Kaiser Bill and his Heineins. Gee! But I want to get to Germany.' —New York Sun.

Full of Resource

Representative McElmore said the other day at a dinner in Washington: "Our American resourcefulness and knack of getting things done is going to shine out in this war. Look how our commanding officers deal with the French hotels that overcharge our soldiers! They post sentries at the door to explain to our men that the place is 'out of bounds.' That soon brings the hotel to reason. 'We're a resourceful nation.' An American girl in Paris once hailed her millionaire father before a jeweler's shop in the Rue de la Paix, and pointed to a tiara surmounted by a coronet."

"Pa, buy me that," she said. "Buy you that?" her father chuckled. "Why, girlie, you've got to be a duchess to wear that." "The girl tossed her head. 'You buy it,' she said. 'I'll find the duke.' —Detroit Free Press.

Warm Welcome

Capt. Norman Thwaites of the British Intelligence department said in New York the other day: "The sugar shortage is felt keenly over the water. It's odd how you miss your sugar over there. You long for it as you'd long for tobacco."

"A Baywater special constable hurried home from his beat at the Marble Arch the other evening to be present on a very interesting occasion, and as he sat in his library in the small hours the nurse came to him and said:

"It's all right, sir." "The Baywater man swallowed. He moistened his dry lips; then he asked: "Is it a boy?" "The nurse smiled soothingly. "One of em's a boy, sir," she said. "And the Baywater man, instead of turning pale or smothering an oath, as he'd probably done in peace time, uttered a glad cry of joy."

"Thank heaven!" he exclaimed. "That gives us two extra sugar rations." —Washington Star.

Save the Tin Foil

A real war-time saving is that of tin-foil and collapsible tin tubes in waste use for dentifrices, paints and other materials. This is saving without false economy—the regeneration of material which would otherwise be lost. All tin foil and empty tubes should be made into a ball by the individual or family. It does not take long to accumulate a mass of this material of baseball size, and such a ball will often yield two pounds and upward of pure tin on melting. It is estimated that the average family throws away at least one pound of tin annually, a national waste of 10,000 tons.

In ordinary times the difficulty of gathering tin-foil and like discarded material does not always justify conservation, as new tin is less expensive than the work of collecting from millions of individuals. In war time, however, every pound of tin is extremely needed, regardless of the cost of collection.

Balls of tin-foil gathered by the individual may be turned over to local charities for sale in bulk when sufficient has been accumulated. Tin-foil saving is very effective when organized in hotels, clubs and other places where waste-baskets yield large quantities monthly.—Weekly Bulletin.

High For One Bath

Inasmuch as one can use the Atlantic ocean around Coney Island for bathing at a cost of 50 cents, Joe Hernandez was justified in a slight bathing protest that developed at No. 225 East Twenty-third street, New York. In his case the use of a bath tub in medium size cost him upward of 750 highly prized dollars. He screamed once, and as a result Chester Pike and John Gonos, who live on the banks of the bath tub, are now receiving their mail at the Jefferson Market jail.

According to the somewhat loud and fragmentary evidence of Mr. Hernandez, he has been in New York six days, which he regards as what is technically known as a plenty. On Saturday he checked in at the boarding house at the address given, and he declared in court he found it for four days all that its advertisement had promised. It was quiet, cool, comfortable, cleanly and not costly.

Just where Mr. Hernandez left his trousers containing the $750 during his first three baths he does not recall, but he is sure that he did not take them into the tub. On the day of the tragedy, though, he recalls clearly that he left them sitting cross-legged on a chair in his own room. After his bath he returned to find them sprawled boisterously across the chair, with pockets inside out and key rings pointing gayly by the wall. With one deft search he learned the worst, and his cry was heard from river to river.

Policeman Hoover, of the West Twentieth street station, arrived three stairs at a time, and after hearing all seized John Gonos and Chester Pike, fellow boarders, who said he had $100 which Gonos had given him for safe keeping, and Pike led the policeman to the cellar of the boarding house, where $650 more was found behind a crate of bottles. The policeman then took the lead, and the line of march was east and south to the Jefferson Market court, where Magistrate Simpson held the demons of the bath in $1500 bail each.

The Movie Reporter

The movies are getting better! The other night we saw a film with a Movie newspaper reporter in it who almost looked like a regular reporter. He didn't wear stiff outfits and write the scoop on them. He didn't wear a shirt with zebra stripes. He didn't wear a trick suit with fancy vest. He didn't have spats, wear an Arabian bazaar necktie or carry a cane. He didn't smoke a cigar in an Ivory holder, and sport a Shishy band stare on his forehead. On the back of his head, his hair wasn't marcelled. He wasn't always grinning. Showing his pearly teeth. And he didn't carry a Revolver. Nope, this movie Reporter looked like a Regular guy. It's about Time the movies woke up. Reporters are different. Animal than the chorus men. They make of them in The movies.

11 AMERICANS AWARDED D. S. C.

Decorated for Gallantry in Action —Many Instances of Individual Bravery and Heroism

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Thursday, June 6 (By the Associated Press).—The Distinguished Service Cross has been awarded to the following officers and men of the American Expeditionary Forces:

Lieutenants George S. Rodwood and Christian S. Holmes. Sergeant James A. Murphy, Corporals Ernest Burch and Henry J. Mongear. Privates Edward Armstrong, Bernhard S. Rolt and Carson L. Shuman. Captain C. Raymond Hulsart. Lieutenant Paul McLeod and Second Lieutenant Donald Moosaac.

The last three are railway engineers and won their crosses for their gallantry in the fight on Nov. 30 southwest of Cambrai, when the American engineers assisted the British in withstanding a German attack.

Lieutenant Rodwood and four members of his company, Corporal Mongear and Privates Armstrong, Rolt and Shuman got into a portion of an enemy trench and were surrounded by a party of double their number. They drove off the enemy and made their way back to the American lines with four prisoners. Lieutenant Holmes "led a patrol and displayed extraordinary coolness and daring in cutting 12 strands of enemy wire in front of a listening post, and crawling through. There he leaped upon a sentinel and brought him back through No Man's Land. Sergeant Murphy aided in the exploit and "with coolness and nerve, killed one of the sentinels who had fired on Holmes."

FAIR JOAN OF ARC RESCUES LOST BOY AT THE BIG CIRCUS YESTERDAY

He wanted to see the circus. He was 11 years old. Maybe that was why he wanted to see the circus.

But he didn't see the circus. Yesterday afternoon he was wandering about the Fair grounds, sojourning, as it were. He saw everything that could be seen outside the canvas walls and then he decided to go home. But his home was a great distance from the Fair grounds. You went down that street outside—but he was in the midst of tents and stands and had lost his way. "That street" was not visible from the labyrinth of structures where he stood. He was lost.

Unable to speak English he wandered around aimlessly for a while, and then the seriousness of his plight dawned upon him and he expressed his grief by the universal method. He wept—bitterly.

Then came the rescue. A fair Joan of Arc appeared on the scene. In unromantic, everyday life, she is a music teacher. But yesterday she was a

There were many instances of individual bravery and heroism in the successful attack of the American marines in the Chateau-Thierry sector, today. Many of the Americans who were wounded refused to leave the fighting that account.

Sergeant J. L. Dulaworth of Kansas City was captured by the Germans Monday night while passing from a blow on the head from a rifle butt. A German was dragging him away when he regained consciousness. He hit the German on the jaw and escaped.

"I was not going to be the first American captured on this sector," Sergeant Dulaworth said. "The Dutchman looked more scared than I, so I biffed him. Now I've got to get back and get me a Dutchman to make up for the lump on my head."

The sergeant took part in the fighting today. Private Charles Ginsberg, a former New York newsboy, but whose home is now in Washington, D. C., captured a German for hidden weapons and when he came upon photographs of the prisoner's two children, the German wanted to fight. The prisoner was allowed to keep the photographs.

An American corporal found himself behind the German lines two days ago. By keeping himself hidden and crawling a foot at a time, he reached the American line during the height of today's battle and in time to take part in the victory.

chivalrous saviour in the eyes of the young man who couldn't find his way home. She took him to Engine I fire station in Gorham street, and Engineer James W. Jantzen gave the boy something to eat and endeavored to discover where he lived.

Police headquarters was notified and Officer Fred Gilmore of the Humane society was sent out on the case. By deductive methods, Officer Gilmore found out that the young adventurer lived in Alken street and he took him home.

Now we come to another interesting phase of this rare romance. The young man has a brother in the navy. Brother was home yesterday on a short leave of absence, and was very eager to see his young brother before going back to duty. Extensive searching failed to bring him and the navy man was about to give up when the prodigal son walked in, somewhat discomfited but very happy to see his big sailor brother.

Thus do the ponderous organizations of a great city unbend themselves to the needs of the youngest individual. And the young man who didn't see the circus promised that he would begin taking music lessons at once and that he would never again go to a circus without his big brother accompanying him.

PRES. WILSON CONFERS U. S. NAVY CAPABLE OF DEALING WITH U-BOATS WITH SEC. BAKER

WASHINGTON, June 7.—The president went to the war department today and conferred with Secretary Baker.

ONE OF CREW OF HARPATHIAN GIVEN MEDICAL TREATMENT ON BOARD U-BOAT

WASHINGTON, June 7.—One of the crew of the Harpathian was taken aboard the U-boat which attacked the ship and given medical treatment for injuries sustained during the sinking, a navy statement showed today. The man then was replaced in the lifeboat with his companions. The submarine carried at least 27 men, for that many were counted on her deck by the Harpathian crew. She mounted two six-inch guns.

PLAINTIFF RESTS IN SUIT AGAINST B. & M.

SPRINGFIELD, June 7.—After testimony by Attorney Henry W. Ely, who told of conversations with Charles S. Mellen, then president of the Boston & Maine railroad, concerning the construction of the Hampden railroad, the plaintiff today rested its case in the $4,000,000 suit of the Hampden Railroad corporation against the Boston & Maine corporation to enforce a lease or compel payment of the construction account. Attorney Ely testified that the late Ralph D. Gillett, president of the Hampden Railroad Corp., and of the Worcester Construction Co., which built the road, participated in these conversations. The witness said Mr. Mellen ordered work on the Hampden road to begin toward Attol Junction, cutting off entirely the proposed branch to Chicopee Falls.

DETAILS OF BIG U. S. VICTORY

reached all their objectives set for the first hour within that time limit and pushed beyond them. The early reports indicated the Germans on the run for the time being and surrendering right and left to the Americans.

One of the toughest of all the objectives, Belleau wood, some four miles from Chateau-Thierry, was swept by the marines without serious trouble.

Americans Created Havoc
There seemed reason to expect German counter-attacks of strength before long, for previous to the beginning of the afternoon attack which began at 5 p. m. the roads behind the German lines were filled with troops, guns and wagons, but the American artillery turned on them and created havoc.

Prisoners Captured
The marines in their forward sweep took strong ground on either side of Belleau wood and cleaned out the ravine south of Torcy, which linked up the line with hill 142, which was taken this morning. This gave them a strong and dominating position for a continuation of their attack. Their total advance was approximately two miles on a three-mile front. The total number of prisoners taken was not known this evening, but additional captives were brought in after the morning attack, which netted about 100 prisoners.

Low Morale of Prisoners

A notable development was the low morale of the prisoners, all of whom are Prussians. They expressed themselves as tired of the war and glad to get out of the fighting. This was demonstrated by the fact that they are furnished with food at night, and the Wuertemberg troops and others may go without.

One Marine Kills Two, Wounds 7

It must not be imagined, however, that they did not put up a fight this morning, for the Germans were among them urging them on, but the marines dashed into them, yelling like Indians and playing bayonet and rifle. One marine who was taking back a prisoner ran into two German officers and 10 men. He tackled them single handed with his rifle and bayonet, killed both the officers and wounded seven of the men.

Sergeant Kills Five Germans

Another sergeant was about to take a prisoner when the German threw himself on the ground and discharged his revolver at the American, after calling "Comrade." The sergeant shot him, for the German shot him, as he did four others who also had surrendered but refused to put up their hands.

Marines Advance in Waves

The marines advancing in the Belleau wood region went forward in four waves, in open formation. The men in the first wave were for the most part armed with rifles and bombs, while the rear waves were equipped with automatic rifles and with them came squads of machine gunners, lugging their collapsible guns. They crossed the open space and coiled up the slope bent over like gnomes. The trenches the marines passed over were clearly visible from below, but they hardly deserved the name, for they were simply lines of little holes, each big enough to hold a man, while barbed wire was lacking there. There was some, however, in places among the trees of Belleau wood, but the marines pushed their way through it.

Battle in Open Field

Out in the open field, artillery officers with glasses were directing the supporting fire, while on the roof of a nearby farmhouse a signaller, wrapped with his red and white flag. On all sides the guns were smashing, some of them, stationed in the field, while others were hidden in the woods. Down in the valley, only a mile away, the village of Bussieres could be seen on fire. As the correspondent watched the scene, the clouds of white swirly smoke over the village of Torcy also became brownish and flames appeared in that town.

Marines Go "Over the Top"

The artillery fire that preceded the attack lasted an hour and was of especial intensity for five minutes preceding the time when the Marines went over the top. French and American batteries both took part in the firing, putting down a rolling barrage and then shifting to the roads behind the German lines.

Forestalled German Attack

It appears that the Marines in going in forestalled an attack that the Germans had planned. It was to have been carried out by the Prussians, who had been put into the line for that purpose and was to have taken place either today or tomorrow. These men had relieved the Prussian guard division, which was badly chewed up in the fighting of the last day or two. They, in turn, had relieved the Saxons, just after the Marines took over the sector, so the Marines are proud of the fact that they have used up three German divisions in less than a week and are still very much alive themselves.

Willing to Try Anything

The morale of the men is wonderful. They are willing to attempt anything, and are talking with pride of the heavy losses they inflicted upon the Germans in their attack this morning, while all the early reports indicated that the afternoon attack had been even more costly to the enemy.

This latter attack was undertaken largely because of the splendid showing the marines made in the morning, coupled with the discovery that the morale of the Germans in the opposite position was low, which made the going easier for the fiery soldiers of the marine corps. The advance was carried out by the same men who attacked in the morning and who had had no rest. They asked nothing, however, but plenty of ammunition and hardly ate the food that was brought up to them, so absorbed were they in the task of chasing the enemy as far as possible.

No one who saw the marines in action today, did not thoroughly agree with the exclamation of their commander, himself an army man, when he said: "I just wish I had an army corps of 'em here."

THE STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, June 7.—Selling of equipments and war issues as a whole accompanied the early dealings on the stock exchange today. Steels, Baldwin Locomotive, shipbuilding and motors bore the brunt of the movement at recessions of 1½ points. Coppers and specialties, particularly tobaccos, alcohol and distillers, were equally heavy. Among rails Canadian Pacific was under marked pressure, losing 1½ points. Moderate improvement set in later. Liberty bonds were steady. Stocks that were heaviest at the outset were among the first to recover, the rally extending from 1 to 2½ points in General Motors, Studebaker, Marine, preferred, Atlantic-Gulf, Sumatra Tobacco, United Cigars and Tobacco Products, Baldwin Locomotive and Crucible Steel also strengthened substantially, but U. S. Steel regained only a fraction of its loss with another setback at noon. Ralls continued listless. Liberty bonds were active at market advances from recent low records. The 2½s sold at 99.81 to 99.70; second 4s at 99.91 to 99.84, and 4½s at 96.14 to 96.60. No dealings in first.

Trading was at low ebb during the noon hour on further alternate rallies and declines. Steels, shipbuilding and other speculative favorites moved in a two-point limit, and rails continued irregular or heavy with metals.

The favorable crop report and strength of motors and leathers caused a partial readjustment of prices later. The closing was irregular. Liberty bonds closed steady: July, 25.76; October, 25.59; December, 25.26; January, 25.07; March, 25.00.

WHOLE RUSSIAN FLEET MANNED BY GERMANS

LONDON, June 7.—The whole Russian fleet remaining in the harbors of Odessa and Sebastopol will be manned by German crews and it is rumored that it will be used against the allies in the Mediterranean, according to the Ukrainian newspaper Doko, which is quoted by the Stockholm correspondent of the Daily News.

10,000 ARMENIANS ARE MASSACRED BY TURKS

LONDON, June 7.—A bitter struggle is being waged in the Caucasus between the new Caucasian government and the Turks, says an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Moscow. The Turks are reported to have massacred more than 10,000 Armenians within a fortnight.

BANGOR SHERIFF DENIES THAT HE HAS RESIGNED

AUGUSTA, Me., June 7.—Sheriff T. Herbert White of Bangor, who is being given a hearing before the governor and council to show reason why he should not be removed from office for failure to enforce the prohibitory liquor law, denied rumors, circulated about the state house today, that he had resigned.

"I have not resigned, and have no intention of resigning," he said. "I do not think the governor and council will have enough evidence against me to remove me. I certainly will not resign."

The second day's session of the hearing was delayed by a long conference between Attorney General Guy H. Sturgis, representing the state and former Attorney General William B. Burleigh of this city and Edward P. Murray, counsel for Sheriff White, as to an agreement for handling the evidence in a manner to shorten the proceedings.

The agreement reached was in substance as plan of procedure in all statements by the attorney general to substantiate the charges outlined in his opening and such other charges as may be made, together with a statement from the defense to substantiate their claim in Sheriff White's behalf.

In this manner there would be little controversy of facts and counsel would argue on the faithfulness and efficiency of Sheriff White and leave to the judgment of the governor and council to decide the points of faithfulness and efficiency.

RAISE FOR AMERICAN WOOLEN CO. WORKERS

BOSTON, June 7.—An increase of 10 per cent. in the wages of its mill employees, effective June 17, was announced today by the American Woollen Co.

LAWRENCE, June 7.—The Arlington mills announced a 10 per cent. increase in wages today to go into effect June 17.

N. H. CONVENTION VOTES TO ADJOURN

CONCORD, N. H., June 7.—The constitutional convention this morning voted to adjourn subject to the call of the president and a special committee, at a date not later than one year after the conclusion of the war. The members of the convention voted to take their pay in government thrift stamps.

BENNY KAUFF CALLED TO THE COLORS

POMEROY, Ohio, June 7.—Benny Kauff, outfielder of the New York Giants, today was ordered by his local draft to report for military service on June 21. He probably will be sent to Camp Sherman, Ohio.

YANKEE PATROL WINS ANOTHER CLASH

WASHINGTON, June 7.—A continuation of General Pershing's communique of yesterday, made public today, reads: "Section B. In the vicinity during the night of June 2 to June 3, a hostile patrol of one officer and about 50 men, attempted to raid one of our listening posts. The men in our post opened fire, killed the German officer and retired to our lines without suffering any casualties."

22,452 NAMES ADDED TO BAY STATE LIST

BOSTON, June 7.—The adjutant general's office has received returns from all but 1 of the local boards in the state and these indicate that 22,452 young men enrolled Wednesday in accordance with the recent act of congress requiring registration of all who have become 21 years old since June 5, 1917.

Figures have not been compiled for individual cities. The boards whose reports had not reached Maj. Roger Weidott, officer in charge of the draft, last evening are the 2d, 33d and 11st Massachusetts and 1st Cambridge.

Of the total number thus far reported 1,226 are in group A, which includes citizens not of African descent and declarants of intention to become citizens not of African descent from countries with which the United States is not at war.

In group B, which includes citizens of African descent and declarants of African descent from countries with which the United States is not at war, there were 372 registrants.

Group C, including all aliens, not declarants from countries with which the United States is not at war, all citizens from countries with which the United States is at war, irrespective of whether or not such persons have declared their intention to become citizens, and non-citizen Indians, has 4021.

Boston Division 6 selective draft board, with headquarters at John J. Williams school building, Groton st., claims the distinction of being the first board in this city to make a complete report to the adjutant general of the registrants who became 21 years of age on or since June 5, 1917. The list was mailed last night.

SHIP LAUNCHINGS IN MAY SET NEW RECORD

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Ship launchings in May, like deliveries, set a new record. Seventy-one hulls, totalling 344,450 deadweight tons, were put into the water. Thirty-nine of them were steel, with a capacity of 228,750 tons, and 32 wood, of 115,700 tons.

The May launchings exceeded April by 28 ships and January by 53 ships. They also exceeded the highest monthly average of the United Kingdom, made in 1912, with the record of 102,931 tons.

ANTI-BOLSHEVIK FORCES CROSS ONON RIVER

HARBIN, Manchuria, Sunday, June 2 (By the Associated Press).—General Semenov, leader of the anti-Bolshevik forces in Siberia, reports that Bolsheviki troops crossed the Onon river, in trans-Baikalia, and strongly pressed a number of attacks which were checked. An Austro-German force, composed of a cavalry brigade and four companies of infantry, is checking General Semenov's communications.

15 PER CENT. INCREASE

A voluntary increase in wages of 15 per cent. has been granted to the employees of the W. W. Carey Co. at the corner of Broadway and Mr. Vernon street. The increase, which will affect about 30 employees, will go into effect next Monday.

WAR SAVINGS STAMP DRIVE

ations. Tomorrow, a conference of the three local conductors of the drive will be held and after this conference things are expected to develop with a lot of speed and material results.

The drive received an optimistic send-off this morning, when Mr. Owens received the report of Postmaster John F. Meahan on the amount of sales of thrift and war savings stamps in Lowell for the month of May, just closed. Lowell people bought a total of $32,385.50 worth of the securities in the period. That represents roughly a $14,000 increase over the sales for the month of April, and $24,000 for the month of March. The total sales to date in Lowell, since the stamps were first placed on sale last November, is $165,582.29.

Schools Do Well

A second reason why the workers started off their campaign in a courageous spirit was the reports of the thrift stamp contest just closed in the grammar schools of the city. The campaign opened May 14 and ended at noon June 3. In that period Lowell grammar school children sold a total of $17,184.75 worth of stamps and there are still several schools to be heard from. Owing to the fact that all the schools have not yet made their reports no decision as to the prize winners can be made. Three prizes were for the awarded sale of stamps. The largest total sales; three to the pupils selling to the greatest number of customers and one to the school which had the largest percentage sale based on the number of pupils attending the school. The winners will probably be announced early next week.

The Charles W. Morey school sold a total of $6669.95 worth of stamps during the campaign period. Edward Holden was the leading individual with a total sale of $1355.01. Mary Washburn sold stamps to the amount of $747.91; Marshall Forrest was next with $312.97. Master Holden sold stamps to 102 different people, Arthur Hoyle to 90 people and Otis Humphrey to 52 people.

The Varnum school total was $1593.57. James Henry leads this school with a total sale of $635.01; Al Hardy is next with $151.63 and Marion McQuaid sold $132.12. Mildred Cheney sold to nine different people and James Henry and Vernon Cook to eight people.

St. Michael's parochial school reported a total sale of $2232.50. Marie McKenna sold $854.44 worth of stamps. Florence Tulley $70 and Frances Grouke $40. Miss McQuaid sold to the largest number of different persons, having 40 on her list; Miss Grouke had 33 and Catherine Connors 17.

The Moody school pupils sold a total of $2483.54. Dixie M. Long had the excellent individual sale of $1150.19; Sara G. O'Brien was second with $211.48, and Kirk Dunlap third, with $124.41. Miss O'Brien sold to 49 different people, Alice E. Weinbeck to 38, and Faulkner

Preston to 37.

At the Green school the total was $805.03. Chester Patten took all the honors here with a total sale of $274.23 and 18 different people for customers. Pupils of the Greenhaile school sold $507.50 worth of securities. Doris Tucker sold $252.60 worth of stamps to 40 different people.

The Colburn school sold $121.25 worth of stamps in the campaign and several hundred dollars worth previously. No individuals are "cited" in this school's report.

The Riverside school sold $359.75 worth of stamps in the campaign and several hundred dollars worth previously. No individuals are "cited" in this school's report.

The Lincoln school had a total of $385.62. Margaret Whitney had the largest individual sale, $58.50. Robert Friend sold to 75 different people.

The Pawtucket school is second in the total sales from the reports received to date. This school sold $1903 worth of stamps. Miss Edna Olney had an individual record of $315. She sold to 16 different people.

Pupils of St. Louis' school sold a total of $192 worth of stamps. No individuals are mentioned.

Schools which have not yet reported include the Washington school, St. Patrick's School for Boys and St. Patrick's School for Girls, St. Marie's school, St. Joseph's School for Boys and St. Joseph's School for Girls.

LOWELL MAN SEES AIRPLANES CIRCLING NEW YORK CITY AT NIGHT

At least a Lowell man has had the privilege of seeing New York as the big city appears when German submarines are raiding the coast and orders have been given to take all precautions against land attacks by Hun airmen. Rev. George E. Pickard, D.D., is the individual and he told an interesting story today of the activities in Manhattan to prepare for possible emergencies as a result of this week's raiding.

Rev. Dr. Pickard's father, James Pickard, left Charlestown, S. C., where he had been staying, last Sunday afternoon on the Mohawk of the Clyde line. When about 25 miles out, the vessel was ordered to turn back because of the activities of German submarines along the coast. Rev. Dr. Pickard went to New York to meet his father but the latter was held in Charleston for some time. Eventually he managed to get away and came to New York by rail. He reached the big last evening at 10:30, where he was met by his son.

In New York the two men saw very impressive and material evidences of the city's preparations for any eventualities. Broadway was wholly darkened. Airplanes were circling the city and there was a general feeling of war spirit among the people. According to Dr. Pickard, it was easy to see that the war spirit had been aroused. One was reminded of the stories of London and Paris during raids. He said that passengers of a certain vessel which was about to go south from New York were offered their money back if they didn't wish to hazard the trip, but only eight took advantage of the offer.

Mr. Pickard, Sr., is now in Lowell and will remain with his son for some time. He is an aged man but appears none the worse off because of his exciting experiences.

BABY WEIGHING CAMPAIGN

Tomorrow will see the end of Lowell's baby weighing campaign and Lowell mothers whose babies under five years of age have not yet been weighed are urged to bring their children to one of the weighing stations in various parts of the city early in the day. Although it was understood early in the week that all the stations would be open Saturday evening, only those at Chalifoux's and Pollard's stores will be open as will be seen by the following notice sent in by Mrs. Marble:

"For the purpose of correcting a misapprehension, attention is called to the fact that the stations for weighing and measuring all children under five years of age will not be kept open on Saturday evening with the exception of the stations at Chalifoux's and A. G. Pollard & Co., which will be open."

THE KASINO

Tonight and every night, you may enjoy the pleasures of the terpsichore under ideal conditions at the Kasino, with Markham's orchestra, purveying music. On Wednesday night of next week, the old timers will have sway. On Thursday, the "Prize of Lawrence" orchestra will do battle with Markham's orchestra, in a contest for superiority.

THOUSANDS FROM CLASS FOUR TO BE PUT IN CLASSES ONE AND TWO

one. Some boards even have fallen as low as 10 per cent.

It is expected that the rearrangement will bring into class one, more than 500,000 men. Cases where registrants were married after passage of the draft act will be carefully considered and if evidence warrants classification in class one, boards will proceed to reclassify them. Married men whose wives have sustaining incomes, probably will be reclassified.

"This office has reached the conclusion," said the provost marshal, "that corrective procedure can be made most effective by revision by the local boards and the hearty and active assistance of government appeal agents and members of legal advisory boards."

"You will, therefore, issue instructions that they shall immediately proceed to a careful examination of all the questionnaires and records in the classes hereinafter indicated and make such recommendations to the local boards as they may deem necessary. Local boards, government appeal agents and members of legal advisory boards should direct special attention to the following classes of cases:

"Class two A and B; class three A B C and who should be in class two or class one. Government appeal agents should be instructed to appeal every case where the reclassification is not convincingly correct."

"The activities of local boards, appeal agents and members of legal advisory boards are not limited to the classes of cases above indicated, but the same corrective measures should be applied to all other cases of deferred classification when the same appears necessary.

"Local boards should set aside a special week in June to be called Class

ONE WEEK TO CONDUCT EXAMINATIONS OF DOUBTFUL CASES

Classifications should be scientifically adjusted now so as to avoid the necessity of proceeding to the deferred classes. The remedy is yours to apply.

It is important also that corrective procedure should be applied where necessary in case of boards showing unusually high percentages of class one. Where there are no apparent explanations for such high percentages you should make inquiry of the proper boards with a view to ascertaining whether the boards have correctly applied the regulations.

"Also instruct all local boards to re-examine under the new standards of physical examination now being issued, all doubtful cases which may have fallen into group B, group C, or group D, with the particular purpose of finding men physically fit for military service who may have been placed in one of the above mentioned groups, and of removing to group C, as qualified, for special and limited military service, such men as may heretofore have been totally rejected or placed in the deferred remedial group."

ST. RAILWAY MEN ACCEPT
FIVE-CENT INCREASE

An offer of an increase of five cents an hour to the employees of the Bay State Street Railway Co. by the officials of the road, has been accepted. Although the demand was for an increase of ten cents, as a result of meetings held last night it was voted to accept the five cent increase temporarily, the said increase to go into effect as soon as possible. The increase will affect all Lowell men in the employ of the Bay State Co. motormen and conductors, the men in the car barns, those of the track department and all not employed on a salary basis.

The employees felt confident that the increase of ten cents would be granted but according to the receiver, Wallace B. Donham, this would be impossible at the present time, but the former is in hopes that before long the road officials can see their way clear to grant the original demand.

Two special meetings were held at headquarters in Rumels building last night. The advisability of accepting the five cent increase was discussed and the men decided to accept the five cent increase and eventually it was almost unanimously decided to accept five cents, though a number were for holding out for ten cents.

At the present time Lowell street railway men are getting a wage of $5.12 cents an hour. The proposed increase will place them on a wage scale of 40-1-2 cents an hour, which pay, the men claim, is not enough to meet the present high cost of living, and which is not enough, in comparison with the wages being paid other operatives of the city and state.

Under these conditions many of the union men have left to take employment in other work, and the efficiency of the company has been severely impaired.

CASES HEARD IN THE INCOME TAX DELINQUENTS
SUPERIOR COURT
SUBJECT TO ARREST

The case of Albert Gosselin against James H. Hustis, temporary receiver for the Boston & Maine railroad, an action of tort for personal injuries, the ad damnum in which is $29,000, was resumed at the session of the superior court with juries this morning.

Gosselin was employed as a carpenter at the repair shop of the Boston & Maine railroad at Billerica, and on May 2, 1917, claims that he sustained serious personal injuries as a result of a heavy weight falling on his right leg, and other injuries.

Verdict

The jury in the case of Florence A. Crossman vs. the city of Everett, an action for personal injuries, claimed to be due to a defective sidewalk, returned a verdict of $500 for Mrs. Crossman.

Adjourned to Cambridge

The jury waived session of the superior court, presided over by Judge Hammond, which opened its session a week ago Monday, adjourned to East Cambridge today. In the divorce case of Clarence B. Phinney vs. this city against Ada K. Phinney, a contested case, the libellant alleging desertion, the court dismissed the petition.

AWARD OF $1750 FOR LOWELL

KILLED

Lawyer William F. Curtin this morning received a report from John H. Cogswell of the industrial accident board, that that body had awarded the mother of Harry J. Clune, who was killed at the Newton Mfg. Co. plant last September the sum of $350 per week for 500 weeks, making a total of $1750.

Clune had been employed at the Newton plant when an explosion occurred killing him and seriously injuring many others. At the time of the accident he was earning $2.10 per week, and his mother, Mrs. Marietta Arlin was a partial dependent. If she had been wholly dependent she would have received $10 per week for 500 weeks.

George E. Mears and A. R. Belyea appeared for the insurer and employer respectively and William F. Curtin of this city for the dependent.

Inquest Postponed

An inquest into the cause of death of George Stavros, aged six years of 134 Market street, was heard before Judge John J. Pickman in the court of criminal sessions this morning. The child was struck and instantly killed by an automobile owned and operated by Arthur C. Saunders in Market st., nearly opposite Palmer street, on Tuesday, May 28. A number of witnesses were heard this morning, but owing to the fact that Medical Examiner T. B. Smith was unable to be present and also that another witness was missing after the witnesses present had been heard the inquest was continued until a later date.

HORSE AND DOG SHOT.

A black horse, the property of Joseph Daily, was taken sick with colic street near the Fair Grounds yesterday and Dr. W. S. Sherman, the veterinarian, and Officer Fred Gilmore of the humane society, were called but neither could relieve the animal's suffering. Officer Gilmore shot the horse. A brown and white dog without a collar and whose owner is unknown, was struck by a wood team on Gorham street near the Fair Grounds yesterday and its hind leg was broken. The animal ambulance of the humane society was called and Officer Gilmore shot the animal.

The reason why opals are so often lost from their settings is that they expand with heat more than any other precious stones. Consequently they force open the gold which holds them in place, with the result that they ultimately fall out.

OFF COAST LAY FOR LARGER PREY

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Belief that the German submarines which early in the week successfully attacked coast schooners and steamers off the New Jersey coast were now lying in wait for larger prey in one of the transatlantic travel routes off the Virginia capes was expressed in official circles here today. This theory was strengthened by the torpedoing Wednesday of the British steamship Harpathian, 100 miles off the Virginia coast, news of which was announced in navy department despatches published today.

In the torpedoing of the Harpathian, the raiders struck without warning. The navy department had not received word as to whether the ship was armed, but expressed the opinion that it was, as all British steamers plying through the war zone carry guns. The Harpathian went down within seven or eight minutes after the torpedo struck, but the crew got away and was landed late yesterday at a port in Chesapeake Bay.

The sinking of the Harpathian brought the total number of victims of the German raiders to 14—six steamers and eight schooners.

HOMES OF GERMANS ARE STONED BY PORTO RICANS

SAN JUAN, P. R., June 7.—Angered by the news of the sinking of the Porto Rico liner Carolina by a German submarine, the inhabitants of Ponce stoned numerous houses occupied by Germans who have expressed pro-German sentiments or who in any way have attempted to justify the sinking of the Carolina.

The feeling runs particularly high against Spaniards of supposed German sympathies.

Atty. Gen. Kern has notified the officials to take energetic action against all persons whose utterances are considered out of line with the sentiment of the allied countries.

United States Dist. Atty. Martin yesterday issued the following statement to the people of the island:

"Be calm and quiet and determined to win the war. The harming of Germans in Porto Rico will hurt us; killing them in Europe will hurt them. The most effective way to avenge the sinking of the Carolina is to subscribe liberally to the Red Cross, which takes care of the families of our soldiers who put their lives at hazard."

That there had been loss of life on the Carolina did not become known here until noon yesterday. The names of those who perished were not available last night.

CAPTAIN SAYS LUMBER KEPT BOAT AFLOAT

AN ATLANTIC PORT, June 7.—Capt. R. R. Coudman and the crew of the schooner Edward R. Baird, from Jacksonville, to New York, sunk by a German submarine, 18 miles off Cape Charles Tuesday morning, were landed here yesterday.

Capt. Coudman said: "We were proceeding about 100 miles off Hog Island in a smooth sea.

The members of the Lathers' Union held their weekly meeting at 32 Middle street last evening with President Thomas Allard in the chair. Fifteen candidates were initiated and routine business was transacted.

President Arthur Stockley presided over the weekly meeting of the Painters' union, which was held last evening in Carpenters' hall and routine business was transacted.

A military band of women, said to be the first of its kind in this country, has been organized at New York, with Miss Annabelle Boyer as drum major.

U-BOAT WARNING SENT

OUT A WEEK AGO

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Acting Sec. Roosevelt of the navy disclosed late yesterday that a radio message was sent broadcast by the navy more than a week ago informing all shipping and shore stations that enemy submarines might appear at any point along the Atlantic coast.

At that time the news that the enemy had attacked schooners off the Virginia Capes had not reached the department and Mr. Roosevelt declined to discuss how the navy received the information upon which the warning was based.

Steamers and all craft in port received the message. Slow moving sailing vessels without wireless, however, had to take their chances, in ignorance, until they made port.

The fact that naval radio stations several times recently have picked up unintelligible radio impulses, believed now to have come from the raiders themselves, was also revealed. They were too indistinct to be read. In view of later developments it appears likely that the enemy craft heard the warning of their presence sent out by Sec. Baker yesterday sent to congress a request for a $16,000,000 appropriation for 18 new balloons and airplane stations along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, to supplement the army's preparations for its part in repelling submarine or air attacks. Equipment for the stations is said to be in hand and they probably will be established within a few weeks after the money is provided.

GOVERNING SHIP MOVEMENTS

WASHINGTON, June 7.—New orders tightening regulations governing the licensing and movement of tugs and other vessels in American harbors in anticipation of war conditions being brought to this side of the Atlantic will be issued shortly by the treasury and enforced by customs authorities, it is indicated today. Vessels will be required to get licenses and to submit to more strict rules concerning movement and anchorage.

Persons will not be allowed to carry cameras on or about harbors, except ferryboats.

Ames Lyons, aged 76, of Marysville, Pa., hasn't found any takers for his $500 placed in a bank at the start of the European war. Lyons borrowed the money of his property and deposited it in the bank to back his assertion that the allies would dictate the terms of peace when the war ends.

Talk the American Language Here

By not learning and speaking, it is going to cost you money.

Foreign languages are very worthy of study, help education, and have their places: In churches, in clubs, in schools, and homes at certain times, but not to the exclusion of the national language.

Their place for daily use, however, is not in some other nation's country.

It is a rude and discourteous thing to converse in a foreign tongue in public places, where those are present who only speak the national language.

One should think twice before speaking in a foreign tongue before anyone or anywhere,—travelers excepted.

If you have your shoes shined and the boys talk to each other, but not in English, tell them how you feel! If they try to talk the American language, go again!

If you go into a store, and the help there converse before you, trying to talk English, go again!

If you go around the mill or factory, and you hear the men talking in a foreign language, do you think it is right or courteous? Ask them, "Why don't you speak English?" Take their names and explain that they are in America, and with Americans, and we want one language here for general use.

Recommend newspapers printing in foreign languages, to use the opposite half of the page for the English translation. These newspapers would then be doing good work in education. It is well worth the extra cost to them, and would increase their circulation, drawing readers from other nationalities.

Electricity SOLVES THE "SERVANT PROBLEM"

LET IT HELP YOU

Reports issued by the employment service of the United States Department of Labor show a decided shortage of household help.

"For every first class housekeeper, cook or waitress there are a hundred families wanting her," says Mrs. H. M. Richards, chief of the woman's division. Whether your family is among them or not—

Employ Electrical Help TO FREE YOUR HANDS

The home equipped with the Electric Washing Machine, Vacuum Cleaner, Sewing Machine, Iron, Cooking Utensils, etc., is the home untroubled by servant problems. It is the home in which housework is performed quickly, easily and with greatest care.

Especially at this time when the country needs the services of its women for Red Cross, food conservation and other patriotic duties, housewives will find Electricity a wonderful aid in the home.
